Pool Inspectors Have A Plan To Raise Safety

By GERRY SWITZER and CYNTHIA JOHNSON
Star Staff Writers

Riding herd on Lancaster County's 74 nonresidential swimming pools keeps inspectors from the Lincoln-Lancaster County Health Department hopping during the summer months.

They don't mind the busy schedule. But they think a soon-to-be-proposed city ordinance would cut inspection time, at the same time making some pools safer and more healthful.

The proposed ordinance is being drawn up by the Health Department's division of environmental health.

It would require Class B pools (those connected with apartments, hotels/motels, trailer courts, country clubs, schools, YMCAs and YWCAs) to meet some of the same standards as Class A or public pools.

Specifically, Lancaster County's 60 Class B pools would have to be fenced (if outdoors) and employ a trained, certified operator.

"Pools without certified operators seem to give us more problems," said Dennis Grams, assistant director of the division.

Noting that most swimming pool problems relate to pool environment rather than safety, Grams explained that a half-day certification course for pool operators is offered several times yearly by the State Health Department.

Anyone may attend the free course, designed to teach pool operators proper maintenance procedures.

"Our general feeling is if we had more certified operators, we'd have fewer closings" and fewer instances of time-consuming reinspections, Grams said.

In 1975, the Health Department completed 322 inspections — an average of four per pool.

42 Closings
Those inspections resulted in 42 closings — 41 of which involved Class B pools.

Among 207 total deficiencies found, chlorine residual, pH, pool tub, lifesaving equipment and pool water problems led the list in frequency of occurrence.

Deficiencies in the above areas can cause eye irritation, infections and accidental injuries to swimmers.

A pool can be closed if deficiencies are found in any one of those, or a number of other categories. Pools are reopened when the deficiency is corrected.

According to Grams, the number of closings is expected to increase this year because the Health Department plans to inspect each pool weekly.

Although information regarding the certified operator training course has been sent to all Class B pool operators, some managers consulted were unaware of the program.

In fact, three of the six motel managers interviewed confessed certified operators with lifeguards.

A certified operator can be the building manager or any other person designated to operate and maintain the pool.

Most of the 11 Class B pool managers interviewed spoke in favor of the certified operator program, but many had reservations about making it mandatory.

Several agreed with Chateau La Fleur and Charleston Courts Apartments manager Wally Winn who said the certification course should not be required because the Health Department inspection is sufficient.

Although there are no statistics available on the number of injuries or illnesses resulting from faulty swimming pool environments, the number is substantial, according to the National Safety Council.

Operators Reluctant
Ben Harris of the council's Chicago office said statistics on illnesses and injuries are unavailable because some pool operators are reluctant to provide the necessary information.

Drowning statistics are easier to find. According to a recent national newspaper study done by Harris, more than one-fourth of 301 drownings occurred in pools which would be classified Class B in Lincoln.

Although it is difficult to assess accurately the impact pool fencing or lack of it had on these drownings, the study says that "enclosures around the pool and/or other security measures... appear to be effective for accident prevention."

Of 91 drownings involving children under age 7, 88 occurred in unfenced pools. In the other three instances, the children climbed a fence to gain access to the pool.

According to the Lancaster County sheriff's office, Lincoln and Lancaster County have had 21 drownings in the last 10 years. Separate statistics on the number of those which occurred in unfenced Class B pools are not available.

A strong believer in fencing around pools, Lucille Nefsky, owner of the Sleepy Hollow Motel said, "I couldn't sleep at night if I didn't have a fence around the pool."

"I think all pools should have a fence around them. A fence is a small price to pay for somebody's life," said Winn, who oversees the operation of three pools, all of them enclosed.

Other Class B pool operators argue that anyone can climb over a fence or swing a gate open.

Not A Deterrent
Everett Lingenfelter, manager of Motel 6, said that his motel pool is fenced but he doesn't feel fences are really a deterrent to pool problems.

"The gates swing both ways," he said.

Concurring in this philosophy is Bernice Hilgert of the Villager, which does not have a fenced pool.

"Anybody can get over a fence," he said.

According to Hank Melnik, Lincoln manager of the American Fence Co., the cost of enclosing an average size motel swimming pool which chain link fencing would be $700 to $800 for a four-foot fence, $1,500 to $2,000 for a six-foot fence.

Despite disagreement over the effectiveness of pool environment and safety requirements, Harris said cities all over the country are "slowly" beginning to tighten their regulations governing Class B swimming pools.

Illinois has even gone so far as to require all nonresidential pools, including those at motels and hotels, have lifeguards.

Grams and his co-workers would be satisfied with required pool fencing and the presence of a certified operator.

Mandatory lifeguards will not be part of the proposed ordinance, although Grams added, "It would be nice to have."

PLO Guards U.S. Evacuation

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A small U.S. Navy vessel evacuated about 270 Americans and other foreigners from the Lebanese civil war Sunday in a swift, smooth operation guarded by Palestinian guerrillas.

A 115-by-34-foot landing craft loaded its passengers, their baggage and a few pets at a seaside bathing club, then transported them to the waiting U.S.S. Spiegel Grove for a 44-hour sail to Athens.

"The evacuation operation in Beirut today was completed successfully without incident," said a statement issued in Washington by President Ford, who stayed up until after 5 a.m. to be certain it succeeded. "The success of the operation was made possible through the combined efforts of our armed forces and State Department personnel, both here and in the field."

For some, however, the evacuation was a matter of convenience. A German stewardess called it her "vacation," and a Finnish girl left for two weeks to attend her mother's funeral.

An Englishman declined to go when told he couldn't take his dog.

Fewer than 10 per cent of the Americans here took advantage of Sunday's evacuation.

Their departure, which came during a period of relative calm in Beirut, went off without any sense of panic since most were long-term residents of Lebanon.

Beirut's airport has been closed for two weeks by Syrian occupation and nearby fighting. The land route to Damascus is open but risky.

"I've mixed feelings about this," said Mrs. Vicki Ulrey of Greenwich, Conn., waiting at the U.S. rendezvous at a seashore hotel.

"There's an election going on in the United States, and it's certainly beneficial for President Ford to show firmness in a situation like this. At the same time, I'm not cynical. I know the road has been cut. I just hope our going out in such a spectacular way won't jeopardize the Americans who are left here."

The flat-bottomed landing craft loaded for an hour in the club marina under a warm Mediterranean sun.

Two of the dozen American sailors aboard hit the deck when three rifle shots rang out — but it was only two nervous guerrillas firing into the air to frighten away photographers.

The gray-painted Spiegel Grove — a landing ship dock — floated on the horizon, obscured by haze but visible through binoculars. The Pentagon said it was unarmed but carried a contingent of 150 Marines.

An approximate count by U.S. consular officials said 116 U.S. citizens boarded along with 65 Britons and an assortment of others, including some Italians, Greeks, Africans and an Iraqi.

Earlier estimates by the U.S. Embassy said nearly 400 persons registered to go. Restrictions on baggage and animals dissuaded some at the last minute — although the restrictions weren't enforced in the departure confusion.

Those leaving originally were to drive to Damascus in a convoy organized by the British Embassy. But the British postponed the 100-mile trip for the second day in a row because Palestinian guerrilla leaders warned the route was dangerous.

The hazards came particularly from shelling and rifle and machine gun fire on the main beachside road five miles south of Beirut, where Palestinian and Syrian lines meet. Heavy artillery exchanges rang out in the area through the night.

"There's only about a mile of road that's giving us trouble," said a British diplomat. "If we could get that cleared up, we would leave."

He said the British embassy planned to pursue its efforts to get an overland convoy through to Syria whenever the Palestine Liberation Organization says security conditions improve.

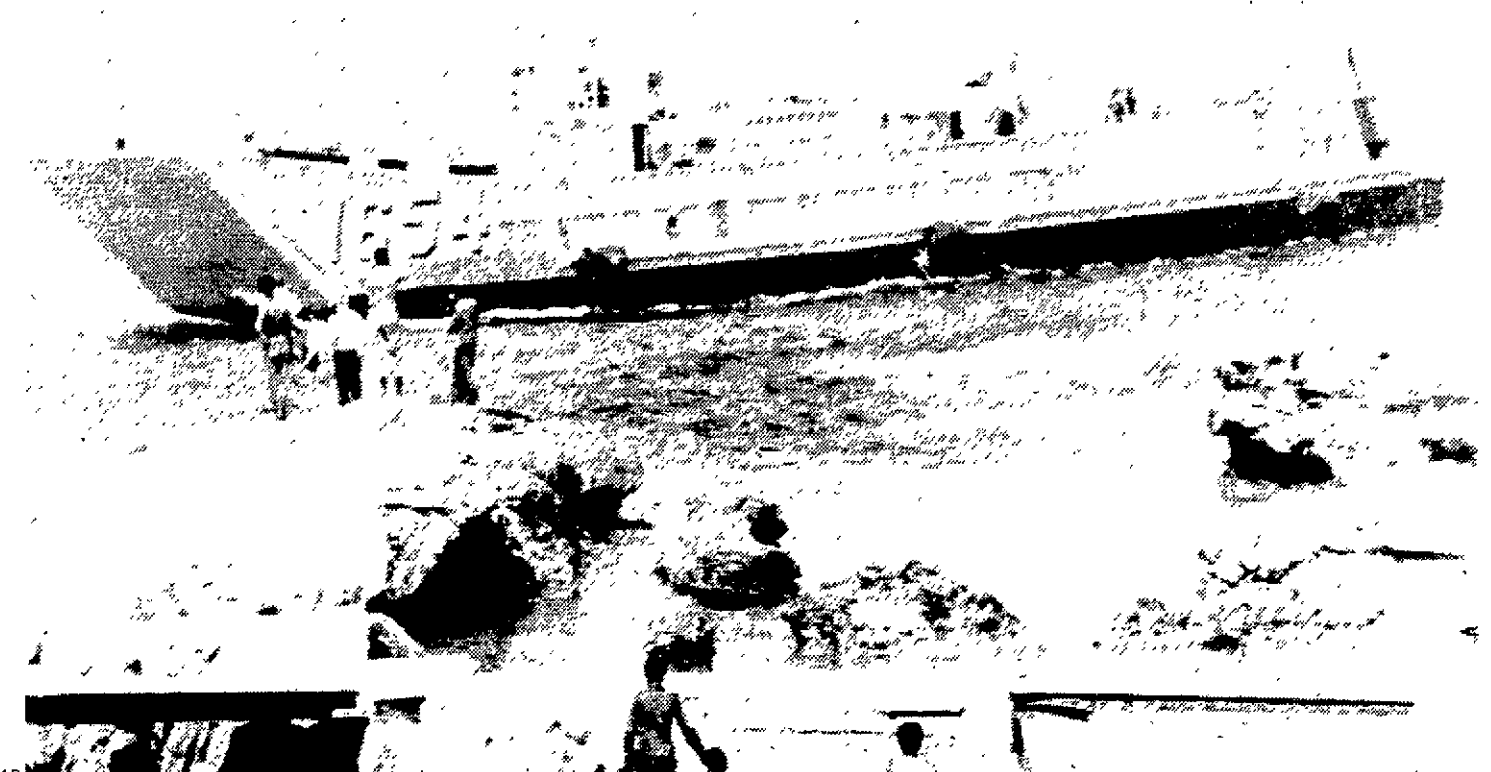

Yasir Arafat's PLO provided a tough security net around the departure point for the American seaborne operation, about 300 yards down a palm-fringed seaside avenue from the U.S. Embassy.

Ford ordered the U.S. Embassy to arrange departure for Americans who wanted to go following the assassination Wednesday of U.S. Ambassador Francis E. Meloy, economic counselor Robert O. Waring and Meloy's Lebanese driver.

Embassy estimates showed 1,350 U.S. citizens — many of them holding dual citizenship — and 750 non-American dependents were still living in Lebanon after 14 months of civil war between Moslem leftists, their Palestinian allies and right-wing Christians.

Landing Craft Reaches Beirut

A U.S. Navy landing craft from the U.S.S. Spiegel Grove arrives at the rocky shore of the Lebanese Arab Army's beach Sunday to pick up American, British and other "friendly nationals" for their 44-hour trip to Athens.

Fugate Takes First Step Toward A New Life

York (AP) — Convicted murderess Carl Anne Fugate, who spent 18 of her 32 years in prison, took the first step toward a new life Sunday.

Jacqueline Crawford, superintendent of the women's reformatory here, said Miss Fugate was "very calm yet very happy" when she left the institution at 12:10 a.m. "en route to her assigned destination."

Miss Fugate was granted a parole June 8 by a 4-1 vote of the Nebraska Parole Board.

At that time, she told the board she wanted to lead a normal life as "an ordinary dumpy little housewife."

Her ultimate destination or mode of transportation was not revealed but she was to report to a parole officer in St. Johns, Mich.

In 1958, Miss Fugate, then a 14-year-old schoolgirl, accompanied Charles Starkweather on a mass murder spree that began in Lincoln and ended in Douglas, Wyo., and left 10 persons dead. The first victims were her mother, stepfather and 2-year-old half sister.

Starkweather, the last man to die in Nebraska's electric chair, was executed June 25, 1959.

Mrs. Catherine Dahlquist of Omaha, the only woman on the board and lone dissenter against the parole, said in an interview last week, that she felt Miss Fugate lacked maturity to cope with the outside world at this time and that she was unconvinced of Miss Fugate's remorse over her participation in the killings.

"I searched for a long time for a sincere sign of remorse and I could not find it," Mrs. Dahlquist said. "But she added that she 'in no way' believed Miss Fugate should be imprisoned for life."

No one appeared at the hearing to oppose the parole. But after learning of the decision, Mrs. Robert Jensen, the mother of one victim, said, "I don't think that's justice. The victims and their families are given no consideration. It's all to make life better for the murderer."

Miss Fugate was convicted of first degree murder for her part in the slaying of Robert Jensen, who was killed with his girlfriend Carol King after offering Starkweather and Miss Fugate a ride.

"I feel so sorry for the people who have hated me so bad for 18 years because it's destroyed their lives," Miss Fugate told the parole board.

Her parole contains a provision prohibiting her from granting interviews or holding news conferences without the written consent of the parole board — a provision she suggested and agreed to.

"She requested that I thank all those who supported her during her incarceration and those who supported her during the parole hearing," Mrs. Crawford said Sunday.

"Carl Ann Fugate has definitely prepared herself for a very easy transition period back into society," Mrs. Crawford said. "I feel very confident that she will do very well."

Coeds Branch Out Into 'Male' Vocational Areas

By NANCY HICKS

Coeds are on the increase at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

And the women students are no longer sticking to the traditional fields, but are branching out into vocational areas historically reserved for men, according to a campus-wide study.

Women, who were 36% of the Lincoln campus student population just five years ago, were 41% in 1975, according to the study, originally compiled for the Nebraska Commission on the Status of Women.

Between 1971 and 1975 total female enrollment increased by 1,236 students while the male enrollment declined by 548 students, the survey showed.

The women attending UNL are also following the trend of their sisters in other colleges by leaving traditional arts and humanities areas and studying traditional "men's areas," according to the report.

"It is clear that women students at UNL are leaving traditional women's fields for new vocational areas. Men's interests seem far more stable and more nearly parallel the overall change in enrollment than do women's, according to the survey, prepared by Harry Allen, director of Institutional Research and planning.

The college of business is one example of women's changing interests.

Women majors in that college have jumped from 174 in 1971 to 473 in 1975, more than doubling the proportion of university women who have a business major from 2.2% to 5.2%. The proportion of men majoring in business has increased only slightly from 13.5% to 15% during the same period.

Other fields where women's enrollment has substantially increased include law enforcement, with no women majors in 1971 to 102 in 1975, and chemical engineering, with three female majors in 1971 to 17 in 1975 — a rise of 2% to 17%.

In horticulture and forestry, the four majors of 1971 have grown to 20 last year, and 30% of the majors in that department are now women. Twenty-five percent of law school majors are now women compared to 4% in 1971.

Most traditional fields for women — the arts, humanities and social sciences — have either remained numerically stable in women's enrollment or showed a decline, according to the survey.

Elementary education, the major field for one in eight coeds of 1971, is now the major for only one of 12 women students. And English, a major field for one of 19 women in 1971, now attracts one in every 35 women, according to the UNL survey.

7 Dangerous Convicts Escape

MALESTER, Okla. (AP) — Convicted murderer Rex Brinlee Jr. and the slayers of two Oklahoma law enforcement officials were among seven convicts who sawed through two sets of steel bars and escaped through a tunnel from the state penitentiary, authorities said Sunday.

The men may have fled in a car stolen near the prison about an hour before law enforcement officials were alerted to the escape at about 10:30 p.m. Saturday, police said.

Brinlee, in his 40s, is serving a life sentence for the killing of a Bristow, Okla., school teacher with a bomb. He has vowed from his prison cell to kill several persons, including his attorney, Thomas Dee Frazier of Tulsa.

The other escapees were identified as:

— William Franklin, 33, of Tulsa, and Edwin Jones, 30, of Oklahoma City, both serving life sentences for the 1970 gun slayings of an Oklahoma Highway Patrol trooper and the superintendent of Fountains State Park.

— Leonard Boyles, 31, of Chickasha,

Okla., serving 17 years for car theft. — Robert Nelson, 40, Hudson, Wis., serving 150 years for armed robbery. — Harmon Garmon, 37, of Wichita Falls, Tex., serving 15 years for armed robbery.

— William Morris, 39, whose hometown of record was listed only as Minnesota, serving 150 years for armed robbery.

Brinlee, Morris, and Boyles were working last week in a 4½-foot by 3½-foot tunnel that carries utility lines. They were assigned to cut the main steam line to an old boiler so it could be connected to a new boiler, authorities said.

"During this time, they apparently sawed some of the bars at two points in the tunnel," George said. Prison guards found two well-worn hacksaw blades in the tunnel.

The men made their way 150 yards through the tunnel, cut through the second set of bars and came out in an old industrial site on the north side of the prison yard. They cut through two 12-foot-high chain link fences and then were free, authorities said.

Brinlee and several other inmates escaped the penitentiary three years ago during the height of a prison riot. The others were captured shortly after but it was several weeks before the FBI hunted down Brinlee, found working as a plumber in Biloxi, Miss.

Franklin and Jones were convicted May 14, 1971 of the slayings of Trooper Bill Walker, 35, and Park Supt. Leo Newton. Game Ranger W.L. Pickens was critically wounded in the shooting which occurred Feb. 17 of that year.

Pickens told the jury he and Newton heard shots in the park about 6 p.m. and found the two men getting into a car at a picnic shelter.

The officials took the two into custody in separate cars after confiscating a revolver and sawed-off shotgun from the car. They waited for Trooper Walker to arrive and watched as he searched Jones.

Franklin was not searched. As Walker started around his patrol car to take Jones away, Franklin pulled a gun from under his shirt and began firing.

Pickens testified that Franklin did all the shooting.

7 Dangerous Convicts Escape

MCLESTER, Okla. (AP) — Convicted murderer Rex Brinlee Jr. and the slayers of two Oklahoma law enforcement officials were among seven convicts who sawed through two sets of steel bars and escaped through a tunnel from the state penitentiary, authorities said Sunday.

The men may have fled in a car stolen near the prison about an hour before law enforcement officials were alerted to the escape at about 10:30 p.m. Saturday, police said.

Brinlee, in his 40s, is serving a life sentence for the killing of a Bristow, Okla., school teacher with a bomb. He has vowed from his prison cell to kill several persons, including his attorney, Thomas Dee Frazier of Tulsa.

The other escapees were identified as:

— William Franklin, 33, of Tulsa, and Edwin Jones, 30, of Oklahoma City, both serving life sentences for the 1970 gun slayings of an Oklahoma Highway Patrol trooper and the superintendent of Fountainhead State Park.

— Leonard Boyles, 31, of Chickasha,

Okla., serving 17 years for car theft.
— Robert Nelson, 40, Hudson, Wis., serving 150 years for armed robbery.
— Harmon Garmon, 37, of Wichita Falls, Tex., serving 15 years for armed robbery.

— William Morris, 39, whose hometown of record was listed only as Minnesota, serving 150 years for armed robbery.

Brinlee, Morris, and Boyles were working last week in a 4½-foot by 3½-foot tunnel that carries utility lines. They were assigned to cut the main steam line to an old boiler so it could be connected to a new boiler, authorities said.

"During this time, they apparently sawed some of the bars at two points in the tunnel," George said. Prison guards found two well-worn hacksaw blades in the tunnel.

The men made their way 150 yards through the tunnel, cut through the second set of bars and came out in an old industrial site on the north side of the prison yard. They cut through two 12-foot-high chain link fences and then were free, authorities said.

Brinlee and several other inmates escaped the penitentiary three years ago during the height of a prison riot. The others were captured shortly after but it was several weeks before the FBI hunted down Brinlee, found working as a plumber in Biloxi, Miss.

Franklin and Jones were convicted May 14, 1971 of the slayings of Trooper Bill Walker, 35, and Park Supt. Leo Newton. Game Ranger W.L. Pickens was critically wounded in the shooting which occurred Feb. 17 of that year.

Pickens told the jury he and Newton heard shots in the park about 6 p.m. and found the two men getting into a car at a picnic shelter.

The officials took the two into custody in separate cars after confiscating a revolver and sawed-off shotgun from the car. They waited for Trooper Walker to arrive and watched as he searched Jones.

Franklin was not searched. As Walker started around his patrol car to take Jones away, Franklin pulled a gun from under his shirt and began firing.

Pickens testified that Franklin did all the shooting.

Eight Persons Injured In Shopping Center Fire

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Fire swept through 25 stores in a shopping center just off the glittering Las Vegas gambling and hotel strip early Sunday, injuring eight persons and doing up to $1 million in damage, officials said.

The blaze that began Saturday night reduced more than half of the 40-store Commercial Center to rubble. The center is off Sahara Avenue, next door to the Las Vegas Convention Center.

The injured included six firemen, a policeman and a store owner.

Flames from the fire could be seen throughout most of the center of the city, and for a time, overwhelmed even the bright lights of Las Vegas.

Investigators said they were looking into the possibility that the fire may have been started by an explosion.

The blaze drew thousands of tourists away from casino gambling tables and snarled traffic for miles, at times hampering fire-fighting efforts, authorities said.

Officers patrolled the area through the night to prevent looting. Officials said some thefts were reported in the confusion following the fire.

More than 100 firemen battled the blaze for about three hours before bringing it under control at midnight. The fire was extinguished about 3 a.m.

Officials said they believed the blaze started in one of the stores, the Animal Services Pet Shop. The store owner, Jody Perle, suffered smoke inhalation when she attempted to rescue her pets.

Later, as she lay on the sidewalk overcome by smoke, she told firemen she had smelled smoke coming through an air vent. She said she began the rescue effort, but soon found herself unable to breathe in the thick fumes.

"I lost a mother cat and its kittens, a dog and a couple more animals at least," she said. She was taken to Sunrise Hospital for treatment of smoke inhalation. She had planned to move the store to a new location Sunday.

Among the other destroyed businesses were a Mexican restaurant and a recently opened Philippine import store.

A chef at the Lobster Trap Restaurant said the 84 patrons inside the establishment did not seem too disturbed by the fire.

"Our dining room filled up with smoke," said chef Allan King. "We had a full dining room and I still have lobsters and steaks in there. Police came and said for everyone to get the hell out. Everyone filed out real orderly."

Communist Party Hoping For Share Of Italian Vote

ROME (AP) — Italians voted Sunday on the first day of a two-day parliamentary election that should determine whether the Communists get a share of national power in this troubled NATO country. About 120,000 security officials kept the peace at polling places after a violence-marred campaign.

From Sicilian schoolhouses to Roman prisons, to Alpine city halls, voting went on from 7 a.m. to 10 p.m. and was to resume Monday.

Sunshine lured many Italians to the beaches and picnics during the day, but by the time the polls closed officials said 76.3 per cent of the 40.4 million eligible voters had cast their ballots. This compares to 78.9 per cent at the same stage of the 1972 elections.

No significant returns are expected before 6 p.m. Monday (noon EDT).

Voting in Rome's upper middle class Tor di Quinto section, Italian Communist chief Enrico Berlinguer said "I hope Italians will vote without fearing renewal which has become more and more necessary."

The Communists stressed their independence of the Kremlin throughout the five-week campaign, which was marked by the assassination of a district attorney and three other persons.

National newspapers and party organs issued final appeals in an election rated a toss-up between the Roman Catholic church-supported Christian Democrats and the Communists, on the surge but still No. 2.

"Vote Communist to change things for renewing Italy," the Communist party newspaper L'Unita bannered. Milan's conservative Il Giornale cautioned in an editorial that Italians were choosing "a way of life," not just a legislature.

In the unlikely case that one of the nine competing parties wins a clear majority of seats, it will form a government. The usual case in Italy since World War II has been that the Christian Democrats form a coalition with other parties. The Communists are hoping to get in such a government for the first time since 1947.

Pope Paul VI told a crowd of about 4,000 attending his noon blessing in St. Peter's Square that he was "praying that our society evolves and affirms justice, observes and defends true and human order (and) promotes legitimate liberty."

The Pope abstained from mentioning the elections and deleted a line in his prepared speech that said "you can imagine the intention of our prayer."

But the 78-year-old pontiff has called communism "anti-human" and the Vatican is also said to fear that Rome itself may turn red in local elections held at the same time as the parliamentary voting.

This election is judged the most important in the 30-year-old history of the Italian republic. It is likely to have implications in other Western European capitals, as well as Washington and Moscow.

President Ford and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger have expressed opposition to a governing role for the Communists in Italy, saying that Washington-Rome ties would be subject to reassessment.

Although nine parties are vying for 315 senate and 630 chamber seats, the spotlight is on the Christian Democrats, in power for 30 years, and the Communists, who obtained 33 per cent of the votes to the Christian Democrats' 35 in nationwide local elections last June.

The Communists waged an all-out drive to close the gap.

Pledging to relinquish power if voted out, they campaigned on a theme that Italy's severe economic ills need a "democratic unity" government including the Communists. Italy is on the verge of financial collapse. Its national product dropped by 3 per cent last year, its industrial production by 9 per cent. The national currency, the lira, is in a tailspin and the inflation rate in April soared to an annual rate of 35 per cent.

Americans, Australian Arrested In Nigeria

©The New York Times

Lagos, Nigeria — A bizarre case in which two Americans have been charged with illegally importing arms into Nigeria is reaping big headlines here and touching off another round of anti-American suspicion.

The Americans — one of whom is a senior representative of the Lockheed Aircraft Corp. here — were arrested in Lagos May 18 and 19 and held incommunicado until their arraignment earlier this month.

Since then, a third man has been arrested and charged with illegal possession of a firearm.

He is an Australian, but the newspapers persist in calling him an American veteran of the Vietnam war.

The two Americans are Perry Eugene Guthrie, 58, a program manager of an 11-member technical maintenance crew for Lockheed, and Harry John Spriggs, 33, a pilot for Bristow Helicopters of Nigeria Inc., a transport company used by oil corporations in the city of Warri in Bendel State.

The weapons involved are reported to be a 22 semiautomatic repeating rifle, a 22 air rifle and a 22 target pistol, along with close to 2,000 rounds of ammunition.

The weapons were described as a "large cache" by Nigerian newspapers that, in omitting the decimal points before the calibers of the guns, reported the seizure of 66 weapons instead of three.

According to persons close to the case, the weapons were allegedly brought into the country on May 14 aboard a Lockheed C130 returning from servicing in Marietta, Ga. The plane carried two Nigerian crews and a Lockheed back-up crew under a Nigerian Air Force commander.

The guns allegedly were carried in three packages addressed to Guthrie. Two of the packages went to Guthrie's office at Murtala Muhammed Airport and a third to his residence in nearby Ikeja, sources said.

Four days later, according to the sources, Guthrie told his driver to bring the two packages to his house. The driver was stopped at the airport gate by a guard who opened the packages. Guthrie, arrested later that night, has reportedly denied any knowledge of their contents.

The sources said a note inside the packages indicated they were intended for Spriggs who was arrested on the following day. Subsequently, authorities searching Spriggs's house in Ikeja reportedly found an address in Warri for Demian Peter Lawson, an Australian who is a fellow helicopter pilot. Lawson's house was searched and he was arrested June 15 and charged with possession of a .38-caliber revolver and 50 rounds of ammunition. He pleaded not guilty in a court appearance this week.

In Nigeria, although guns are seen everywhere in the hands of the military and the police, it is unusual for private citizens to own them. Illegal possession and importation is a serious crime that can draw a prison sentence of 10 years.

Youth 'Gangs' Causing Concern In Greenwich Village

©The New York Times

New York — They are boys and girls of 12, 13, 14 or 15. They spend their afternoons and evenings loitering in the little parks in Greenwich Village, smoking marijuana, drinking beer, playing cards and chess and sometimes glaring at passers-by and cursing them.

Occasionally, they become more rowdy, shooting off firecrackers, overturning garbage cans and, not infrequently, chasing and beating up younger children and homosexuals.

For months they have been an annoyance to residents of the quiet, pleasant streets of the Village. But that attitude among many people turned to terror last weekend when a 41-year-old man was stabbed to death and 10 youths were seen running away.

For those who felt this terror, it hardly mattered that the police quickly arrested a 14-year-old and said the slaying had been a confrontation of strangers and not a gang attack.

Spreading fears have prompted community meetings that focus on security demands for more police protection and even some talk that represents a siege mentality in the face of a growing gang menace.

But the youngsters who hang out in the Village parks say they are being falsely portrayed as vicious gangs, like those that roam decaying sections of Brooklyn and the Bronx with knives, guns and chains.

The Village youths gather in loosely knit, often leaderless groups that, they contend, hardly qualify for the name "gangs." Many of the youngsters come from middle-class families and talk less of street machismo than of going to college someday.

Police statistics on crime in the Village tend to support the youths' contentions. There have been increases in petty crimes and vandalism, but no recent upsurge of violent crimes — despite reports to the contrary about attacks on women and children.

But the statistics have not served to allay the fears of many residents — primarily because most people don't know about the statistics and, even when they do, they suspect the police are downplaying the incidence of crime.

Most important, the initial reports suggested erroneously that Thomas McCready, an actor who had earned a black belt in karate, had been the victim of a gang assault — and that is what is being fearfully repeated by many people in the community.

"We are in a state of siege," one woman declared at a hastily called meeting on "security problems" in Westbeth, the artists' housing development, across the intersection of Bethune and Washington Streets from where the stabbing took place.

During the meeting, the artists discussed forming a tenants patrol, circulated a petition demanding that a foot patrolman be assigned in the area and said that they planned to march on the station house of the local police unit Thursday afternoon.

In a letter that is to be presented to the police and city officials with the petition, Joya Staack, chairman of the Committee for Neighborhood Safety at Westbeth, wrote that McCready's "murder is the latest event in a series of robberies, beatings, muggings and vandalism."

the local precinct, said, however, that department statistics indicated there had actually been a slight decrease in robberies and assaults in the area in the last year.

He said that he did not see "a terribly bad gang situation . . . a roving gang where you have children and adults being beaten up every day . . . we don't have that."

Mrs. Staack, like other residents who were questioned, could recall the specifics of only two other recent assaults: one slightly north of the Village, in which several youths jumped on two men at Eighth Avenue and 17th Street for no apparent reason, and another in which a man, apparently complaining that youths in the Westbeth courtyard were making too much noise, shoved a small boy and, in return, was struck with skateboards by several other boys.

Several men and women maintained that some women and children were being terrorized by young teen-agers, but they said that they feared there would be reprisals if they were to make formal complaints to the police.

"There is a feeling of fear when you walk past a gang," Mrs. Staack said, referring to the youths in the parks. She added:

"I don't know if it's because of the rumors that spread or this kind of macho, hostile attitude they have. On the other hand, I don't think we've been fair to the kids."

Peter Shalleck, the managing director of Westbeth, said that, at a meeting with about 75 neighborhood youngsters earlier in the week, the youths seemed grieved about the McCready death and contended that they had nothing to do with it. He said the youngsters had formed a committee to repaint parts of Westbeth that had been "supergraffitied" and that some indicated that they would like to help out on tenant patrols.

In the last six months, Shalleck said, there has been an increase in graffiti, general vandalism and "big kids ripping off little kids." But he added:

"They're not killers. The killing was not typical or symptomatic of the real situation here. In my heart I don't believe these kids are bad kids. There are a few, but they're certainly in the minority."

Collision Mars Ship Race In Tall Ships Sailing Event

By The Associated Press

The Tall Ships bicentennial race from Bermuda to Newport, R.I., got underway Sunday but was marred almost immediately by collisions involving six ships, including two of the largest in the fleet. Two ships were forced to turn back.

Harbor Radio in Hamilton, Bermuda, said a cadet aboard one of the ships was taken to a hospital for X rays, but his injuries were not believed serious.

One collision involved the 350-foot Spanish topsail schooner Juan Sebastian De El Cano and the 338-foot full rigged ship Libertad from Argentina, Bermuda Harbor Radio said. The Juan Sebastian suffered a broken foremast and had to turn back. The Libertad, which continued, reported two torn sails, damaged lifeboats and a smashed rail.

The other collision, authorities said, involved the 178-foot Gazela Primeiro, a Portuguese vessel now owned by the Philadelphia Maritime Museum, and the 269-foot Romanian ship Mircea. The Gazela Primeiro reported the top section of her main mast was broken and she turned back. There were no reports of damage to the Mircea, which sailed on.

In a third mishap, a British destroyer and an Italian yawl reported brushing each other but both continued in the race.

The collisions occurred about 3 p.m. EDT at the start of the race by 18 tall-masted ships and more than 80 smaller vessels heading northeast to Newport. From there they will cruise to New York City for a giant parade under sail on July 4th.

The Coast Guard Rescue and Information Center in New York City said its training bark Eagle, host ship for the Operation Sail 1976, confirmed the two collisions. The Coast Guard said two other ships, the 70-foot Italian yawl Stella Polare and the British destroyer H.M.S. Eskimo, were involved in a minor collision. Both ships continued in the race.

The skippers of all the ships had been warned before the start of the race to stay clear of the Tall Ships, regardless of which ship might have the right of way. It takes ships the size of the San Sebastian De El Cano and the Libertad 20 minutes to tack.

The weather was hazy but there was no visibility problem for the ships. Light winds of about 14 to 15 knots prevailed.

The passage to Newport is less a race than an exercise for 3,000 sail training cadets from all over the world.

Meanwhile, the schooner Sir Winston Churchill, crewed by 42 British women, joined the starting line on its way to the United States and the 200th anniversary of its breakway from the British crown.

For most of the stars of this show, the giant sails were hoisted by cadets in training for the maritime or merchant services.

But when Capt. Cedric Collis, a former Royal Navy officer, shouted out his "hoist the mizzen, hoist the mizzen," the crew were young women as intent on building character as well as becoming mariners.

Among the ships in the race is the Churchill and her largely female crew. Though her masts stand 100 feet above the water, she is not in the racing class of the big square-rigged ships, but the type of training on board illustrates one of the purposes of the race.

The Sail Training Association in Great Britain owns and operates the Churchill, signing on young men and women for two week cruises intended to build character as well as nautical ability.

"It's a different world, I guess," said Jan Hammond, now making her second trip as a Churchill trainee. "You can find yourself on a trip like this . . . you get much more confidence in yourself."

Investigative Journalists Group Vows To Find Reporter's Slayer

Indianapolis (UPI) — Journalists from across the nation made plans Sunday to find the slayer of Don Bolles, the Arizona Republic reporter killed while doing an investigative story.

Bolles died last week of injuries suffered from a bomb that exploded when he started his car.

Robert Greene, Suffolk editor of the Long Island, N.Y. Newsday, was appointed chairman of a task force to consider how the Investigative Reporters & Editors Group, which held its first national conference here, should respond to Bolles' slaying.

The IRE members adopted a resolution to "do all we can as reporters to bring justice to the person or persons responsible for Bolles' death."

The IRE also established a memorial award in Bolles' honor. Any newsmen who are employed by the CIA, FBI or any other law enforcement agency ought to resign their news jobs immediately, the IRE said in another resolution.

"The public won't know when the police stop and journalism starts because of the journalists being involved in exchange of ideas and information with law enforcement agents," Ben Bagdikian, nationally known press critic, had warned Saturday.

Not everybody at the conference agreed with him. Seymour Hersh, New York Times, was quoted as saying all investigative reporters trade information with law officers, because they must to get the story.

"There are never too many good, solid investigative reporters for the systematic analysis of government operations," said closing speaker Clark Mollenhoff, Washington reporter for the Des Moines Register and Tribune.

He warned, however, that some brash reporters are flirting with libel.

A "Deep Throat" Problem "Hardly a week passes that I do not hear of some new incident of an editor with a 'Deep Throat' problem. Young and inexperienced reporters are turning up confidential sources on a wide range of exotic political shenanigans that would amount to libel if printed," he said.

Mollenhoff called it a mistake to think that just two Washington Post reporters or even the press alone forced a president to resign. He said people like Judge John Sirica, former Sen. Sam Ervin, D-N.C., and others did their part.

"I think the profession is going to feel our impact in terms of better reporting, and if our profession feels it — the organization and the enthusiasm shown by these people — it's going to have to have impact on our society," said Harley Bierce, one of the organizers of the conference.

Bierce, of the Indianapolis Star, joined with Star colleague Myria Pulliam, Ron Kotiol, Chicago Tribune, and Paul Williams of Ohio State University to organize the conference.

The IRE here also established a five-member ethics committee and voted to establish a service center at OSU for investigative reporting, operative by July, 1977.

Tentative plans for the center include a librarian, a newsletter of investigative stories, a directory of technical and legal experts and an information bank.

Number 3 in a series designed to help you save money.

1. Shop the specials, but make your list at home and stick to it. Make your own list of current food prices in a notebook you can carry around to make sure specials are really specials.
2. Spend some time comparing brands and reading labels. Give house brands a try as higher price is not always synonymous with higher quality. And, don't let an attractive package fool you into thinking you're getting more.
3. Some things are cheaper to buy prepared: Frozen orange juice, frozen or canned lima beans, peas, cherries, instant coffee, pork and beans, chocolate frosting mix, some cake mixes (yellow and Devil's food) and brownie mix.
4. Convenience foods save meal planning and cooking from scratch, but are the costs really worth it to you? With just a little extra effort, you can make a double recipe and freeze for later. Spending some time cooking and freezing for the following week can save your family a lot of money in this way alone.
5. Buy large or medium sizes for yourself and share the cost of case lots with agreeable neighbors.
6. Plan your meals around food that's in season, but be flexible so you can substitute an item when you see the price is right.
7. At the end of a supermarket day, you can get bargains on items like bar-b-que chicken, high quality aged meats and bread.
8. About meat: It's cheaper to buy one large chicken than two small ones. Fish is a much better buy when not breaded or prepared in any other way. Beef is highest in July and August the big months for summer cookouts. Buy a couple of months ahead of time and freeze. Steaks will keep for one year, hamburger for 3 months.

9. Buy the lower grades of canned fruits and vegetables if they're going to be used in cooking and not eaten right from the can.
10. Experiment with inexpensive foreign cooking. Dishes from the Orient, Mexico, Italy, Spain and Greece are especially suited to a budget.
11. Leave children at home if at all possible. They not only increase impulse buying, but energetic children can be a distraction from watching as the checker totals up your groceries.

These guidelines to spending can save you a lot of money. Money saved on things you need is money saved for things you want.

Of course, we hope you'll save the money you save at NBC. We can help you put your savings to work in any number of ways. And, we're proud of the convenience we can offer at our many offices and drive-ins — Park 'n Shop, Ride 'n Shop, Free Bank-By-Mail, and our Bank-In-The-Box where you can deposit, withdraw or get an immediate print out of your current account balance. ## On Shaky Ground

Almost all county agency budget requests have been forwarded to fiscal analyst Elmer Cheek's office preparatory to County Board review.

But among those not reporting is County Assessor Fritz Meyer, who says he will turn his budget into the county clerk's office, rather than the fiscal office, and will do so when he feels he is ready. "I don't pay any attention to Cheek," Meyer was quoted as saying, and it is illustrative of the deep-freeze relationship between some of officeholders in the Lancaster County Courthouse. It is eloquent testimony, too, for the need — at the very least — to streamline county government operations, if not to consolidate city-county government functions.

Life is not any rosier on the city side of 555 So. 10th.

There, the three obstructionist City Council members — Dick Baker, Steve Cook and Bob Sikyta — say they would support a move at budget time to abolish the position of the mayor's administrative director. The post was created at the behest of Mayor Helen Boosalis. It has been held for the past seven months by Reid Charles, at an annual salary of $20,404. The reasoning behind the move varies somewhat between the councilmen but in general it is suggested that the post is unnecessary.

This latest threat on the part of the aforementioned council members is not unusual.

Keenly disappointed in the election results of May, 1975, the three council members have, to greater or lesser degree, spent the last 13 months opposing the mayor on a wide range of issues from the recent charge she is no leader (laughable and ironic, especially since there has been no evidence accumulated during their terms in office with which to compare the present mayor's performance) to the carrying of one or two of the councilmen about the design of city stationery ordered by Mrs. Boosalis.

We think that the council would not only be doing the mayor's administration a disservice if it yanked the rug out from under the administrative director so soon, but would be encroaching where it does not really belong.

The strength or weaknesses of the mayor's appointments should fall on her shoulders. She should be held responsible for the adequacy of her administrative set-up rather than being restricted in the operation of her office — or rescued from administrative profligacy of her own making, if that be the case — by the council.

The threat to abolish Charles's position has something to do with a judgment of his performance by the councilmen in question, but more to do with just plain trying to embarrass the mayor, in our opinion.

If these councilmen didn't have such a long and tiresome record of opposing Mrs. Boosalis at practically every turn, the criticism of Charles' function might be taken seriously.

Rioting In Africa

The racial rioting in South Africa had cooled at weeks' end, although by this morning it may have heated up again. The prognosis for a return to the status quo in that minority-ruled white African stronghold is not good.

The handwriting is on the wall in all of southern Africa. For those who might vainly wish that the old colonial order in its present form will hang on despite the rising fury of black second-class citizens in both Rhodesia and South Africa, profound disappointment is in the offing.

In South Africa, where the white Boer-dominated faction rules with an iron hand backed up by the most powerful military on the continent, it may take longer for blacks to reach ruling status, or equal status, than it will in Rhodesia. But the upheaval will surely come in our lifetime.

The new foreign policy initiative to black Africa undertaken by President Ford and Secretary Kissinger makes even more sense in light of current developments. We have, in the post-war era, usually been left floundering in the propwash of change taking place in the developing lands. A realistic appraisal and policy designed to meet inevitable change in Africa is needed and the steps taken by Ford and Kissinger thus far have been welcome tentative first steps.

VIRGINIA PAYETTE

NEW YORK — Last week a letter I mailed to San Diego arrived safely within three days. There, I said something nice about the Postal Service. And that's about it. Other letters to addresses more than 1,000 miles away often take a week. A birthday card mailed to California last March hasn't made it yet.

Sending letters to the little granddaughters in Texas is like tossing Valentines into the wind. This is because whoever does this sort of thing suddenly, in his infinite wisdom, changed their address. Three weeks before last Christmas.

They still live in the same house . . . on the same street . . . in the same ZIP. But, overnight, they got a new house number and a new street. (He left them in the same ZIP). You can imagine what this did to all their Christmas mail, not to mention a million packages mailed in Santa's name.

For a while, the mailman carried on. Then he began dropping hints that the mailer should advise friends and relatives that, while she hadn't moved, she had a new mailing address. Finally, he rebelled and got out his "return to sender" stamp.

Meanwhile, nobody bothered to tell the folks at the telephone company that whole neighborhoods had been juggled around. So out come the new phone books with (you guessed it) the old addresses.

This can get to be a pain in the mailbox. And it's just one more reason why the Postal Service is teetering into financial collapse at the rate of $1.5 billion a year.

Postmaster Gen. Benjamin Bailar says the President is mad at him and won't even talk to him on the phone. Mr. Ford says he can't spare any more money to bail out Bailar and why doesn't he borrow what he needs, as does any other Washington agency?

After all, the President points out, the Postal Service has legal permission to borrow up to $500 million a year for operating purposes. He thinks that ought to be enough to keep it going "for at least another year" without any help from Washington. Also without any more pesky rate increases or cutbacks in service.

And that was the last he had to say about the whole mess. He has more things to deal with these days than minor details about the cost of stamps, whether businesses get one or two mail deliveries a day, whether anybody gets any on Saturday and which rural post offices to close down.

So has Congress. Getting rid of the old Post Office Department back in 1970 was the best thing that's happened to them in years. (Except for the fat raise and cost-of-living benefit they voted themselves last year.) So they aren't about to sit still for any suggestion that they take it over again.

They don't want to part with any more money for higher subsidies, either. Even if they did, Mr. Ford would veto the bill. Besides, why should Congress care what stamps cost. All their business mail goes free.

Neither do you hear any of the fearless candidates coming forth with a solution to get the mail delivered post haste. Somehow they seem to think voters are more worked up about the Panama Canal than the fact that anything fragile entrusted to the Postal Service is likely to wind up smashed to barely recognizable bits.

A housewife in Houston is still puzzling over what happened to an old coat she mailed to a house guest who had left it behind. When the package arrived, it still had the original wrappings and the mailing label in handwriting, but the coat had mysteriously turned into a brand new pants suit. She now uses a private parcel service.

So do a lot of other people. Mail volume is in worse shape than Aunt Minnie's birthday box of cookies. That's one reason the Postal Service is going broke.

Another is the skyrocketing cost of labor. And, on top of everything else, the expensive new machinery they ordered up to speed mail along isn't doing the job.

Two months ago, in a frantic attempt to up its revenue, the Postal Service slapped a 33% increase on some services. And we're being warned that the 13-cent stamp will jump to 17 cents by fall.

Dreary as the situation is, the Republican National Committee has managed to find one light touch. In their ads for a book on Republican humor, they warn prospective buyers: "We don't run the Postal Service, so please allow four to six weeks for delivery."

If that's a sample of what's in the book, I think I'll save my money.

"YOU HAVEN'T BEEN SHOVELING ENOUGH INTO IT"

JAMES RESTON

WASHINGTON — The official "silly season" in this country runs roughly through the hot "dog days" from the Fourth of July to Labor Day. It is a time invented by and for reporters when minor characters fill in dull days in the news, and this year it is starting early.

For example: when the fighting Democrats unite, and the uniting Republicans fight; when Charlie O. Finley of the Oakland Athletics sells all his baseball stars to the opposition New York Yankees and Boston Red Sox; when Wayne Hays, the portly bully of Capitol Hill turns Washington, of all places, into the sex symbol of the Republic, then you know the season is on.

It is the distinctive mark of the "silly season" that nothing goes according to plan. Presidents lose their power and are challenged by actors. Minor former governors out of Georgia capture the Democratic Party. Typists who cannot type and telephoneists who cannot answer the phone dominate the Congress of the United States.

JIM BISHOP

NEW YORK — Your congressman is your public servant. In the past few years, he has raised his salary 80%. He also voted for an automatic cost-of-living raise. Of the 435 congressmen, fewer than 50 are present when the chaplain intones his one-minute prayer. The preacher gets $19,768 a year.

If your congressman can last 30 years, he could retire on a pension three times greater than the full salary he earned as a freshman. He pays himself $44,625, and averages a staff of 16, including a press agent. He quintupled the number of government-paid trips home.

Should he die in office, the Congress will vote his widow one year's salary. He qualifies automatically for an insurance policy of $45,000. For this he pays $28.82 a month.

The Navy staffs a free medical clinic for him. Your congressman is allowed $7,500 a year for office supplies. What he doesn't spend, he pockets. Last year Sen. John Tunney used his frank to send out two million pieces of mail. Your servant is paid 12 cents a mile to return home 26 times each year. If he lives in Arlington, Va., he can elect to accept a lump sum of $4,500. If home is the State of Washington, the mileage amounts to a fortune.

At recess, he can go anywhere in the world on "official travel." If he takes his wife, she goes curate. Congressmen seldom make an "official" trip to a country which is starving. Abroad, U.S. Embassy staffs dance attendance on the congressman.

He works long hours. Most of these are spent in his plush office. The congressman's major effort is to get re-elected. Most of his energies are devoted to sending one-minute TV tapes back home, or mailing out position papers which will be popular with his constituents, or little radio messages.

Dan Rappoport covered congress for UPI over a decade. In his book, "Inside the House," he states that congressmen pay $2 for a haircut; senators pay nothing. The lower house feels that it is getting a trimming. The congressman gets free plants for his office. He also has unlimited sick leave. Sen. Karl Mundt had a long final illness and did not cast a vote for several years. He refused to resign and drew full pay.

The elected official averages 60 days in holiday breaks and vacation. The House employs 11,000 persons on its side of the Capitol. That great patriot, Wayne Hays, passed "Committee Order 1," which authorized all 435 congressmen to raise the number of offices back home from one to three.

No one knows the final cost of the Rayburn Office Building. The suites are plush. The parking under the building is arranged so that no congressman is more than a few steps from an elevator. When congressmen cross an intersection around the Capitol, the police change the light for them to green.

Sadly, most congressmen sit in their offices when debate is on. A bell tells them when a roll call vote is imminent. If they do not know which bill is being considered, Chief Doorman Warren Jernigan intones the name of the bill's sponsor as the gentlemen hurry in. He also repeats a succinct summary of the bill in question.

The House has a huge gymnasium complete with swimming pool, handball courts and masseurs. In the House restaurant, the headwaiter greets each member by name. Salesmen are not permitted in the three office buildings but lobbyists are.

Most members are backslappers. A congressman is conscious of the fact that he is one of 435 members. He must learn to get along. In cloakrooms, men who never drank sip bourbon. If a newspaper publishes a flattering article about a congressman, he asks another member to stand up and request that it be republished in the Congressional Record.

Committee chairmen manage to get government contractors to build plants and airstrips, tanks and ships in their home districts. Lyndon Johnson refused to okay NASA construction until Congress agreed to build the massive headquarters in Houston, Texas.

A congressman comes up for election every two years, which is why your servant must keep running for office. His investigative committees are good for television and newspapers, but their purpose is to enact corrective legislation.

The average member will not investigate the worst of his comrades, unless he is pushed . . .

The High Cost Of Public Servants

By DON WALTON

Who says erosion is bad?

The summer's initial vacation jaunt gave me my first look at the Grand Canyon. What a ditch!

Perhaps the search-and-destroy team which transformed the late O Street into Nothing Street could dig a little deeper and produce a Petite Canyon for us.

Many of you have already journeyed to the big one, so you have some sense of the sweeping grandeur of that magnificent natural resource.

Not only do the colors change with the movement of the sun, but the view of the great chasm is surprisingly different from each point. A panorama of stark beauty, haunting, overwhelming, much more than your senses can adequately measure. A wonderful thing. See it.

Mountains in every direction. Dust devils racing across the desert like tiny tornadoes, rising above the giant cactuses. Near Phoenix and Tucson, a blazing sun bakes more than it broils.

Those are hardy, tough, independent brown people in Arizona. Living in and tested by some of nature's great wonders.

In a frank discussion with students at a university seminar last week, Jerry Whelan may have told us a little about what kind of a governor he might be.

Whelan hasn't made any firm or final commitment to seek the governorship in 1978, but he is a likely candidate and the likely Democratic nominee. So listen closely:

"Politicians should reorder their priorities so their own election or re-election is of no importance," Whelan told the students.

"To hell with the consequences. If I don't get re-elected, too bad."

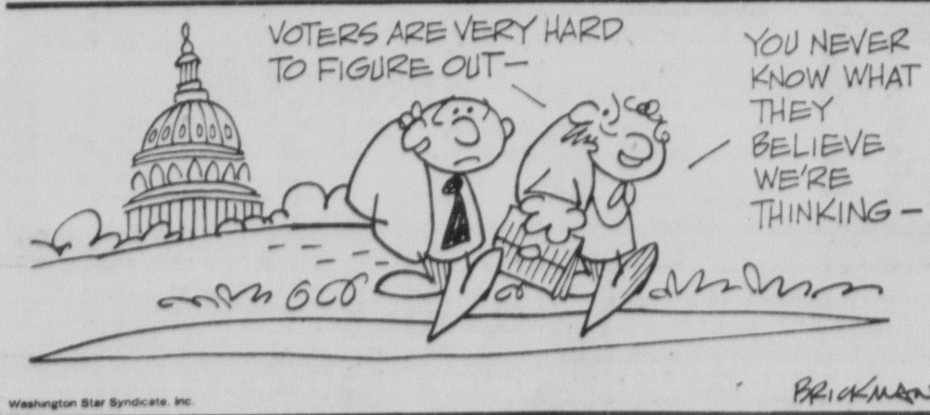

"Now, I haven't seen (many of those) kind of politicians. And I hate to report to you that I'm not at all sure you're looking at one. I don't know if I have that kind of courage."

One student wondered whether an elected official ought to vote his conscience or vote for his constituents' wishes.

"A classic philosophical conflict," Whelan acknowledged.

Fighting Kills 11 In Argentina

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Eleven left-wing guerrillas were killed early Sunday in two gun battles along a railroad line south of Buenos Aires, the army announced.

There also were reports of seven bullet-riddled bodies being found near the port city of La Plata, 20 miles south of the capital. They were believed to be the victims of right-wing death squads.

Among the bodies were those of a young couple. They had been burned and a poster on the woman's charred body said, "I killed Gen. Cardozo."

There was no identification of the body, but the note referred to Ana Maria Gonzalez, 18, accused of planting a bomb that killed the chief of the federal police, Gen. Cesario Cardozo on Friday. Miss Gonzalez was a close friend and fellow student of one of Cardozo's daughters. The pressure bomb had been placed under the police chief's mattress, and investigators said

Miss Gonzalez had visited the Cardozos' apartment Thursday night.

An army communique reporting the clash with guerrillas said combined military and police forces surrounded the bands of gunmen operating along a railroad line in Lomas de Zamora, 10 miles south of Buenos Aires.

There were two different battles in which the 11 guerrillas were killed, the army said, and there were no casualties among the security forces.

It reported that some weapons and "guerrilla literature" were seized by the troops.

The deaths brought to 528 the number of persons killed in political violence this year. The figure includes casualties from leftist and right-wing terrorist activities and from the stiff repression of guerrillas launched by security forces.

Royal Couple Leaves On Los Angeles Flight

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP) — King Carl XVI Gustav of Sweden and his bride, Queen Silvia, spent the first day of their honeymoon aboard a jetliner high above the Atlantic, Canada and the United States.

The royal couple caught Scandinavian Airlines System's regular Great Circle flight to Los Angeles the day after their wedding in Stockholm Saturday. The regal ceremony was attended by kings and presidents and watched by millions over television.

It had been expected in Sweden that the newlyweds would take a honeymoon safari in Africa.

Instead, they slipped into Copenhagen airport by private jet Sunday to board the California flight, declining to speak to reporters who spotted them.

The 30-year-old monarch married Silvia Renate Sommerlath, 32, daughter a West German businessman and a Spanish noblewoman, after a four-year courtship.

Cancer Link Not Told As Diabetes Drug Replaced

Washington (UPI) — The Food and Drug Administration has allowed the Upjohn Co. quietly to replace stocks of an oral diabetic drug contaminated by a cancer-causing Nitrosamine chemical without telling pharmacists or doctors why.

While stocks of the drug, Tolinase, will be replaced in retail outlets by June 25, there has been no attempt at recalling supplies already in the hands of patients.

Tolinase was the fourth most heavily used oral drug for treating diabetes in the United States last year.

Disclosure of contamination by the chemical N-6-MI and the replacement method was made by the Health Research Group, part of the Ralph Nader organization, which wrote to the FDA urging the contaminated drug be recalled and a warning issued to physicians, pharmacists and consumers.

A spokesman for Upjohn confirmed discovery of the contamination in early May, after a test of greater sensitivity was developed in April. After consultation with FDA the replacement of stocks in drug stores was ordered.

The Upjohn spokesman said FDA and private consultants "determined that the possibility of risk to health was quite remote" and no formal recall was made.

A spokesman for FDA said there had been no judgment of an imminent hazard to health and disclosure of the contamination could have had a worse affect on diabetes patients than contamination itself.

Contamination of 400 to 700 parts per billion of Nitrosamine was found, according to the FDA.

In 1973, the FDA banned meat-curing products contaminated with other

Nitrosamines at levels ranging from 5.6 parts per billion to 48.5 parts per billion.

Nitrosamines have been found to cause cancer in a number of tests. Up to 50 per cent of laboratory animals given large doses of the substances contracted cancers of the lung, liver, tongue, esophagus, larynx and trachea.

Dr. J. Richard Crout, director of the Bureau of Drugs, FDA, said the maximum dose of Tolinase contained Nitrosamine that "would be thousands of times smaller than the dose that caused cancer in rodents."

The Upjohn spokesman said pharmacists and physicians were told the drug was being replaced because of "chemical impurities." He said a new manufacturing process is used to avoid contamination, which apparently occurred because the Nitrosamine substance is close in chemical structure to the drug.

KEEP A GOOD THING GOING, AMERICA!

Vesco Spy Wilkins Claims U.S. Attorney Double-Crossed Him

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — A U.S. marshal says convicted felon James W. "Skip" Wilkins Jr. believed federal officials double-crossed him after sending him to Costa Rica to spy on fugitive financier Robert Vesco.

"Wilkins told us that the United States' attorney double-crossed him, that he hadn't gotten what he was promised and he was going public with it," Marshal Mickey Newberger said.

Tampa television station WFLA quoted Wilkins as saying the U.S. attorney's office in New York promised to pay him and help clear his criminal record in return for information on Vesco's actions, movements and associates. A similar report was carried by The New York Times.

Wilkins, 27, of Tampa, on parole for a state burglary conviction, said the government paid for his flights to New York and to Costa Rica in April but never compensated him for his work when he returned May 21.

"They did not deliver on anything," Wilkins told WFLA.

He said prosecutors have also balked at paying about $600 in expenses he incurred while on the mission.

U.S. Atty. Robert Fisk of New York confirmed that prosecutors in his office sponsored Wilkin's mission, according to WFLA and The Times.

"We did pay for the flight down there," WFLA quoted Fisk as saying. "After he got there, he was on his own."

The Times quoted Fisk as saying his office became involved after Wilkins approached the federal government with the spying plan.

Vesco fled to Costa Rica in 1972 before being indicted in a case involving an illegal $200,000 cash contribution to former President Nixon's re-election campaign.

Wilkins said the spying arrangement was made in January 1975 after he told Newberger that Vesco aides had contacted him about arranging some private music performances in Costa Rica, WFLA said.

At the time, Wilkins said he was promoting rock music groups in San Jose, Costa Rica, the television station reported.

Newberger said he passed the information on to federal officials who had Wilkins flown to New York under a federal subpoena.

Wilkins told WFLA that he was contacted by former U.S. Atty. James Rayhill of New York and by Rayhill's successor, Elliot Segor.

Wilkins said that Vesco found out about the spying mission before the two met in April.

He said Vesco forced him to send false information and then had him imprisoned in Costa Rica, WFLA reported. Wilkins said he spent 20 or 21 days in a small, unlighted cell with no sanitary facilities before he managed to smuggle a note to the U.S. embassy. He said the U.S. State Department arranged for his release.

U.S.'s Thai Installations Close

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — The U.S. military quietly closed its last two major installations in Thailand on Sunday.

A spokesman said there was "no turnover ceremony as such" as Americans left Utapao Air Base on the Gulf of Thailand, the staging center for U.S. B-52 bombing runs into Cambodia, Vietnam and Laos at the height of the Indochina war.

The military also shut down Ramasun electronic monitoring facility, the spokesman said.

Under a March 20 agreement with the Thai government, all U.S. servicemen must withdraw by July 20 except for 270 military advisers.

Student groups have demonstrated for enforcing the pact without changes by the government of Prime Minister Seni Pramoj, which took office after the agreement was reached and is more pro-American than the previous regime.

U.S. military personnel in Thailand were down to about 700 on Sunday — from a peak of 50,000 GIs during the Indochina war.

The Americans stationed at seven air bases and numerous other installations had included up to 2,000 at Utapao.

Ramasun, in northeast Thailand, was a center for monitoring radio communications of Communist forces in China and Southeast Asia.

After the war ended in 1975, Ramasun's operations mainly supplied Thailand with intelligence information.

The Thai military, reportedly unhappy with the civilian government's decision to make the American forces leave, lobbied for retention of some equipment to be run by Thai technicians.

The U.S. government reportedly has asked permission to refuel planes at a base in Thailand for military flights to the U.S. base on Diego Garcia Island in the Indian Ocean. Bhichai said he expected an agreement on that matter will be signed soon.

Required Pensions Expected — Bassett
Philadelphia (UPI) — A management consultant says the day is here to require industry to provide pensions for employees just as they are required to provide a minimum wage. Preston C. Bassett, vice president of Towers, Perrin, Forster and Crosby, says providing private retirement benefits would "alleviate... the burden" of current Social Security payments and would provide an employee with an "adequate (rather than minimum) standard of living on his retirement."

Kennedy Liked For No. 2 Spot

By LOUIS HARRIS

The two top choices among Democrats and independents to be Jimmy Carter's running mate for vice president are Sen. Ted Kennedy of Massachusetts and California Gov. Jerry Brown. In a test of 12 prominently mentioned Democratic prospects, Kennedy was the choice of 24 percent, followed by Brown at 19 percent.

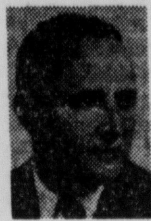

Tied for third place, at 10 percent, were Rep. Morris Udall of Arizona and Sen. Frank Church of Idaho, both of whom ran against Carter in the primaries. Sen. Adlai Stevenson of Illinois ended up in fifth place, preferred by 7 percent. The others tested — Gov. Ruben Askew, Sen. Birch Bayh, Sen. John Glenn, Rep. Barbara Jordan, Sen. Robert Byrd, Sen. Walter Mondale and Gov. Hugh Carey — all received 5 percent or less.

Kennedy and Brown have quite different patterns of appeal. Kennedy leads among blacks, skilled labor and union members, rank-and-file Democrats, those at the lower end of the economic scale, the less well educated and young people under 30. Brown is ahead in the West, among the college educated and professional people, with independent voters, among suburban dwellers, and among Catholic and Jewish voters.

If Carter were to make a choice on the basis of these findings, he would have clearcut alternatives in the selection of his running mate, assuming that either man would accept the nomination for vice president. By choosing Kennedy, Carter would be making a distinct bid for the old New Deal coalition vote in the North to balance his own clear appeal in the South and in small towns. By choosing Brown, Carter would be adding strength in the West, where he did poorly in the primaries, but he would also be making a bid for the better educated, more affluent, independent, suburban vote, where he is also weak.

In effect, a Kennedy choice would be a bow toward more traditional Democratic politics, while a Brown choice would mean that Carter was moving toward the newer, more independent groups in politics.

The other potential vice presidential candidates also show definable patterns of support. Udall brings support from the East Coast, young people, the college educated and professional groups, unions, liberals and Jewish voters. Church would help shore up Carter in the West, and also among business executives, white-collar workers and independent voters. Stevenson's pattern of strength runs to his native Midwest, and in big cities and among older voters, conservatives, independents and those who voted for former President Nixon in 1972. Of the five top choices, Stevenson shows relative strength among conservatives, while Udall is most attractive to the liberals.

Louis Harris Kennedy Favored

However, none of these political criteria may be that crucial when the time comes to pick a vice presidential candidate. It is equally important that the running mate be compatible with the man who may become President. And it is clear that he should have qualifications to serve as President if the occasion arises. The chances of a vice president one day succeeding to the presidency are high, indeed, if past recent history is a guide.

However, it is ironic that the top two choices of Democrats and independents for Jimmy Carter's running mate are both Catholics. In 1960, when John F. Kennedy, a Catholic, was nominated, he felt the vice presidential nomination should be offered to a southerner where sentiment against a Catholic in the White House was strongest. The electorate appears to feel some 16 years later that Carter, the strongest southern Democratic aspirant since the Civil War, should reverse the process Kennedy followed.

Between June 9 and 14, a national cross section of 1,044 Democrats and independent voters was surveyed in person. The Harris Survey asked:

"Here is a card with the names of some people who have been mentioned as possible vice presidential nominees on a ticket with Jimmy Carter as the Democratic nominee for President. Who would you prefer as the Democratic nominee for vice president?"

POSTCARD by Stan Delaplaine

"If you had to be changed to an animal, what kind of animal would you prefer to be?"

That question was asked by Oxford University. They asked it in a letter to the Editor. The English write more to their newspapers than we do. They write about sin and the destruction of "the old ways, which I might say were better for all."

They write about birds: "Sir: Last night while walking my dog near Tottenham Square, I heard the first cuckoo of the season. The call was most clear ..."

So a lot of people answered the letter from Oxford U.

Of the men who answered, nine of ten wanted to be a horse. Of the women, 97 percent said they would choose to be a cat.

Now if all these people got their wishes, the sun would soon set forever on the British empire. There is no way the world can get along with a society of horses and cats.

English men and women should get together and decide on a mutually acceptable animal. Oxford University ought to quit being a trouble maker.

Summer came at last to Snug Harbor. Suburban chicks pack the breadwinner off to the office and go out and play tennis.

"Tennis is good for you," they say. "It really does wonderful things for your hips."

The ones who say this have pretty good legs to start with. For them it's a pleasure to wear those cute white tennis shorts. Women who don't have good legs, say: "Tennis is a bore. I don't see what anyone sees in it. I mean just hitting a ball around, for goodness sake!"

These are the warm and cheerful days when the household rises early. The cats meowing for food. Children snacking up the morning cereal. Crackle! Pop!

The early bird is up, looking for the early worm. Scientists have studied the earthworm. This wiggly fellow is able to learn more between 8 at night and midnight than he can between 8 in the morning and noon.

I'm an early bird for work. I work industriously until noon. Then I fall apart. I turn on about 8. I never learned much between 8 p.m. and midnight except that's the time of day you can spend a lot of money.

The worm, learning from 8 to midnight, still does not learn to get up late in the morning. Thus he is snacked up by the early bird. Who cares? We're better off without such stupid fellows.

In order to keep up this industry in the morning, I went back on vitamin pills. For a long time I took Vitamin C — to keep from having colds. I took Vitamin B which is good for a number of things. Hangovers for one, though I've learned to be cautious and I don't get such things.

Then there's Vitamin E which turns you into a sex fiend. I took a few of those — not too many. I didn't want to be run down and shot by an angry posse.

Not to go into details but — well, you can take a barrel of Vitamin E pills and still be safe. They have no more recoil than an aspirin tablet.

Though the tennis season is here, and I can hear the balls go "thunk, thunk" outside on the courts, I have resisted this drain of energy.

Sometimes people go to their reward while still improving their backhand. People are seldom troubled with a cautious life of vitamins and early to work.

Doctors have found a remarkably successful medication that actually helps shrink swelling of hemorrhoidal tissues when infected and inflamed. And it does more. In many cases it gives relief for hours from pain and itching in these tissues. Tests by doctors proved this true in many cases. The medication used was Preparation H. And no prescription is needed for Preparation H. Ointment or suppositories.

Arid Winds Bring Bug Visitors

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

The hot, south winds that brought the threat of drought to Nebraska also brought some unwelcome visitors — greenbugs. A greenbug is an aphid from a species that seems to have carried women's lib a little too far.

"I have never seen a male greenbug. I understand they can be produced under artificial conditions, but I don't know of anyone who ever saw one in the field," said Dr. Dave Keith, an extension entomologist at the University of Nebraska for 10 years.

"The winged females that come in on the south wind are poor flyers, but the wind seems to bring in a batch in the end of May or early June every year and again a second crop in July. The July flight is so great that it smears the windshields of low flying crop spray planes," he said.

The females are parthenogenetic, which means they can reproduce without mating with a male. Another unusual feature of this tiny animal is that it gives birth to young rather than laying eggs.

"The egg actually is there. It hatches inside of the mother who turns out four, five or six of the little girls every day. The first generation that is born in Nebraska after the flight from Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas never grow wings. But the third, fourth and several other generations seem to produce wings."

"We are not quite sure what triggers the growth of wings. It could be crowding on the plants, it may be the amount of light during a 24-hour day or a host of other environmental factors we haven't detected," Keith said.

Farmers and city gardeners get greenbugs confused with other aphids. The greenbug is a light green color except for a single dark green stripe or long wide spot in the middle of its back. The tiny pipes which all aphids have are black at the tip on a greenbug.

A corn leaf aphid is a blue-green and its legs are dark, along with the dark pipes which aid identification. The corn leaf aphid appears on corn but doesn't cause problems, so save your money and don't spray.

"This year has really been the year of the aphid. Every kind of aphid is doing well this year. Greenbugs do come into Lincoln and feed on blue grass, but cause no problems to most city plant life," Keith said.

The greenbug was first discovered in Italy in 1852 and was observed in Virginia in 1882. It currently is rated as the most destructive insect pest in the central and south western states, destroying more than 50 million bushels of grain a year.

Until 1968 the insect worked on small grains, but for some unknown reason it suddenly developed an appetite for grain sorghum in Arizona, California, Colorado, Kansas, Nebraska, New Mexico, Oklahoma, South Dakota and Texas.

"We are not sure what happened. The theory of parthenogenetic birth is that the genes in the mother are identical to those in the daughter. There must have been a mutation somewhere to produce the sudden change in appetite. There had been early reports around 1900 of greenbug damage to grain sorghum, but none until 1968," Keith said.

Some Live On Corn

Scientists are worried about another mutation causing the insect to decide on corn as a home. They do live on corn, but apparently don't reproduce there yet.

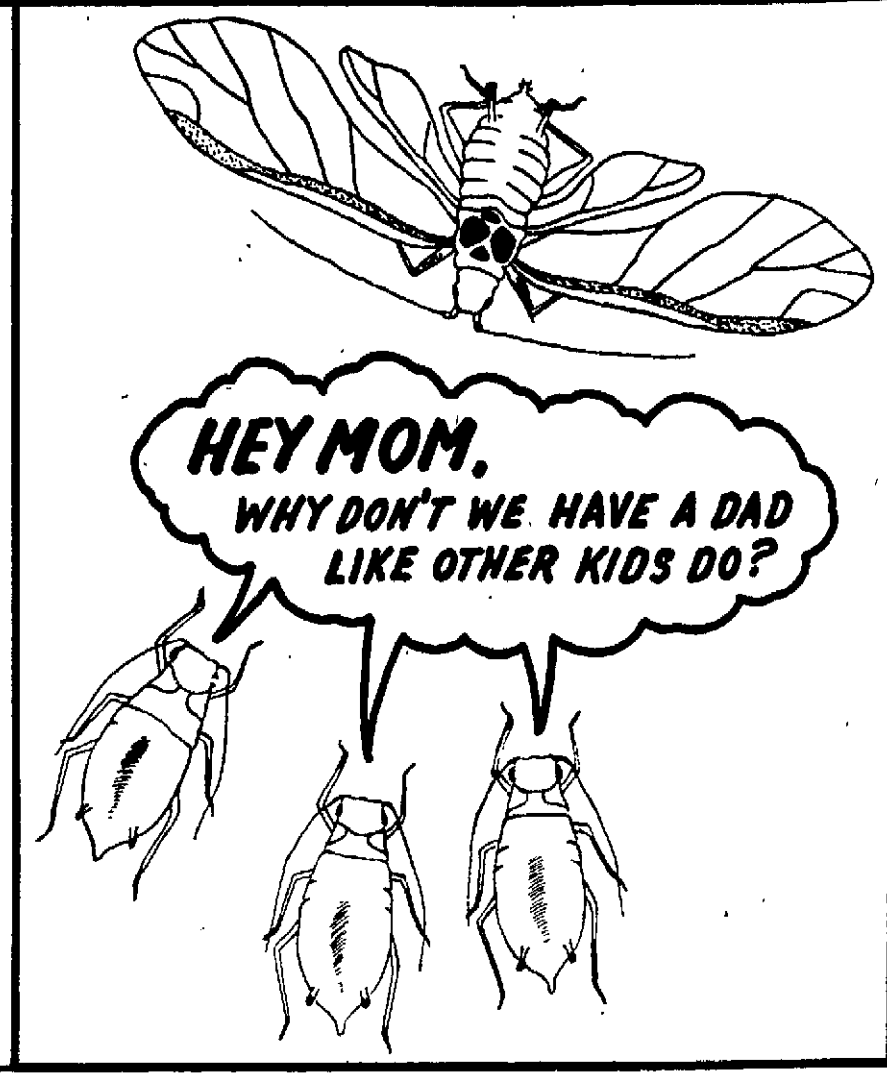

"We have had some reports of greenbugs that are resistant to some chemicals, but so far this year the sprays seem to work well. We had greenbugs on virtually every sorghum plant in the state earlier, but now they seem to be thinning out. I expect to see a second crop in July," Keith said.

Non-chemical controls appear to offer promise. Plant breeders have produced greenbug resistant varieties of grain sorghum which were released to farmers for the first time this year.

"We have had reports of some complete failure, but most of the new varieties have worked out pretty well. They will at least reduce the need for expensive chemicals if not eliminate the need altogether," Keith said.

Another hope is a tiny wasp that stings the young greenbug and leaves an egg to hatch and eat out the greenbug — leaving a mummy on the plant. Once the rate of parasitism reaches 20 to 25%, the wasps can be counted on to make chemical control unnecessary within 7 to 10 days. Lady beetles also eat a few greenbugs, but control efforts with lady beetles haven't been successful, apparently because they won't stay in a field where they are put.

June Retail Beef Price Said Less

Denver, Colo. — Average retail beef prices in early June were down slightly from a month earlier and were sharply less than a year ago at this time, the American National Cattlemen's Assn. (ANCA) reported today.

The association's monthly 19-city survey of super markets indicated that the national average price of five representative beef cuts on June 10 was $1.47 per pound, compared with $1.49 on May 13. In early June last year, the comparable five-cut average price was $1.72 per pound.

After several months of decreases, average retail beef prices rose in May, but then there has been a leveling off or decrease during the past month, said Wray Finney, ANCA President.

He noted that there was relatively little change in average cattle and wholesale beef prices from May to June.

"Supplies of beef have continued at relatively large levels in recent weeks," Finney said, "and this has meant that beef is at least one food which is lower in price than a year ago."

In the latest ANCA survey, ground beef, round steak and chuck roast prices were down somewhat from the previous month, while average prices of sirloin and T-bone steak increased slightly. The increase in steak prices was attributed to an increase in demand with the summer cook-out season.

Among cities in the survey, 11 showed decreases in average prices during the past month, six showed increases and two reported no change.

Finney pointed out that there continue to be differences in average prices among the different cities. Differences in transportation costs and the amount of price "specializing" at a given time cause some of the variation. In addition, there are significant differences in retail store labor and other costs among different cities.

Spotlight on Agriculture

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

An Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) booklet aimed at curbing accidents with beef cattle is causing much laughter in rural areas but doing little to prevent accidents.

"Don't fall into a manure pit. Manure pits can be dangerous," the booklet advises.

"A cow with a calf may become upset and trample you," is also good advice, but anyone who ever worked with cattle learns that pretty fast or gets trampled.

The booklet lists authors from one of the nation's better agricultural land grant schools, but I'm sure someone in Washington must be responsible for the first grade primer style of writing.

The wording seems aimed at an elementary reading class about to make its first visit to a farm. Advice such as, "Try not to go into a pen with a cow and calf," is good advice for visitors but impossible for a rancher or farmer.

The work seems to indicate that the writer doesn't know most farmers and ranchers are college-educated people who successfully operate businesses worth at least a half million dollars each.

Anyone capable of operating a successful farming or ranching operation is capable of comprehending a booklet beyond the "See Dick and Jane" 1st grade reader.

Perhaps some well-meaning bureaucrat was trying to get back to basic English after struggling with the official Washington gobbledegook but overdid it a bit.

Consumer demand for dairy products seems to be improving. Sales of dairy products in the first quarter 1976 were up almost 3% from 1975 because of strong cheese sales and a small gain in fluid milk sales.

Ice cream sales were up 8% in 1975, the largest jump for any dairy product. Per capita consumption hit 18.8 pounds, well above the 17.5 consumed in 1973 and 1974.

This increase in demand has caused a slight increase in price to which farmers are quickly responding to by increasing production of milk.

Consumer groups who have been complaining that some cooperatives have been able to get milk prices above minimum levels set in federal milk marketing orders should be reminded that every labor union in the country has managed to get wages above the federal minimum wage law as well.

You can't feed a family on the minimum wage law earnings for a 40-hour week. You can't feed a dairy herd on the minimum milk price law earnings for the 70-hour week that dairy farmers work either.

William Staiger, executive vice president of the California Cattlemen's Association, warned farmers and ranchers that they are coming under the critical scrutiny of virtually all of mankind.

Staiger warned that property owners are losing control over their land via regulations applied by state and federal governments instead of having their land taken over by government.

Land use planning is still a dirty word to most rural landowners. Staiger warned that they should become involved in it because they cannot have an effect on the rules from the outside by saying "you can't do this to me." They can and they will.

Bad rails that can't handle grain cars are costing farmers at least 5 cents for every bushel of grain they sell.

A half-completed rehabilitation program funded by the State of Iowa on a Rock Island track serving 30 elevators already has added a nickel a bushel to the price of grain in the area, according to local elevator managers.

Local elevators have invested thousands of dollars in new equipment for loading unit trains which would have been useless if the tracks hadn't been repaired.

Many branch rail lines throughout the nation are in such bad shape that they won't carry a full hopper car of grain safely.

Every time a rail car loaded with grain derails it costs consumers and farmers money. Well maintained railroads are essential to this nation. It makes sense for some assistance to be made to railroad companies in trouble.

The idea of a green belt of farms around a city protected by tight zoning laws to keep the land in agriculture so city folks

Standards Have Little Beef Effect

Omaha (AP) — About the same quality meat is being sold by supermarkets and restaurants as before U.S. Department of Agriculture standards went into effect, most retailers, researchers, meat packers and USDA officials interviewed said.

Nearly all those interviewed said there has been little drop in the price of choice beef, a development some proponents of the new standards predicted would follow the changes.

Dana C. Bradford, an Omaha attorney who represents the National Association of Meat Purveyors and the National Restaurant Association, disagreed with the majority views on the effect of the new meat quality standards.

"From the standpoint of the purveyors, many customers have been complaining about the quality of beef they're buying," Bradford said.

At the time of the May, 1975, U.S. District Court trial in Omaha, some USDA officials and others estimated that from 10 to 12 percent of the beef rated in the high good category under old standards would be rated choice under the new standards.

Robert Rust, extension meat specialist at Iowa State University, said those estimates may have been too high.

Rust said figures for April and March, the first two full months under the new regulations, showed only a small increase in choice cattle, compared with the same period for 1974 and 1975.

Weekly Grain Report

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

Weather problems in the grain-producing states are having a strong effect on the grain market, showing up in the form of better prices at elevators.

The nation's supply of grain will be adequate, but our overseas customers will have to pay through the nose for grains of all kinds unless rains resume soon enough to make a good crop.

A number of other nations also are having weather trouble this year.

Russia is reported to have weather problems in its major grain producing areas. France, a major wheat exporter, is having a lot of dry weather cut into their crop. Australia has such poor conditions that they are slaughtering thousands of cattle for their hides.

India and the Asian areas seem to be in pretty good shape. Their limited cash reserves wouldn't be adequate to buy grain in a world that appears to be moving into a tight grain supply situation.

Good rains will produce a drop in grain prices in the markets controlled by speculators, but may not come in time to produce a general recovery in the nation's grain production.

Two things to look for when buying central air conditioning

One of the most important things that we consider in making any purchase is the cost. That's important. But equally important is quality. The seal shown above is your assurance of quality in central air conditioners. It is the Certification Seal of the Air Conditioning and Refrigeration Institute (ARI). In order to show this seal, a manufacturer must submit specification data to ARI. ARI engineers then verify it. If the unit does not meet these specifications, the manufacturer must either re-rate the model or withdraw it from his line. Failure to do one or the other of these alternatives results in the withdrawal by ARI of their certification of that manufacturer's entire line.

What the ARI Seal means to you

First of all, the ARI Seal means that you can quickly determine the EER (Energy Efficiency Ratio). This is the measurement which tells how much energy is being consumed in the operation of the unit. Your Lincoln Electric System recommends a rating of 7 or better.

EER Rating	KWH Usage Per Season
6	4,000
7.5	3,200
Difference	800

By saving 800 KWH per season, a Lincoln resident who pays 3.34¢ per KWH would realize a savings of $26.72 per season.

Secondly, ARI publishes a directory of all makes and models which are certified under this program. If you have any questions as to the certification of any central air conditioner that you are thinking of buying, you may contact Lincoln Electric System and our Customer Service Representatives will be glad to provide information to you regarding this unit.

Cocaine Found Floating

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Thirteen pounds of cocaine, believed to be part of a $40 million cache of the illegal drug seized last week, has been found bobbing in the water near a Tampa pier, U.S. Customs officers said.

The cocaine, worth an estimated $2.9 million in street sales, was found Saturday near a banana boat on which customs and federal drug agents found 170 pounds of uncut cocaine on Thursday, officials said.

A customs spokesman said the 13 pounds, contained in small plastic bags, probably was thrown out a porthole after the raid began, and was carried under the pier by the tide.

The Liberian-registered boat Ea, which authorities say has been used three times in the past two years to smuggle cocaine, is being held at the pier while Drug Enforcement Administration agents search for six to eight smugglers who escaped when the contraband was confiscated.

The seizure was called by officials one of the largest ever, and by far the largest by the U.S. Customs Service.

Canadian Pilots Out On Strike, Flights Diverted

MONTREAL (AP) — Canadian pilots went on strike Sunday morning, claiming airport safety was endangered by a dispute between the air controllers association and the government.

Most of Canada's 2,300 air controllers were reported on the job, following a court injunction against their threatened strike.

Although airports were open, Air Canada said some flights were being diverted to the nearest U.S. airport where buses awaited passengers.

The airline cancelled all of its domestic flights and those to the United States, Bermuda and the Caribbean.

Youth 'Gangs' Causing Concern In Greenwich Village

©The New York Times

New York — They are boys and girls of 12, 13, 14 or 15. They spend their afternoons and evenings lolling in the little parks in Greenwich Village, smoking marijuana, drinking beer, playing cards and chess and sometimes glaring at passers-by and cursing them.

Occasionally, they become more rowdy, shooting off firecrackers, overturning garbage cans and, not infrequently, chasing and beating up younger children and homosexuals.

For months they have been an annoyance to residents of the quiet, pleasant streets of the Village. But that attitude among many people turned to terror last weekend when a 41-year-old man was stabbed to death and 10 youths were seen running away.

For those who felt this terror, it hardly mattered that the police quickly arrested a 14-year-old and said the slaying had been a confrontation of strangers and not a gang attack.

Spreading fears have prompted community meetings that focus on security demands for more police protection and even some talk that represents a siege mentality in the face of a growing gang menace.

But the youngsters who hang out in the Village parks say they are being falsely portrayed as vicious gangs, like those that roam decaying sections of Brooklyn and the Bronx with knives, guns and chains.

The Village youths gather in loosely knit, often leaderless groups that, they contend, hardly qualify for the name "gangs." Many of the youngsters come from middle-class families and talk less of street machismo than of going to college someday.

Police statistics on crime in the Village tend to support the youths' contentions. There have been increases in petty crimes and vandalism, but no recent upsurge of violent crimes — despite reports to the contrary about attacks on women and children.

But the statistics have not served to allay the fears of many residents — primarily because most people don't know about the statistics and, even when they do, they suspect the police are downplaying the incidence of crime.

Most important, the initial reports suggested erroneously that Thomas McCready, an actor who had earned a black belt in karate, had been the victim of a gang assault — and that is what is being fearfully repeated by many people in the community.

"We are in a state of siege," one woman declared at a hastily called meeting on "security problems" in Westbeth, the artists' housing development, across the intersection of Bethune and Washington Streets from where the stabbing took place.

During the meeting, the artists discussed forming a tenants patrol, circulated a petition demanding that a foot patrolman be assigned in the area and said that they planned to march on the station house of the local police unit Thursday afternoon.

In a letter that is to be presented to the police and city officials with the petition, Joya Staack, chairman of the Committee for Neighborhood Safety at Westbeth, wrote that McCready's "murder is the latest event in a series of robberies, beatings, muggings and vandalism."

the local precinct, said, however, that department statistics indicated there had actually been a slight decrease in robberies and assaults in the area in the last year.

He said that he did not see "a terribly bad gang situation . . . a roving gang where you have children and adults being beaten up every day . . . we don't have that."

Mrs. Staack, like other residents who were questioned, could recall the specifics of only two other recent assaults: one slightly north of the Village, in which several youths jumped on two men at Eighth Avenue and 17th Street for no apparent reason, and another in which a man, apparently complaining that youths in the Westbeth courtyard were making too much noise, shoved a small boy and, in return, was struck with skateboards by several other boys.

Several men and women maintained that some women and children were being terrorized by young teen-agers, but they said that they feared there would be reprisals if they were to make formal complaints to the police.

"There is a feeling of fear when you walk past a gang," Mrs. Staack said, referring to the youths in the parks. She added:

"I don't know if it's because of the rumors that spread or this kind of macho, hostile attitude they have. On the other hand, I don't think we've been fair to the kids."

Peter Shalleck, the managing director of Westbeth, said that, at a meeting with about 75 neighborhood youngsters earlier in the week, the youths seemed gripped about the McCready death and contended that they had nothing to do with it. He said the youngsters had formed a committee to repaint parts of Westbeth that had been "supergraffitied" and that some indicated that they would like to help out on tenant patrols.

In the last six months, Shalleck said, there has been an increase in graffiti, general vandalism and "big kids ripping off little kids." But he added:

"They're not killers. The killing was not typical or symptomatic of the real situation here. In my heart I don't believe these kids are bad kids. There are a few, but they're certainly in the minority."

Collision Mars Ship Race In Tall Ships Sailing Event

By The Associated Press

The Tall Ships bicentennial race from Bermuda to Newport, R.I., got underway Sunday but was marred almost immediately by collisions involving six ships, including two of the largest in the fleet. Two ships were forced to turn back.

Harbor Radio in Hamilton, Bermuda, said a cadet aboard one of the ships was taken to a hospital for X rays, but his injuries were not believed serious.

One collision involved the 350-foot Spanish topsail schooner Juan Sebastian De El Cano and the 338-foot full rigged ship Libertad from Argentina. Bermuda Harbor Radio said the Juan Sebastian suffered a broken foremast and had to turn back. The Libertad, which continued, reported two torn sails, damaged lifeboats and a smashed rail.

The other collision, authorities said, involved the 178-foot Gazela Primeiro, a Portuguese vessel now owned by the Philadelphia Maritime Museum, and the 269-foot Romanian ship Mircea. The Gazela Primeiro reported the top section of her main mast was broken and she turned back. There were no reports of damage to the Mircea, which sailed on.

In a third mishap, a British destroyer and an Italian yawl reported brushing each other but both continued in the race.

The collisions occurred about 3 p.m. EDT at the start of the race by 18 tall-masted ships and more than 80 smaller vessels heading northeast to Newport. From there they will cruise to New York City for a giant parade under sail on July 4th.

The Coast Guard Rescue and Information Center in New York City said its training bark Eagle, host ship for the Operation Sail 1976, confirmed the two collisions. The Coast Guard said two other ships, the 70-foot Italian yawl Stella Polare and the British destroyer H.M.S. Eskimo, were involved in a minor collision. Both ships continued in the race.

The skippers of all the ships had been warned before the start of the race to stay clear of the Tall Ships, regardless of which ship might have the right of way. It takes ships the size of the San Sebastian De El Cano and the Libertad 20 minutes to tack.

The weather was hazy but there was no visibility problem for the ships. Light winds of about 14 to 15 knots prevailed.

The passage to Newport is less a race than an exercise for 3,000 sail training cadets from all over the world.

Meanwhile, the schooner Sir Winston Churchill, crewed by 42 British women, joined the starting line on its way to the United States and the 200th anniversary of its breakway from the British crown.

For most of the stars of this show, the giant sails were hoisted by cadets in training for the maritime or merchant services.

But when Capt. Cedric Collis, a former Royal Navy officer, shouted out his "hoist the mizzen, hoist the mizzen," the crew were young women as intent on building character as well as becoming mariners.

Among the ships in the race is the Churchill and her largely female crew. Though her masts stand 100 feet above the water, she is not in the racing class of the big square-rigged ships, but the type of training on board illustrates one of the purposes of the race.

The Sail Training Association in Great Britain owns and operates the Churchill, signing on young men and women for two week cruises intended to build character as well as nautical ability.

"It's a different world, I guess," said Jan Hammond, now making her second trip as a Churchill trainee. "You can find yourself on a trip like this . . . you get much more confidence in yourself."

While on Bermuda, the girls found themselves at the center of lavish attention from other crews.

Investigative Journalists Group Vows To Find Reporter's Slayer

Indianapolis (UPI) — Journalists from across the nation made plans Sunday to find the slayer of Don Bolles, the Arizona Republic reporter killed while doing an investigative story.

Bolles died last week of injuries suffered from a bomb that exploded when he started his car.

Robert Greene, Suffolk editor of the Long Island, N.Y. Newsday, was appointed chairman of a task force to consider how the Investigative Reporters & Editors Group, which held its first national conference here, should respond to Bolles' slaying.

The IRE members adopted a resolution to "do all we can as reporters to bring justice to the person or persons" responsible for Bolles' death.

The IRE also established a memorial award in Bolles' honor.

Any newpersons who are employed by the CIA, FBI or any other law enforcement agency ought to resign their new jobs immediately, the IRE said in another resolution.

"The public won't know when the police stop and journalism starts because of the journalists being involved in exchange of ideas and information with law enforcement agents," Ben Bagdikian, nationally known press critic, had warned Saturday.

Not everybody at the conference agreed with him. Seymour Hersh, New York Times, was quoted as saying all investigative reporters trade information with law officers, because they must to get the story.

"There are never too many good, solid investigative reporters for the systematic analysis of government operations," said closing speaker Clark Mollenhoff, Washington reporter for the Des Moines Register and Tribune.

He warned, however, that some brash reporters are flirting with libel.

A 'Deep Throat' Problem

"Hardly a week passes that I do not hear of some new incident of an editor with a 'Deep Throat' problem. Young and inexperienced reporters are turning up confidential sources on a wide range of exotic political shenanigans that would amount to libel if printed," he said.

Mollenhoff called it a mistake to think that just two Washington Post reporters or even the press alone forced a president to resign. He said people like Judge John Sirica, former Sen. Sam Ervin, D-N.C., and others did their part.

"I think the profession is going to feel our impact in terms of better reporting, and if our profession feels it — the organization and the enthusiasm shown by these people — it's going to have to have impact on our society," said Harley Bierce, one of the organizers of the conference.

Bierce, of the Indianapolis Star, joined with Star colleague Myrta Pulliam, Ron Koziol, Chicago Tribune, and Paul Williams of Ohio State University to organize the conference.

The IRE here also established a five-member ethics committee and voted to establish a service center at OSU for investigative reporting, operative by July, 1977.

Tentative plans for the center include a librarian, a newsletter of investigative stories, a directory of technical and legal experts and an information bank.

Take the bite out of your grocery bill.

Number 3 in a series designed to help you save money.

1. Shop the specials, but make your list at home and stick to it. Make your own list of current food prices in a notebook you can carry around to make sure specials are really specials.
2. Spend some time comparing brands and reading labels. Give house brands a try as higher price is not always synonymous with higher quality. And, don't let an attractive package fool you into thinking you're getting more.
3. Some things are cheaper to buy prepared: Frozen orange juice, frozen or canned lima beans, peas, cherries, instant coffee, pork and beans, chocolate frosting mix, some cake mixes (yellow and Devil's food) and brownie mix.
4. Convenience foods save meal planning and cooking from scratch, but are the costs really worth it to you? With just a little extra effort, you can make a double recipe and freeze for later. Spending some time cooking and freezing for the following week can save your family a lot of money in this way alone.
5. Buy large or medium sizes for yourself and share the cost of case lots with agreeable neighbors.
6. Plan your meals around food that's in season, but be flexible so you can substitute an item when you see the price is right.
7. At the end of a supermarket day, you can get bargains on items like bar-b-qued chicken, high quality aged meats and bread.
8. About meat: It's cheaper to buy one large chicken than two small ones. Fish is a much better buy when not breaded or prepared in any other way. Beef is highest in July and August the big months for summer cookouts. Buy a couple of months ahead of time and freeze. Steaks will keep for one year, hamburger for 3 months.

9. Buy the lower grades of canned fruits and vegetables if they're going to be used in cooking and not eaten right from the can.
10. Experiment with inexpensive foreign cooking. Dishes from the Orient, Mexico, Italy, Spain and Greece are especially suited to a budget.
11. Leave children at home if at all possible. They not only increase impulse buying, but energetic children can be a distraction from watching as the checker totals up your groceries.

These guidelines to spending can save you a lot of money. Money saved on things you need is money saved for things you want.

Intervenorors Get Request Okayed

Omaha (AP) — Intervenorors in the Omaha School District integration case have been granted their request for an expedited appeal of the plan approved for the district.

Attorneys for both the school district and the intervenorors agreed that the granting of an expedited hearing by the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals does not necessarily mean that any changes incorporated into the plan would take effect in September.

However, attorneys said it is possible that if the court agrees with the intervenorors that changes are needed in the plan, the changes could go into effect in September.

The intervenorors sought the expedited hearing because the school district faces court-ordered desegregation this fall. U.S. District Court Judge Albert G. Schatz earlier this year approved a plan submitted by the school district but incorporating modifications of the U.S. Justice Department.

The intervenorors — seven black parents and 25 of their children — contend, among other things, that the plan places too great a burden on black students and exempts first graders from racial balance reassignment.

The school district had argued against the expedited hearing. No hearing date has been set.

A letter to attorneys from the Circuit Court clerk's office said the school district had 25 days to file its brief on the intervenorors' objections to the approved plan. The intervenorors then have seven days to respond.

McCollister Critical Of Pharmacy Stance

Washington (UPI) — Rep. John Y. McCollister, R-Neb., said Sunday the Department of Health, Education and Welfare has been "particularly insensitive to the needs of pharmacists."

McCollister commented in announcing the appointment of a Bellevue pharmacist to a HEW advisory committee.

McCollister said John A. Johnson would serve on the department's Pharmaceutical Reimbursement Advisory Committee which advises HEW on prescription drug payments made under Medicare, Medicaid and other federal health programs.

Johnson is on the National Association of Retail Druggists Executive Committee and is the Nebraska Pharmaceutical Association's Legislative Committee chairman.

McCollister said HEW has been "particularly insensitive to the needs of pharmacists" which was "just another example of big government's lack of concern for small businessmen."

The 2nd District congressman cited proposed HEW regulations which would establish the maximum prescription drug costs eligible for reimbursement under federal programs.

"The proposed regulations would bury small businessmen in government red tape," McCollister said. "And it's so unnecessary."

McCollister said half of the independent retail pharmacies in the nation recorded less than 5% net profit on their transactions.

"We're using a sledgehammer," McCollister said, "to swat a gnat."

Five Rare Tigers Die; Officials Seek Cause

Omaha (AP) — Henry Doory Zoo officials Sunday were trying to determine what caused five of the world's rarest breed of tiger to collapse and die here Saturday.

Dr. Lee Simmons, zoo director, said three male and two female Sumatran tigers died between 24 and 48 hours after being wormed with a drug also given to five polar bears and five orangutans.

"They've all received that drug a number of times before and none of the other animals who were given it has shown any symptoms," Simmons said. "But right now that is our best guess. It's the only thing we've got to go on."

Simmons said the tigers showed no symptoms of a bad reaction to the medication prior to their death. A sixth tiger, a female, was given the same medication but did not appear abnormal.

About seven of the cats remain in the United States and about 200 are believed to be left in the world, Simmons said.

'Missing' Boy Is Found

Omaha (UPI) — An Omaha boy who was last seen by his mother June 10 was found with his father in Albion, police said Sunday.

Police said Albion police confirmed Sunday that David

Bader, 13, was with his father.

The boy's mother, Delores Hartman, told police her son went to visit a brother in Omaha June 10, but she found out later her son never arrived.

Dedication Set For Nemaha Museum

Auburn — Plans have been completed for dedication ceremonies July 4 for the new Nemaha Valley Museum. The services will be the highlight of the Bicentennial in Auburn. A parade and old fashioned ice cream social are also on the agenda for Sunday, July 4.

School Issue Facing Voters

Emerson — Voters in the Dixon County School District of the Emerson-Hubbard community schools will go to the polls Tuesday to cast ballots on a proposed $180,000 school bond issue. The funds, if approved, would add a seventh and eighth grade facility to the present junior-senior high school building, a guidance area and a multi-purpose area.

Hinkle Chosen As Albion School Head

Albion — Nelson Hinkle, of Benkleman has been named superintendent of the Albion public schools. He has served as head of the Benkleman schools for two years. Prior to going to Benkleman, he served five years as senior high principal at Gothenburg and Red Cloud and taught and coached at Laurel and Papillion.

Meyer Named Mayor Of Palmer

Range Contest Winners Told

Halsey (UPI) — Kerry Keys of Elsmere and Joann Gocke of Waco won top honors in competition at the Nebraska range youth camp. Keys was selected best in range judging, notebooks, participation and final exams. The Middle Niobrara Natural Resources District awarded Keys a silver buckle for taking first place. Miss Gocke received a plaque for finishing second.

Young Farmers Going On Tour

Ansel — With the Ansel chapter of the Nebraska Young Farmers and Ranchers Educational Association acting as host, the NYFRE tour will be held in Custer County July 30-31. The first day's itinerary includes stops to view a hay demonstration, traveling gun irrigation setup, crossbred cow-calf operation, swine confinement farrow-to-finish unit, and a program and dinner at the Broken Bow Country Club. The second day will include visits to Sargent Well Drilling, an irrigation grain crop farm, and a livestock operation featuring artificial insemination.

Engineers Will Meet To Study Papio Plan

Omaha (AP) — Five engineers from across the country will meet July 7 at the Omaha City-Douglas County building to begin reviewing the Papio flood control program.

A review was proposed by the Papio Valley Preservation Association, which says some of the dams recommended by the Army Corps of Engineers aren't needed to thwart flooding.

Corps officials said they don't object to the review, but said they won't be bound by its findings.

Colonel Russell Glenn, district engineer, said the corps was authorized by Congress to solve the flood problems, and its staff has spent years studying the situation.

The corps' recommendations have been supported by a year-long, state-ordered study, so Glenn said the corps won't be bound by the findings a few authorities gathered in a few days.

Douglas County Commissioner Daniel Lynch said the review will not delay the construction of dams because he said no new work can be started until spending is reauthorized by Congress. Lynch said results of the review will be submitted to Congress when reauthorization is considered, probably about October.

Whether the results will have any effect on the project is not known.

Radio Personality Dies In Semi-Truck Collision

By The Associated Press
A car-truck collision Friday took the life of Mrs. Marvin (Betty) Kroeger, 49, a radio personality and news reporter at Schuyler.

Collax County Sheriff Richard Kruse said Mrs. Kroeger was turning left off Highway 30 onto a county road about three miles east of Schuyler when her car was struck broadside by a semi-trailer truck. The truck was driven by Roger Jungman, 22, of Atkinson, who escaped serious injury.

Mrs. Kroeger conducted a daily news program from Schuyler for Columbus radio station KJSK and formerly was an area correspondent for KTTT in Columbus. For many years she was a stringer for the Omaha Bureau of The Associated Press.

The 1976 Nebraska highway fatality toll stands at 139 compared with 141 on this date one year ago.

Omaha Man Found Drowned In Overflowing Bathtub Accident

Omaha (AP) — Omaha police said Bernard T. Schulte, 53, of Omaha, was found drowned late Saturday in his bathtub. Police said the drowning appeared to be accidental.

Reports show Schulte's roommate, Chester Gempka, went to investigate water running to lower floors from the upstairs bathroom about 5 p.m.

Gempka told police he and a neighbor broke into the locked bathroom and found Schulte.

Acting County Coroner James Keenan said an autopsy will be performed.

Brown Comes To Coast Plan's Aid

©The New York Times

Los Angeles — California's radical three-year-old program for controlling development along its 1,000-mile coast, suddenly blocked by the state legislature, has received a new lease on life with the help of Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr.

The young governor interrupted his campaigning for Democratic convention delegates last week to return to the state and confer with legislators on measures to substitute for a permanent coastal master plan that had been unexpectedly scuttled by development-minded state senators.

Brown said if the substitute did not move through the legislature expeditiously, he would call a special session to avert the program's threatened extinction at the end of the year.

His action ran counter to the interests of his father, former Gov. Edmund G. Brown, who as a lawyer heads the principal organization that has been fighting the coastal protection plan.

State Commission

The pending proposals, which essentially would perpetuate an interim program of stringent controls, would put all future coastal development under the discretion of a statewide citizen commission.

The major objectives of the program are to stop indiscriminate and haphazard coastal development, preserve unspoiled areas and farmland, and insure that future development in a belt extending five miles inland is attractive, to provide maximum enjoyment of the shore by Californians and visitors.

It is the most comprehensive program yet implemented among the 30 coastal and Great Lake states, all of which are formulating plans under the Federal Coastal Zone Management Act of 1972.

The California plan has been bitterly opposed by development and business interests — real estate groups, port authorities, industrial, and commercial boating interests, and also by coastal cities and counties jealous of their autonomy.

The program originated in a ballot initiative measure written by environmental groups that was strongly supported by voters in the 1972 election.

Under it, a statewide citizen commission and six regional commissions were established with almost absolute authority over coastal development.

Any construction, even on a private homestead, costing more than $7,500 required a permit from a regional commission. It's rulings could be appealed to the state commission.

The commission's permit jurisdiction extended 1,000 yards inland from the ocean and out to the three-mile extent of state territory.

One of the program's basic criteria was a flat ban on any shoreline construction that would obscure the ocean view from the nearest coastal highway. Other policies called for facilities accommodating numbers of people rather than single-family residences.

Three-Year Plan

The original law provided for this pattern of administration for three years during the preparation of a permanent program enacted by the legislature.

The experimental period has gone more smoothly than most people expected. The commissions have handled thousands of development applications and have approved 90% of them, both in number and in dollar value.

However, many were approved only with modifications: the permits denied involve some large high-rise projects, and many projects did not reach the application stage.

The state commission even dictated certain physical features of the enlargement of a coastal atomic power plant at San Onofre, to protect beach access and use. It has also delayed some projected offshore oil drilling in federal waters beyond the state limit at Santa Barbara.

Ed Zorinsky: Museum Plan Revision Due

Omaha (AP) — Omaha Mayor Edward Zorinsky wants to scale down the amount and length of a proposed agreement with the Western Heritage Society to convert the old Union Station into a museum.

A proposed agreement with the society calls for the city to provide up to $50,000 a year for seven years for renovation and capital improvements to the station. But Zorinsky wants the time cut to two years.

Zorinsky also is asking that instead of making direct payments to the society for renovation or improvements, the city provide the repairs or improvements.

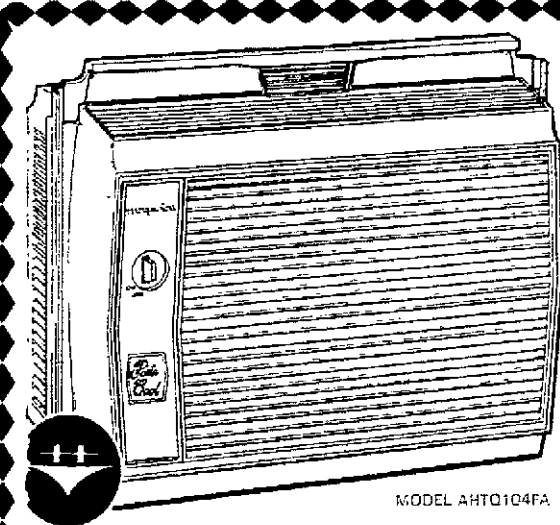

The changes in the proposed agreement will be sought from the Omaha City Council when it considers the contract with the Western Heritage Society Tuesday.

Zorinsky has held out the possibility of a veto of the measure if changes are not made in the agreement.

Fighting Kills 11 In Argentina

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Eleven left-wing guerrillas were killed early Sunday in two gun battles along a railroad line south of Buenos Aires, the army announced.

There also were reports of seven bullet-riddled bodies being found near the port city of La Plata, 20 miles south of the capital. They were believed to be the victims of right-wing death squads.

Among the bodies were those of a young couple. They had been burned and a poster on the woman's charred body said, "I killed Gen. Cardozo."

There was no identification of the body, but the note referred to Ana Maria Gonzalez, 18, accused of planting a bomb that killed the chief of the federal police, Gen. Cesario Cardozo on Friday. Miss Gonzalez was a close friend and fellow student of one of Cardozo's daughters.

The pressure bomb had been placed under the police chief's mattress, and investigators said

Miss Gonzalez had visited the Cardozos' apartment Thursday night.

An army communique reporting the clash with guerrillas said combined military and police forces surrounded the bands of gunmen operating along a railroad line in Lomas de Zamora, 10 miles south of Buenos Aires.

There were two different battles in which the 11 guerrillas were killed, the army said, and there were no casualties among the security forces.

It reported that some weapons and "guerrilla literature" were seized by the troops.

Royal Couple Leaves On Los Angeles Flight

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP) — King Carl XVI Gustav of Sweden and his bride, Queen Silvia, spent the first day of their honeymoon aboard a jetliner high above the Atlantic, Canada and the United States.

The royal couple caught Scandinavian Airlines System's regular Great Circle flight to Los Angeles the day after their wedding in Stockholm Saturday. The regal ceremony was attended by kings and presidents and watched by millions over television.

It had been expected in Sweden that the newlyweds would take a honeymoon safari in Africa.

Instead, they slipped into Copenhagen airport by private jet Sunday to board the California flight, declining to speak to reporters who spotted them.

The 30-year-old monarch married Silvia Renate Sommerlath, 32, daughter a West German businessman and a Spanish noblewoman, after a four-year courtship.

Cancer Link Not Told As Diabetes Drug Replaced

Washington (UPI) — The Food and Drug Administration has allowed the Upjohn Co. quietly to replace stocks of an oral diabetic drug contaminated by a cancer-causing Nitrosamine chemical without telling pharmacists or doctors why.

While stocks of the drug, Tolinase, will be replaced in retail outlets by June 25, there has been no attempt at recalling supplies already in the hands of patients.

Tolinase was the fourth most heavily used oral drug for treating diabetes in the United States last year.

Disclosure of contamination by the chemical N-6-MI and the replacement method was made by the Health Research Group, part of the Ralph Nader organization, which wrote to the FDA urging the contaminated drug be recalled and a warning issued to physicians, pharmacists and consumers.

A spokesman for Upjohn confirmed discovery of the contamination in early May, after a test of greater sensitivity was developed in April. After consultation with FDA the replacement of stocks in drug stores was ordered.

The Upjohn spokesman said FDA and private consultants "determined that the possibility of risk to health was quite remote" and no formal recall was made.

A spokesman for FDA said there had been no judgment of an imminent hazard to health and disclosure of the contamination could have had a worse affect on diabetes patients than contamination itself.

Contamination of 400 to 700 parts per billion of Nitrosamine was found, according to the FDA.

In 1973, the FDA banned meat-curing products contaminated with other

Nitrosamines at levels ranging from 5.6 parts per billion to 48.5 parts per billion.

Nitrosamines have been found to cause cancer in a number of tests. Up to 50 per cent of laboratory animals given large doses of the substances contracted cancers of the lung, liver, tongue, esophagus, larynx and trachea.

Dr. J. Richard Crout, director of the Bureau of Drugs, FDA, said the maximum dose of Tolinase contained Nitrosamine that "would be thousands of times smaller than the dose that caused cancer in rodents."

The Upjohn spokesman said pharmacists and physicians were told the drug was being replaced because of "chemical impurities." He said a new manufacturing process is used to avoid contamination, which apparently occurred because the Nitrosamine substance is close in chemical structure to the drug.

Vesco Spy Wilkins Claims U.S. Attorney Double-Crossed Him

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — A U.S. marshal says convicted felon James W. "Skip" Wilkins Jr. believed federal officials double-crossed him after sending him to Costa Rica to spy on fugitive financier Robert Vesco.

"Wilkins told us that the United States' attorney double-crossed him, that he hadn't gotten what he was promised and he was going public with it," Marshal Mickey Newberger said.

Tampa television station WFLA quoted Wilkins as saying the U.S. attorney's office in New York promised to pay him and help clear his criminal record in return for information on Vesco's actions, movements and associates. A similar report was carried by The New York Times.

Wilkins, 27, of Tampa, on parole for a state burglary conviction, said the government paid for his flights to New York and to Costa Rica in April but never compensated him for his work when he returned May 21.

"They did not deliver on anything," Wilkins told WFLA.

He said prosecutors have also balked at paying about $600 in expenses he incurred while on the mission.

U.S. Atty. Robert Fisk of New York confirmed that prosecutors in his office sponsored Wilkin's mission, according to WFLA and The Times.

"We did pay for the flight down there," WFLA quoted Fisk as saying. "After he got there, he was on his own."

The Times quoted Fisk as saying his office became involved after Wilkins approached the federal government with the spying plan.

Vesco fled to Costa Rica in 1972 before being indicted in a case involving an illegal $200,000 cash contribution to former President Nixon's re-election campaign.

Wilkins said the spying arrangement was made in January 1975 after he told Newberger that Vesco aides had contacted him about arranging some private music performances in Costa Rica, WFLA said.

At the time, Wilkins said he was promoting rock music groups in San Jose, Costa Rica, the television station reported.

Newberger said he passed the information on to federal officials who had Wilkins flown to New York under a federal subpoena.

Wilkins told WFLA that he was contacted by former U.S. Atty. James Rayhill of New York and by Rayhill's successor, Elliot Segor.

Wilkins said that Vesco found out about the spying mission before the two met in April.

He said Vesco forced him to send false information and then had him imprisoned in Costa Rica, WFLA reported. Wilkins said he spent 20 or 21 days in a small, unlighted cell with no sanitary facilities before he managed to smuggle a note to the U.S. embassy. He said the U.S. State Department arranged for his release.

U.S.'s Thai Installations Close

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — The U.S. military quietly closed its last two major installations in Thailand on Sunday.

A spokesman said there was "no turnover ceremony as such" as Americans left Utapao Air Base on the Gulf of Thailand, the staging center for U.S. B52 bombing runs into Cambodia, Vietnam and Laos at the height of the Indochina war.

The military also shut down Ramasun electronic monitoring facility, the spokesman said.

Under a March 20 agreement with the Thai government, all U.S. servicemen must withdraw by July 20 except for 270 military advisers.

Student groups have demonstrated for enforcing the pact without changes by the government of Prime Minister Seni Pramot, which took office after the agreement was reached and is more pro-American than the previous regime.

U.S. military personnel in Thailand were down to about 700 on Sunday — from a peak of 50,000 GIs during the Indochina war.

The Americans stationed at seven air bases and numerous other installations had included up to 2,000 at Utapao.

Ramasun, in northeast Thailand, was a center for monitoring radio communications of Communist forces in China and Southeast Asia.

After the war ended in 1975, Ramasun's operations mainly supplied Thailand with intelligence information.

The Thai military, reportedly unhappy with the civilian government's decision to make the American forces leave, lobbied for retention of some equipment to be run by Thai technicians.

The U.S. government reportedly has asked permission to refuel planes at a base in Thailand for military flights to the U.S. base on Diego Garcia Island in the Indian Ocean. Bhichai said he expected an agreement on that matter will be signed soon.

Required Pensions Expected — Bassett

Philadelphia (UPI) — A management consultant says the day is here to require industry to provide pensions for employees just as they are required to provide a minimum wage.

Preston C. Bassett, vice president of Towers, Perrin, Forster and Crosby, says providing private retirement benefits would "alleviate . . . the burden" of current Social Security payments and would provide an employee with an "adequate (rather than) minimum" standard of living on his retirement.

Care Needed For Jellies

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

You may get yourself into a jam which is not edible if you don't follow closely the directions for making jams, jellies and preserves.

Nothing hits the spot like homemade strawberry preserves or other fruit jams and jellies, but failure to follow directions can result in a waste of time, good fruit and sugar.

Esther Wyant, home extension agent for the Lancaster County Extension office, emphasizes the importance of starting with a sufficiently large kettle.

Jams and jellies should be cooked quickly on high heat, so a large kettle is necessary to keep the fruit and juice from boiling over when it reaches the necessary full-rolling boiling point.

An eight to 12 quart container is recommended for each four to five cups of juice, she said.

Failures Result

Miss Wyant also discourages doubling recipes because many jelly failures result from making large batches at a time.

In the first place, she notes, it is almost impossible to find a kettle large enough to accommodate double recipes to insure sufficient room for boiling without necessitating turning down the heat.

In using a thermometer to test doneness in jellies, one should remember that the jelling point is eight degrees above the boiling point of water.

According to Miss Wyant, the thermometer can be tested to determine where it registers boiling by putting three to four inches of water in a saucepan, bringing the water to boil and boiling five minutes before taking a reading on the thermometer.

For example, if the thermometer registers boiling at 210 degrees, then it should reach the jelling point at 218 degrees.

Fork Test

If a thermometer isn't available, one can use the fork test for doneness — when jelly hangs between the tongs of fork and doesn't just drip off, it is done.

To cut down on the amount of foam which forms when the jelly boils and to eliminate boil-overs, it is suggested that a small amount of butter or margarine (1/2 to 1 teaspoon) be added to jelly or jam prior to final minute of boiling.

Containers that can be sealed air-tight are needed for jams, preserves and marmalades. Glasses with lids may be used for jelly. Paraffin is necessary to cover jelly in glasses.

The extension office warns of dangers in melting paraffin for sealing jellies.

Since paraffin flames easily, it should be melted in a double boiler over hot water.

A thin layer of hot paraffin should be put on the hot jelly with a tablespoon. Miss Wyant suggests the tablespoon because that is about the right amount for covering the top of jelly.

"One-eighth of an inch of paraffin is adequate," she said, noting that a single, thin layer gives a better seal than one thick layer.

Break Bubbles

Care should also be taken to break the bubbles in hot paraffin. If they are allowed to exist, they eventually will break and allow air into the jelly and increase the chances of mold forming.

When sealing containers with flats and rings, immediately after putting the lid on, the jar should be turned upside down for about five minutes to allow the hot jelly substance to sterilize the under side of the lid. This should eliminate any type of mold from ever forming.

According to Miss Wyant, jars to be sealed with lids should be filled to within one-fourth to one-eighth of an inch from the top of jar — the smaller the space at the top the better the jam or jelly will keep.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture also recommends for jams and preserves that a short process period of approximately five minutes be allowed for jars after they are filled.

For jellies, paraffin works well for sealing, but jams and preserves keep better with sealer lids.

Jelly loses its flavor in storage so it is best to make only the amount that can be used within a few months. Jams, jellies and preserves should be stored in a cool, dark, dry storage place.

A FRESH TREAT . . . homemade jams and jellies extend fruit season.

Pectin Varieties Determine Recipe

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

Pectin — whether natural or commercial — makes the jelling difference!

Before determining the kind of pectin you are going to use, check the order in which the recipe ingredients are combined.

Because of the difference between powdered and liquid pectins, each should be used only in recipes worked out for that form.

Powdered pectin is mixed with the unheated fruit juice and brought to a boil before the sugar is added. Liquid pectin is added to the boiling juice and sugar mixture.

A one-minute boiling time is used with either form of pectin and time should be counted when the mixture reaches a full rolling boil, which cannot be stirred down.

Jellies made without added pectin require less sugar per cup of fruit juice but require longer boiling time to bring the mixture to the proper sugar concentration. Thus the yield of jelly per cup of juice is less without pectin.

It is usually best to have part of the fruit under-ripe when no pectin is added, because underripe fruit has a higher pectin content than fully ripe fruit. Use of one-fourth underripe and three-fourths fully ripe fruit is recommended to assure sufficient pectin for making jelly.

It is important to have proper amounts of fruit, pectin, acid and sugar to make a good jellied product.

Pectin, a carbohydrate, is usually found just under the skin of the fruit. Some kinds of fruit have enough natural pectin to make jelly while others require added pectin to make jellies which hold their shape.

To extract the pectin, it is necessary to heat the fruit.

Made From Apples

Commercial fruit pectins are made from apples or citrus fruits. Pectins should be stored in a cool, dry place and should not be held over from one year to the next.

Acid in the jellied product is necessary for flavor and for gel formation. The acid content varies in different fruits and is higher in underripe than in fully ripe fruits. Lemon juice may be added to fruits low in acid.

Sugar helps in the gel formation and serves as a preserving agent and improves the flavor. It also has a firming effect on fruit preserves. Either beet or cane sugar can be used with equal success.

Fresh Fruit Jams, Jellies Require Different Pectins

Strawberry Jelly

Given below is a step-by-step method for making strawberry jelly with liquid pectin:

1. Select fully ripe strawberries. About three quart boxes are needed for each batch of jelly. Sort the berries. Wash about one quart at a time by placing berries in a wire basket and moving the basket up and down several times in cold water. Drain the berries.

2. Remove caps and crush the berries. Place crushed berries, a small amount at a time, in a damp jelly bag or double thickness of cheesecloth held in a colander over a bowl.

3. Bring the edges of the cloth together and twist tightly. Press or squeeze to extract the juice. Strain the juice again through two thicknesses of damp cheesecloth without squeezing.

4. Measure 4 cups of juice into a large kettle. Add 7 1/2 cups of sugar to the juice; stir to dissolve the sugar. Place the kettle over high heat and, stirring constantly, bring the mixture quickly to a full rolling boil that cannot be stirred down.

5. Add 1 bottle of liquid pectin. Again, bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard for one minute. Remove from heat and skim off foam quickly. If allowed to stand, the jelly may start to "set" in the kettle.

6. Pour jelly immediately into hot glasses to 1/2 inch of the top. Cover each glass with a 1/4 inch layer of paraffin. Cool glasses on a metal rack or folded cloth, then cover with metal or paper lids, label and store in a cool, dry place.

Apple Jelly

The process for making apple jelly without added pectin is as follows:

1. Use tart, firm apples. It takes about three pounds for a batch of jelly; about one-fourth of them should be underripe. Sort and wash the apples. Remove stems and blossom ends and cut apples into small pieces. Do not pare or core.

2. Put apples into kettle. Add 1 cup water per pound of apples. Cover, bring to boil on high heat. Reduce heat and simmer until apples are tender, about 20 to 25 minutes, depending on the firmness or ripeness of the fruit.

3. Put cooked apples into a jelly bag and allow to drip, or press to remove juice. Strain pressed juice through two thicknesses of damp cheesecloth without squeezing.

4. Measure 4 cups of the apple juice into a large kettle. Add 3 cups of sugar and 2 tablespoons of lemon juice, if desired. Stir to dissolve the sugar.

5. Place on high heat and boil rapidly to 8 degrees F. above the boiling point of water, or until jelly mixture sheets from a spoon. Remove from heat. Skim off foam.

6. Pour jelly immediately into hot containers. Fill glasses to within 1/2 inch of top and cover with 1/4 inch layer of paraffin. Or fill canning jars to 1/2 inch of top; wipe rims of jars. Place clean, hot metal lid on, with sealing compound next to glass. Screw metal band down tight. Cool jars on a metal rack or folded cloth. Then label and store in a cool, dry place.

Peach Jam

The process for making peach jam with powdered pectin is given below:

1. Sort and wash fully-ripe peaches. Remove stems, skins and pits.

2. Crush or chop the peaches. A stainless steel potato masher is useful for this purpose.

3. Measure 3 1/2 cups of crushed

peaches into a large kettle.

4. Add one package of powdered pectin and 1/4 cup of lemon juice. Stir well to dissolve the pectin. Place on high heat and, stirring constantly, bring quickly to a full boil with bubbles over the entire surface.

5. Stir in 5 cups of sugar, continue stirring, and heat again to a full bubbling boil. Boil hard for one minute, stirring constantly to prevent sticking. Remove jam from heat and skim and stir alternately for five minutes to help prevent fruit from floating.

6. Pour the jam into hot glasses to 1/2 inch of top. Process 5 minutes in boiling water bath. Cool glasses on a metal rack or folded cloth, then cover them with metal or paper lids. After cooling, label and store in a cool, dry place.

Arid Winds Bring Bug Visitors

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

The hot, south winds that brought the threat of drought to Nebraska also brought some unwelcome visitors — greenbugs.

A greenbug is an aphid from a species that seems to have carried women's lib a little too far.

"I have never seen a male greenbug. I understand they can be produced under artificial conditions, but I don't know of anyone who ever saw one in the field," said Dr. Dave Keith, an extension entomologist at the University of Nebraska for 10 years.

"The winged females that come in on the south wind are poor flyers, but the wind seems to bring in a batch in the end of May or early June every year and again a second crop in July. The July flight is so great that it smears the windshields of low flying crop spray planes," he said.

The females are parthenogenetic, which means they can reproduce without mating with a male. Another unusual feature of this tiny animal is that it gives birth to young rather than laying eggs.

"The egg actually is there. It hatches inside of the mother who turns out four, five or 6 of the little girls every day. The first generation that is born in Nebraska after the flight from Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas never grow wings. But the third, fourth and several other generations seem to produce wings."

"We are not quite sure what triggers the growth of wings. It could be crowding on the plants, it may be the amount of light during a 24-hour day or a host of other environmental factors we haven't detected," Keith said.

Farmers and city gardeners get greenbugs confused with other aphids. The greenbug is a light green color except for a single dark green stripe or long wide spot in the middle of its back. The tiny pipes which all aphids have are black at the tip on a greenbug.

A corn leaf aphid is a blue-green and its legs are dark, along with the dark pipes which aid identification. The corn leaf aphid appears on corn but doesn't cause problems, so save your money and don't spray.

"This year has really been the year of the aphid. Every kind of aphid is doing well this year. Greenbugs do come into Lincoln and feed on blue grass, but cause no problems to most city plant life," Keith said.

The greenbug was first discovered in Italy in 1852 and was observed in Virginia in 1882. It currently is rated as the most destructive insect pest in the central and south western states, destroying more than 50 million bushels of grain a year.

Until 1968 the insect worked on small grains, but for some unknown reason it suddenly developed an appetite for grain sorghum in Arizona, California, Colorado, Kansas, Nebraska, New Mexico, Oklahoma, South Dakota and Texas.

"We are not sure what happened. The theory of parthenogenetic birth is that the genes in the mother are identical to those in the daughter. There must have been a mutation somewhere to produce the sudden change in appetite. There had been early reports around 1900 of greenbug damage to grain sorghum, but none until 1968," Keith said.

Some Live On Corn

Scientists are worried about another mutation causing the insect to decide on corn as a home. They do live on corn, but apparently don't reproduce there yet.

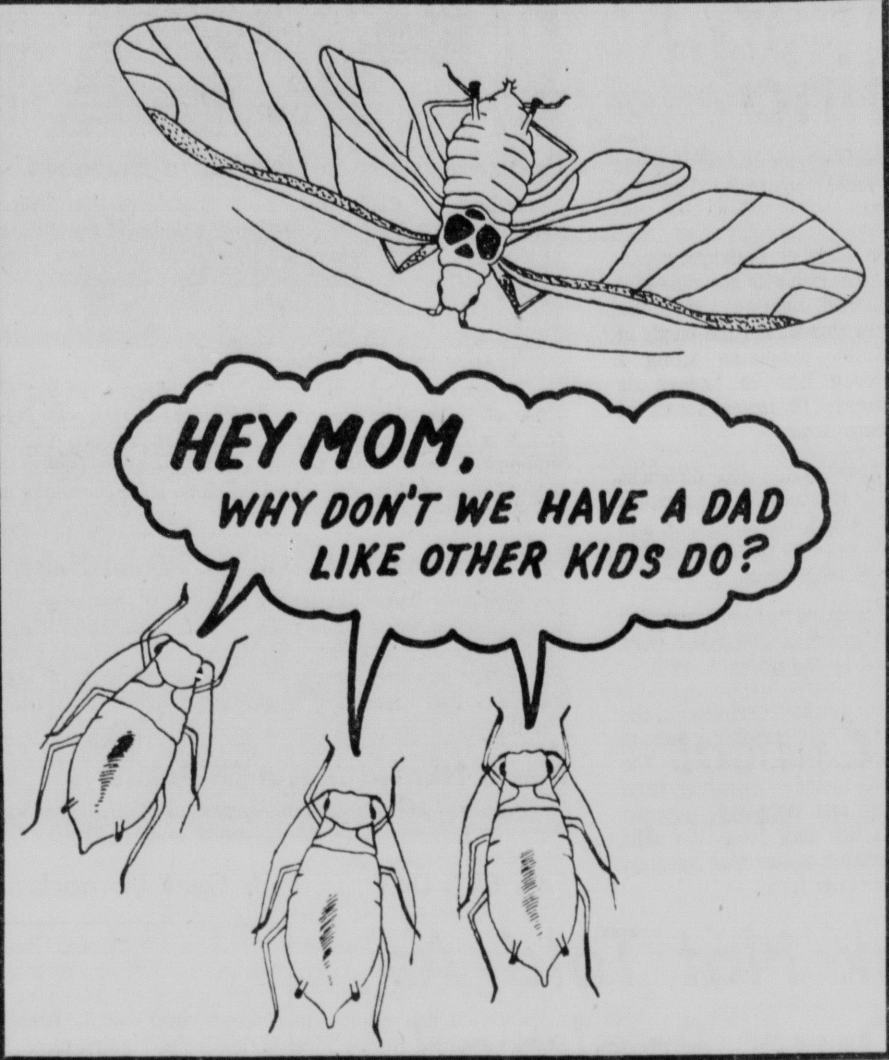

"We have had some reports of greenbugs that are resistant to some chemicals, but so far this year the sprays seem to work well. We had greenbugs on virtually every sorghum plant in the state earlier, but now they seem to be thinning out. I expect to see a second crop in July," Keith said.

Non-chemical controls appear to offer promise. Plant breeders have produced greenbug resistant varieties of grain sorghum which were released to farmers for the first time this year.

"We have had reports of some complete failure, but most of the new varieties have worked out pretty well. They will at least reduce the need for expensive chemicals if not eliminate the need altogether," Keith said.

Another hope is a tiny wasp that stings the young greenbug and leaves an egg to hatch and eat out the greenbug — leaving a mummy on the plant. Once the rate of parasitism reaches 20 to 25%, the wasps can be counted on to make chemical control unnecessary within 7 to 10 days. Lady beetles also eat a few greenbugs, but control efforts with lady beetles haven't been successful, apparently because they won't stay in a field where they are put.

June Retail Beef Price Said Less

Denver, Colo. — Average retail beef prices in early June were down slightly from a month earlier and were sharply less than a year ago at this time, the American National Cattleman's Assn. (ANCA) reported today.

The association's monthly 19-city survey of super markets indicated that the national average price of five representative beef cuts on June 10 was $1.47 per pound, compared with $1.49 on May 13. In early June last year, the comparable five-cut average price was $1.72 per pound.

After several months of decreases, average retail beef prices rose in May, but then there has been a leveling off or decrease during the past month, said Wray Finney, ANCA President.

He noted that there was relatively little change in average cattle and wholesale beef prices from May to June.

"Supplies of beef have continued at relatively large levels in recent weeks," Finney said, "and this has meant that beef is at least one food which is lower in price than a year ago."

In the latest ANCA survey, ground beef, round steak and chuck roast prices were down somewhat from the previous month, while average prices of sirloin and T-bone steak increased slightly. The increase in steak prices was attributed to an increase in demand with the summer cook-out season.

Among cities in the survey, 11 showed decreases in average prices during the past month, six showed increases and two reported no change.

Finney pointed out that there continue to be differences in average prices among the different cities. Differences in transportation costs and the amount of price "specialing" at a given time cause some of the variation. In addition, there are significant differences in retail store labor and other costs among different cities.

Spotlight on Agriculture

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

An Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) booklet aimed at curbing accidents with beef cattle is causing much laughter in rural areas but doing little to prevent accidents.

"Don't fall into a manure pit. Manure pits can be dangerous," the booklet advises.

"A cow with a calf may become upset and trample you," is also good advice, but anyone who ever worked with cattle learns that pretty fast or gets trampled.

The booklet lists authors from one of the nation's better agricultural land grant schools, but I'm sure someone in Washington must be responsible for the first grade primer style of writing.

The wording seems aimed at an elementary reading class about to make its first visit to a farm. Advice such as, "Try not to go into a pen with a cow and calf," is good advice for visitors but impossible for a rancher or farmer.

The work seems to indicate that the writer doesn't know most farmers and ranchers are college-educated people who successfully operate businesses worth at least a half million dollars each.

Anyone capable of operating a successful farming or ranching operation is capable of comprehending a booklet beyond the "See Dick and Jane" 1st grade reader.

Perhaps some well-meaning bureaucrat was trying to get back to basic English after struggling with the official Washington gobbledegook but overdid it a bit.

Consumer demand for dairy products seems to be improving. Sales of dairy products in the first quarter 1976 were up almost 3% from 1975 because of strong cheese sales and a small gain in fluid milk sales.

Ice cream sales were up 8% in 1975, the largest jump for any dairy product. Per capita consumption hit 18.8 pounds, well above the 17.5 consumed in 1973 and 1974.

This increase in demand has caused a slight increase in price to which farmers are quickly responding to by increasing production of milk.

Consumer groups who have been complaining that some cooperatives have been able to get milk prices above minimum levels set in federal milk marketing orders should be reminded that every labor union in the country has managed to get wages above the federal minimum wage law as well.

You can't feed a family on the minimum wage law earnings for a 40-hour week. You can't feed a dairy herd on the minimum milk price law earnings for the 70-hour week that dairy farmers work either.

William Staiger, executive vice president of the California Cattlemen's Association, warned farmers and ranchers that they are coming under the critical scrutiny of virtually all of mankind.

Staiger warned that property owners are losing control over their land via regulations applied by state and federal governments instead of having their land taken over by government.

Land use planning is still a dirty word to most rural landowners. Staiger warned that they should become involved in it because they cannot have an effect on the rules from the outside by saying "you can't do this to me." They can and they will.

Bad rails that can't handle grain cars are costing farmers at least 5 cents for every bushel of grain they sell.

A half-completed rehabilitation program funded by the State of Iowa on a Rock Island track serving 30 elevators already has added a nickel a bushel to the price of grain in the area, according to local elevator managers.

Local elevators have invested thousands of dollars in new equipment for loading unit trains which would have been useless if the tracks hadn't been repaired.

Many branch rail lines throughout the nation are in such bad shape that they won't carry a full hopper car of grain safely.

Every time a rail car loaded with grain derails it costs consumers and farmers money. Well maintained railroads are essential to this nation. It makes sense for some assistance to be made to railroad companies in trouble.

The idea of a green belt of farms around a city protected by tight zoning laws to keep the land in agriculture so city folks could see a farm and some greenery isn't working out too well in California.

Ranchers and farmers are required to permit unrestricted hunting and hiking ect. on the land in exchange for protection from developers and sky high taxes.

The conflicts that develop between production agriculture and city visitors range from trampled crops, beer cans in alfalfa which end up as chopped bits of metal in a cow's stomach and the liability insurance to protect the landowner from law suits caused when his bull destroys a picnic in a pasture.

The trespass law is so weak that it's next to worthless. City taxpayers feel that their rights must be greater than just looking over the fence and they don't seem to appreciate the problems they are causing.

A farm can be visited but it isn't a park where you can walk anywhere or do almost anything without being a danger to yourself, crops or animals.

A beef cow isn't a pet like a cocker spaniel, but city folk persist in trying to pet them.

It probably is possible to establish green belts of farmland around cities but there needs to be some administration of the program, perhaps a system of greenbelt rangers to protect the farms from unthinking or unknowing city folks, vandals and possibly to run tours as in the Forest Service Parks.

It isn't going to be easy to run such a farm but it might be worth it if it helps the general public understand more about how food is produced.

Standards Have Little Beef Effect

Omaha (AP) — About the same quality meat is being sold by supermarkets and restaurants as before U.S. Department of Agriculture standards went into effect, most retailers, researchers, meat packers and USDA officials interviewed said.

Nearly all those interviewed said there has been little drop in the price of choice beef, a development some proponents of the new standards predicted would follow the changes.

Dana C. Bradford, an Omaha attorney who represents the National Association of Meat Purveyors and the National Restaurant Association, disagreed with the majority views on the effect of the new meat quality standards.

"From the standpoint of the purveyors, many customers have been complaining about the quality of beef they're buying," Bradford said.

At the time of the May, 1975, U.S. District Court trial in Omaha, some USDA officials and others estimated that from 10 to 12 per cent of the beef rated in the high good category under old standards would be rated choice under the new standards.

Robert Rust, extension meat specialist at Iowa State University, said those estimates may have been too high.

Rust said figures for April and March, the first two full months under the new regulations, showed only a small increase in choice cattle, compared with the same period for 1974 and 1975.

Weekly Grain Report

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

Weather problems in the grain-producing states are having a strong effect on the grain market, showing up in the form of better prices at elevators.

The nation's supply of grain will be adequate, but our overseas customers will have to pay through the nose for grains of all kinds unless rains resume soon enough to make a good crop.

A number of other nations also are having weather trouble this year.

Russia is reported to have weather problems in its major grain producing areas. France, a major wheat exporter, is having a lot of dry weather cut into their crop. Australia has such poor conditions that they are slaughtering thousands of cattle for their hides.

India and the Asian areas seem to be in pretty good shape. Their limited cash reserves wouldn't be adequate to buy grain in a world that appears to be moving into a tight grain supply situation.

Good rains will produce a drop in grain prices in the markets controlled by speculators, but may not come in time to produce a general recovery in the nation's grain production.

Two things to look for when buying central air conditioning

One of the most important things that we consider in making any purchase is the cost. That's important. But equally important is quality. The seal shown above is your assurance of quality in central air conditioners. It is the Certification Seal of the Air Conditioning and Refrigeration Institute (ARI). In order to show this seal, a manufacturer must submit specification data to ARI. ARI engineers then verify it. If the unit does not meet these specifications, the manufacturer must either re-rate the model or withdraw it from his line. Failure to do one or the other of these alternatives results in the withdrawal by ARI of their certification of that manufacturer's entire line.

What the ARI Seal means to you

First of all, the ARI Seal means that you can quickly determine the EER (Energy Efficiency Ratio). This is the measurement which tells how much energy is being consumed in the operation of the unit. Your Lincoln Electric System recommends a rating of 7 or better.

Why is this EER rating important? Let me give you an example. Let's assume the average home has about 1,200 square feet. It would probably have a 2½ ton air conditioner. Now let's see what difference 1.5 points in Efficiency Ratio would mean...

EER Rating	KWH Usage Per Season
6	4,000
7.5	3,200
Difference	800

By saving 800 KWH per season, a Lincoln resident who pays 3.34¢ per KWH would realize a savings of $26.72 per season.

Secondly, ARI publishes a directory of all makes and models which are certified under this program. If you have any questions as to the certification of any central air conditioner that you are thinking of buying, you may contact Lincoln Electric System and our Customer Service Representatives will be glad to provide information to you regarding this unit.

Cocaine Found Floating

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Thirteen pounds of cocaine, believed to be part of a $40 million cache of the illegal drug seized last week, has been found bobbing in the water near a Tampa pier, U.S. Customs officers said.

The cocaine, worth an estimated $2.9 million in street sales, was found Saturday near a banana boat on which customs and federal drug agents found 170 pounds of uncut cocaine on Thursday, officials said.

A customs spokesman said the 13 pounds, contained in small plastic bags, probably was thrown out a porthole after the raid began, and was carried under the pier by the tide.

The Liberian-registered boat Ea, which authorities say has been used three times in the past two years to smuggle cocaine, is being held at the pier while Drug Enforcement Administration agents search for six to eight smugglers who escaped when the contraband was confiscated.

The seizure was called by officials one of the largest ever, and by far the largest by the U.S. Customs Service.

Canadian Pilots Out On Strike, Flights Diverted

MONTREAL (AP) — Canadian pilots went on strike Sunday morning, claiming airport safety was endangered by a dispute between the air controllers association and the government.

Most of Canada's 2,200 air controllers were reported on the job, following a court injunction against their threatened strike.

Although airports were open, Air Canada said some flights were being diverted to the nearest U.S. airport where buses awaited passengers.

The airline cancelled all of its domestic flights and those to the United States, Bermuda and the Caribbean.

A spokesman said the airline would announce later whether European flights would be cancelled.

FREEZING BERRIES... for making jam later.

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

If you don't want to heat up the kitchen with cooking jams and jellies when the fruits are ripe, freeze the fruits and make the jelly next winter.

This is the advice of Lancaster County Home Extension Agent Esther Wyant, who notes that energy can be conserved now and the aroma and warmth from cooking of jams and jellies is a "real treat" on a cold winter day.

Any fresh fruit may be canned or frozen as fruit or juice and used in a jelled product later. The U.S. Department of Agriculture recommends that the fruit and juice be canned or frozen unsweetened. However, if sugar is added, that amount should be noted and subtracted from the amount called for in the jelly or jam recipe. Fruit should be canned in its own juice or with only a small amount of water. It is also recommended that at least part underripe fruit be used if the canned or frozen fruit is to be used without added pectin for making jelly.

Unsweetened commercially canned or frozen fruit or juice can also be added in jelled products but added pectin will be needed since such products are made from fully ripe fruit. Below are recipes for jellies and jam made from frozen fruits or juices:

Grape Jelly from Frozen Concentrate
1 box powdered pectin
2 1/2 cups water
6-oz. can frozen grape concentrate
3/4 cups sugar
Combine pectin and water in large saucepan and bring to a full rolling boil. Boil hard for one minute, stirring constantly. Lower heat; add juice and sugar and stir until both are completely dissolved. Do not boil. Remove from heat and pour into hot sterilized jars and seal. Store in the refrigerator. Makes five half-pints.

Frozen Berry Jam
2 boxes (2 1/2 cups) crushed frozen strawberries or raspberries
1 T. lemon juice
2 1/2 cups sugar
1 package powdered pectin
1 cup water
Allow frozen berries to warm to room temperature. Mix in lemon juice and sugar and let stand for 20 minutes, stirring occasionally. Combine water and pectin in saucepan and bring to a rolling boil, stirring constantly. Boil for one minute. Add pectin solution to the berry and sugar mixture and stir for two minutes. Pour jam into jars, leaving 1/2 inch space at the top. Seal and allow to stand at room temperature until set. Store in the refrigerator. Makes five half-pints.

If jam is too firm, stir to soften. If it tends to separate, stir to blend. If it is too soft, bring it to a boil; it will thicken up on cooling.

Solutions Abound For Homemade Jelly Problems

Given below are USDA answers to questions commonly asked by homemakers who have had unsatisfactory results in making jellies and jams.

Q. What makes jelly cloudy?

A. One or more of the following may cause cloudy jelly:
1. Pouring jelly mixture into glasses too slowly.
2. Allowing jelly mixture to stand before it is poured.
3. Juice was not properly strained and so contained pulp.
4. Jelly set too fast — usually the result of using too-green fruit.

Q. Why do crystals form in jelly?

A. Crystals throughout the jelly may be caused by too much sugar in the jelly mixture, or cooking the mixture too little, too slowly, or too long. Crystals that form at the top of jelly that has been opened and allowed to stand are caused by evaporation of liquid. (Crystals in grape jelly may be tartrate crystals.)

Q. What causes jelly to be too soft?

A. One or more of the following may be the cause:

1. Too much juice in the mixture.
2. Too little sugar.
3. Mixture not acid enough.
4. Making too big a batch at one time.

Q. What can be done to make soft jellies firmer?

A. Soft jellies can sometimes be improved by recooking according to the directions given below. It is best to recook only 4 to 6 cups of jelly at one time.

To remake with powdered pectin.
Measure the jelly to be recooked. For each quart of jelly measure 1/4 cup sugar, 1/4 cup water, and 4 teaspoons powdered pectin. Mix the pectin and water and bring to boiling, stirring constantly to prevent scorching. Add the jelly and sugar. Stir thoroughly. Bring to a full rolling boil over high heat, stirring constantly. Boil mixture hard for 1/2 minute. Remove jelly from the heat, skim, pour into hot containers, and seal.

To remake with liquid pectin.
Measure the jelly to be recooked. For each quart of jelly measure 3/4 cup sugar, 2 Tbsp. lemon juice, and 2 Tbsp. liquid pectin. Bring jelly to boiling over high heat. Quickly add the sugar, lemon juice, and pectin and bring to a full rolling boil; stir constantly. Boil mixture hard for one minute. Remove jelly from the heat, skim, pour into hot containers, and seal.

To remake without added pectin.

Heat the jelly to boiling and boil for a few minutes. Test to determine how long to cook it. (Undercooked can sometimes be recooked but little can be done to improve an overcooked mixture. Signs of overcooking are a change in color of mixture and a taste or odor of caramelized sugar.) Remove jelly from the heat, skim, pour into hot containers, and seal.

Q. What makes jelly syrupy?

A. Too little pectin, acid or sugar. A great excess of sugar can also cause syrupy jelly.

Q. What causes weeping jelly?

A. Too much acid. Layer of paraffin too thick. Storage place was too warm or storage temperature fluctuated.

Q. What makes jelly too stiff?

A. Too much pectin (fruit was not ripe enough or too much added pectin was used.) Overcooking.

Q. What makes jelly tough?

A. Mixture had to be cooked too long to reach jellying stage, a result of too little sugar.

Q. What makes jelly gummy?

A. Overcooking.

Q. What causes fermentation of jelly?

A. Too little sugar, or improper sealing.

Q. Why does mold form on jelly or jam?

A. Because an imperfect seal has made it possible for mold and air to get into the container.

Q. What causes jelly or jam to darken at the top of the container?

A. Storage in too warm a place. Or a faulty seal that allows air to leak in.

Q. What causes fading?

A. Too warm a storage place or too long storage. Red fruits such as strawberries and raspberries are especially likely to fade.

Q. Why does fruit float in jam?

A. Fruit was not fully ripe, was not thoroughly crushed or ground, was not cooked long enough, or was not properly packed in glasses or jars. If glasses are used, stir jam before packing; if canning jars are used, shake jars gently after packing.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	2 ♥	3 ♦	Pass
4 ♥	Dble

Opening lead — six of diamonds.

If you don't believe in fairy tales, you won't believe this story, but I have it on good authority that this deal was played in the early days of contract bridge — more specifically, in 1927.

South bid one spade. Today we'd start with one club, but in those days the idea of bidding the suit under the singleton had not yet been developed.

West bid two hearts, a hair-raising venture by present standards, but people were more sporting in the 20's. North fearlessly joined the fray with three diamonds, but at least he had South's opening bid to lean on.

South was an imaginative player who realized he probably couldn't develop many diamond tricks in notrump, so he splashed right into four hearts — even though West had bid the suit. He thought he'd score enough high-card tricks in the side suits and enough low-card tricks in trumps to land ten of them.

West doubled — he couldn't accept this insult lying down — and led a diamond. South had no trouble making the contract; it was like taking candy from a baby. He cashed the A-K of diamonds, discarding a club, and led a club to the king, which lost to the ace.

Back came the ten of clubs. South took the queen, cashed the A-K of spades, ruffed a spade in dummy, then ruffed a diamond in his hand.

By this time South had won seven of the first eight tricks. He still had the A-Q-10 of hearts, a spade and a club. West had the K-J-9-8-5 of trumps, but they had gradually been losing their attraction.

Declarer now led a spade, forcing West to ruff and return a trump. South won with the ten and exited with a club. Again West ruffed and returned a trump, so South made four hearts doubled.

There was the days!

Child Services Is Answer

on for another helpful letter on the same subject.

DEAR ABBY: Ten lashes with a wet typewriter ribbon for advising that young girl who had been molested by her father to tell her mother. Not all mothers are sympathetic. Some are afraid of their husbands. Others don't want to rock the boat by facing reality. The girl may be better off bypassing her mother and going directly to an agency. The Children's Protective Services are the people to call. Please let children know this.

PHYLLIS IN CONCORD, N.H.

DEAR PHYLLIS: You are right. About 10 years ago, a 16-year-old St. Paul girl who was in the same predicament wrote seeking my help. I checked out her story and learned it was true. I then enlisted the help of a State Supreme Court justice in an effort to rescue the girl and deal with her father appropriately.

Incredible as it may seem, the girl's mother refused to press charges against her husband, saying, "If he's put away, there goes the family's paycheck." The daughter also refused to testify against her father, so we were stymied.

Children who are sexually molested by an adult should call the Children's Protective Service, if the community has one. Otherwise, tell a trusted adult friend, teacher, relative or neighbor. Or call the police.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Intervenor Get Request Okayed

Omaha (AP) — Intervenor in the Omaha School District integration case have been granted their request for an expedited appeal of the plan approved for the district.

Attorneys for both the school district and the intervenors agreed that the granting of an expedited hearing by the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals does not necessarily mean that any changes incorporated into the plan would take effect in September.

However, attorneys said it is possible that if the court agrees with the intervenors that changes are needed in the plan, the changes could go into effect in September.

The intervenors sought the expedited hearing because the school district faces court-ordered desegregation this fall. U.S. District Court Judge Albert G. Schatz earlier this year approved a plan submitted by the school district but incorporating modifications of the U.S. Justice Department.

The intervenors — seven black parents and 25 of their children — contend, among other things, that the plan places too great a burden on black students and exempts first graders from racial balance reassignment.

The school district had argued against the expedited hearing. No hearing date has been set.

A letter to attorneys from the Circuit Court clerk's office said the school district had 25 days to file its brief on the intervenors' objections to the approved plan. The intervenors then have seven days to respond.

Dedication Set For Nemaha Museum

Auburn — Plans have been completed for dedication ceremonies July 4 for the new Nemaha Valley Museum. The services will be the highlight of the Bicentennial in Auburn. A parade and old fashioned ice cream social are also on the agenda for Sunday, July 4.

School Issue Facing Voters

Emerson — Voters in the Dixon County School District of the Emerson-Hubbard community schools will go to the polls Tuesday to cast ballots on a proposed $180,000 school bond issue. The funds, if approved, would add a seventh and eighth grade facility to the present junior-senior high school building, a guidance area and a multi-purpose area.

Hinkle Chosen As Albion School Head

Albion — Nelson Hinkle of Benkleman has been named superintendent of the Albion public schools. He has served as head of the Benkleman schools for two years. Prior to going to Benkleman, he served five years as senior high principal at Gothenburg and Red Cloud and taught and coached at Laurel and Papillion.

Meyer Named Mayor Of Palmer

Range Contest Winners Told

Halsey (UPI) — Kerry Keys of Elsmere and Joann Gocke of Waco won top honors in competition at the Nebraska range youth camp. Keys was selected best in range judging, notebooks, participation and final exams. The Middle Niobrara Natural Resources District awarded Keys a silver buckle for taking first place. Miss Gocke received a plaque for finishing second.

Young Farmers Going On Tour

Ansley — With the Ansley chapter of the Nebraska Young Farmers and Ranchers Educational Association acting as host, the NYFREA tour will be held in Custer County July 30-31. The first day's itinerary includes stops to view a hay demonstration, traveling gun irrigation setup, crossbred cow-calf operation, swine confinement farrow-to-finish unit, and a program and dinner at the Broken Bow Country Club. The second day will include visits to Sargent Well Drilling, an irrigation grain crop farm, and a livestock operation featuring artificial insemination.

Engineers Will Meet To Study Papio Plan

Omaha (AP) — Five engineers from across the country will meet July 7 at the Omaha City-Douglas County building to begin reviewing the Papio flood control program.

A review was proposed by the Papio Valley Preservation Association, which says some of the dams recommended by the Army Corps of Engineers aren't needed to thwart flooding.

Corps officials said they don't object to the review, but said they won't be bound by its findings.

Colonel Russell Glenn, district engineer, said the corps was authorized by Congress to solve the flood problems, and its staff has spent years studying the situation. The corps' recommendations have been supported by a year-long, state-ordered study, so Glenn said the corps won't be bound by the findings a few days.

Douglas County Commissioner Daniel Lynch said the review will not delay the construction of dams because he said no new work can be started until spending is reauthorized by Congress. Lynch said results of the review will be submitted to Congress when reauthorization is considered, probably about October. Whether the results will have any effect on the project is not known.

Radio Personality Dies In Semi-Truck Collision

By The Associated Press A car-truck collision Friday took the life of Mrs. Marvin (Betty) Kroeger, 49, a radio personality and news reporter at Schuyler.

Coffax County Sheriff Richard Kruse said Mrs. Kroeger was turning left off Highway 30 onto a county road about three miles east of Schuyler when her car was struck broadside by a semi-trailer truck. The truck was driven by Roger Jungman, 22, of Atkinson, who escaped serious injury. Mrs. Kroeger conducted a daily news program from Schuyler for Columbus radio station KJSK and formerly was an area correspondent for KTTT in Columbus. For many years she was a stringer for the Omaha Bureau of The Associated Press. The 1976 Nebraska highway fatality toll stands at 139 compared with 141 on this date one year ago.

Omaha Man Found Drowned In Overflowing Bathtub Accident

Omaha (AP) — Omaha police said Bernard T. Schulte, 53, of Omaha, was found drowned late Saturday in his bathtub. Police said the drowning appeared to be accidental.

Reports show Schulte's roommate, Chester Gempka, went to investigate water running to lower floors from the upstairs bathroom about 5 p.m.

Gempka told police he and a neighbor broke into the locked bathroom and found Schulte.

Acting County Coroner James Keenan said an autopsy will be performed.

Brown Comes To Coast Plan's Aid

©The New York Times

Los Angeles — California's radical three-year-old program for controlling development along its 1,000-mile coast, suddenly blocked by the state legislature, has received a new lease on life with the help of Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr.

The young governor interrupted his campaigning for Democratic convention delegates last week to return to the state and confer with legislators on measures to substitute for a permanent coastal master plan that had been unexpectedly scuttled by development-minded state senators.

Brown said if the substitute did not move through the legislature expeditiously, he would call a special session to avert the program's threatened extinction at the end of the year.

His action ran counter to the interests of his father, former Gov. Edmund G. Brown, who as a lawyer heads the principal organization that has been fighting the coastal protection plan.

State Commission

The pending proposals, which essentially would perpetuate an interim program of stringent controls, would put all future coastal development under the discretion of a statewide citizen commission.

The major objectives of the program are to stop indiscriminate and haphazard coastal development, preserve unspoiled areas and farmland, and insure that future development in a belt extending five miles inland is attractive, to provide maximum enjoyment of the shore by Californians and visitors.

It is the most comprehensive program yet implemented among the 30 coastal and Great Lake states, all of which are formulating plans under the Federal Coastal Zone Management Act of 1972.

The California plan has been bitterly opposed by development and business interests — real estate groups, port authorities, interests, and commercial boating interests, and also by coastal cities and counties jealous of their autonomy.

The program originated in a ballot initiative measure written by environmental groups that was strongly supported by voters in the 1972 election.

Under it, a statewide citizen commission and six regional commissions were established with almost absolute authority over coastal development.

Any construction, even on a private homesite, costing more than $7,500 required a permit from a regional commission. Its rulings could be appealed to the state commission.

The commission's permit jurisdiction extended 1,000 yards inland from the ocean and out to the three-mile extent of state territory.

One of the program's basic criteria was a flat ban on any shoreline construction that would obscure the ocean view from the nearest coastal highway. Other policies called for facilities accommodating numbers of people rather than single-family residences.

Three-Year Plan

The original law provided for this pattern of administration for three years during the preparation of a permanent program enacted by the legislature.

The experimental period has gone more smoothly than most people expected. The commissions have handled thousands of development applications and have approved 90% of them, both in number and in dollar value.

However, many were approved only with modifications; the permits denied involve some large high-rise projects, and many projects did not reach the application stage.

The state commission even dictated certain physical features of the enlargement of a coastal atomic power plant at San Onofre, to protect beach access and use. It has also delayed some projected offshore oil drilling in federal waters beyond the state limit at Santa Barbara.

McCollister Critical Of Pharmacy Stance

Washington (UPI) — Rep. John Y. McCollister, R-Neb., said Sunday the Department of Health, Education and Welfare has been "particularly insensitive to the needs of pharmacists."

McCollister commented in announcing the appointment of a Bellevue pharmacist to a HEW advisory committee.

McCollister said John A. Johnson would serve on the department's Pharmaceutical Reimbursement Advisory Committee which advises HEW on prescription drug payments made under Medicare, Medicaid and other federal health programs.

Johnson is on the National Association of Retail Druggists Executive Committee and is the Nebraska Pharmaceutical Association's Legislative Committee chairman.

McCollister said HEW has been "particularly insensitive to the needs of pharmacists" which was "just another example of big government's lack of concern for small businessmen."

The 2nd District congressman cited proposed HEW regulations which would establish the maximum prescription drug costs eligible for reimbursement under federal programs.

"The proposed regulations would bury small businessmen in government red tape," McCollister said. "And it's unnecessary."

McCollister said half of the independent retail pharmacies in the nation recorded less than 5% net profit on their transactions.

Five Rare Tigers Die; Officials Seek Cause

Omaha (AP) — Henry Doory Zoo officials Sunday were trying to determine what caused five of the world's rarest breed of tiger to collapse and die here Saturday.

Dr. Lee Simmons, zoo director, said three male and two female Sumatran tigers died between 24 and 48 hours after being wormed with a drug also given to five polar bears and five orangutans.

"They've all received that drug a number of times before and none of the other animals who were given it has shown any symptoms," Simmons said. "But right now that is our best guess. It's the only thing we've got to go on."

Simmons said the tigers showed no symptoms of a bad reaction to the medication prior to their death. A sixth tiger, a female, was given the same medication but did not appear abnormal.

About seven of the cats remain in the United States and about 200 are believed to be left in the world, Simmons said.

'Missing' Boy Is Found

Omaha (UPI) — An Omaha boy who was last seen by his mother June 10 was found with his father in Albion, police said Sunday.

Police said Albion police confirmed Sunday that David

Bader, 13, was with his father.

The boy's mother, Delores Hartman, told police her son went to visit a brother in Omaha June 10, but she found out later her son never arrived.

Ed Zorinsky: Museum Plan Revision Due

Omaha (AP) — Omaha Mayor Edward Zorinsky wants to scale down the amount and length of a proposed agreement with the Western Heritage Society to convert the old Union Station into a museum.

A proposed agreement with the society calls for the city to provide up to $50,000 a year for seven years for renovation and capital improvements to the station. But Zorinsky wants the time cut to two years.

Zorinsky also is asking that instead of making direct payments to the society for renovation or improvements, the city provide the repairs or improvements.

The changes in the proposed agreement will be sought from the Omaha City Council when it considers the contract with the Western Heritage Society Tuesday.

Zorinsky has held out the possibility of a veto of the measure if changes are not made in the agreement.

Reagan's New Twist Puts Emphasis On Help For Minorities

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ronald Reagan is still campaigning to cut the size and cost of the federal government, but with a new twist that emphasizes helping minorities, the poor, aged or welfare recipients.

Reagan says he is countering the "hard-nose" or "right-wing" image that his foes paint of him.

Reagan's basic message on the campaign platform hasn't changed much in recent months.

It is sprinkled with phrases such as "government does its best sometimes when government does nothing" and "I don't believe Washington is the problem."

But over the weekend in Iowa and Washington, where Reagan campaigned at state Republican conventions for presidential delegates, there was a new emphasis in the speeches.

It is on the record of Reagan's actions as governor of California to help low-income families, children, minorities, the aged, welfare recipients and the mentally ill, among others.

Aides insist there was nothing new in the speeches. And very little of it is new except the emphasis and the sometimes defensive introduction Reagan gives to this side of his record.

"There have been those who have tried in the image-making that goes on in politics to suggest his (Reagan's) only concern while in there in government was cutting and squeezing and trimming," he told a Spokane audience Saturday.

"They say he (Reagan) had no regard for the problems of human misery, no regard for humanity and other things that government is expected to do."

"The result has been a kind of hard-nosed image in which today there are those who ask the question, 'Isn't he perhaps so narrow in his ideological views that he would have difficulty getting elected in November,'" Reagan said.

"We can go down a number of things. For example, this so-called right-wing individual (Reagan) appointed more minority community members to executive and policy-making positions in state government than all the previous governors of California put together. And I introduced the family weekend visit to prisoners," he said in Iowa.

"We increased the supplemental support for the elderly, the blind and the disabled to the point that we're the highest in the nation in that kind of support," Reagan continued.

"We not only reformed welfare, but we increased the grants to the truly needy by 43 per cent."

Reagan also says his administration adopted new treatment methods for the mentally ill which, although increasing the cost per patient, "became a pattern for the whole world."

"We added 227 square miles to state park land," he continued.

"We increased, by more than double the rate of increases in enrollment, our support for the state universities. And for the schools at the local level, to take more burden off the property taxpayer, we increased the state aid for schools 24 times the increase in enrollment," he said.

Reagan also says that as governor, he increased state scholarships ninefold, extended Medicaid benefits to an extra 800,000 low income Californians, raised California from 11th to third in rehabilitation and job placements for the handicapped, and increased state support of treatment programs for alcoholism and drug abuse.

He also cites increased homeowner property tax exemptions, and an increase in the amount of family income excluded from state income taxes from the first $2,000 a year to $8,000.

Most of those claims are unchallenged, except that some of the increases in spending which he cites are not as dramatic as they sound when spread over eight years and compared to inflation rates.

And the mental health program, which converted many former state hospital patients in outpatients of local clinics, has its vocal critics as well as admirers.

This record also does not mention three major tax increases Reagan signed as governor, which helped in his eight years to double state revenues and spending, and provide the funds for the tax refunds.

The new emphasis in the Reagan record on California is another step in his attempt to counter the claim by President Ford's backers that Reagan is not as electable as Ford.

Reagan has been countering that by citing the Democrats and independents who voted for him in crossover states, and his election twice as governor of California, once by one million votes and once by over 500,000 in the face of a Democratic registration majority of two million voters.

Reagan: 'I'm Ready For Jimmy Carter'

By The Associated Press

Ronald Reagan, trailing President Ford by only 73 delegates, is predicting a first-ballot victory at the GOP national convention and says, "I'm prepared for Jimmy Carter."

Returning from a 30-hour campaign tour of Iowa and Washington State, the former California governor told reporters he is on target for collecting the 1,130 national delegate votes needed to defeat President Ford for the Republican presidential nomination.

The Associated Press tally showed Ford had 1,005 delegates pledged to him at the end of selections in Iowa, Delaware, Texas, Colorado and Washington State during the weekend. Reagan ended up with 932. Only 137 delegates remain to be chosen, and there are 164 in the uncommitted category.

On the Democratic side, Carter, a former Georgia governor, has been virtually assured of the Democratic nomination. He now has 1,423 votes pledged to him out of the 1,506 required for nomination.

There were no delegate selections by the Democrats on Saturday and Sunday, but Carter gained six more votes in switches from other candidates or the uncommitted ranks, making him only 82 short of the nomination.

Reagan said he believes he has a better chance to beat Carter than Ford does. He said a Ford-Carter battle would focus on attacks against Ford deficits and on the Washington establishment to which Ford has belonged most of his life.

Washington State Republicans meeting in congressional district caucuses and a state convention on Saturday gave Reagan 31 of their 38 votes and Ford got the remaining seven.

In other GOP meetings, Ford won 12 of the 17 delegates chosen in Delaware on Friday. The other five were uncommitted. Reagan won all three delegates chosen in district conventions in Colorado and won four at-large delegates chosen in Texas on Saturday.

A Reagan-Carter contest, Reagan said, would force comparisons of the candidates' records as governors, and Reagan said his record would prove the better.

He conceded that he fell short of his goal of breaking even with Ford in delegate selection in Iowa on Saturday but said it was "a very good week."

"We were hopeful of an 18-18 split," Reagan said of the Iowa state convention where Ford won 19 delegates and Reagan won 17 on Saturday. "It came about as close as you can to splitting it, so that, with Washington, I think is a very good week."

Demos 'Harmonious' On Blacks Formula

WASHINGTON (AP) — With Jimmy Carter's forces in clear command, the Democratic Party's Rules Committee voted harmoniously Sunday on a formula designed to reverse a decline in the participation of blacks and other minorities in choosing the party's presidential nominee.

But Carter representatives defeated proposals for equal numbers of men and women delegates to Democratic national conventions and for drastic changes in the way the party chooses its vice presidential candidates.

Some party officials had expected Rules Committee issues to provide the only lively debate at the national convention and as the panel ended its session Sunday, losers on a number of issues were preparing minority reports for use in a likely floor fight at the convention in New York City.

The proposal from the Democratic Women's Caucus which stirred the most heated debate of the 53-member Rules

Committee's meetings would have required that beginning with the 1980 national convention each state's convention delegates be divided equally between men and women.

Michigan Delegate George R. Atkins, noting women make up 51.7 per cent of the population, urged approval. "We either accept women to walk beside us or we leave them in the kitchen," he said.

Among those supporting the 50-50 quota for men and women was Jean Westwood of Utah, a former Democratic National Committee chairwoman.

Former New York Gov. Averil Harriman, a prominent party figure for decades, offered an amendment on behalf of the Carter forces requiring only that future party leaders "promote" equal representation between the sexes beginning with the 1980 nominating convention.

The Harriman proposal passed 66 1/2 to 46 1/2. Some delegates had less than a full vote.

Care Needed For Jellies

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

You may get yourself into a jam which is not edible if you don't follow closely the directions for making jams, jellies and preserves.

Nothing hits the spot like homemade strawberry preserves or other fruit jams and jellies, but failure to follow directions can result in a waste of time, good fruit and sugar.

Esther Wyant, home extension agent for the Lancaster County Extension office, emphasizes the importance of starting with a sufficiently large kettle.

Jams and jellies should be cooked quickly on high heat, so a large kettle is necessary to keep the fruit and juice from boiling over when it reaches the necessary full-rolling boiling point.

An eight to 12 quart container is recommended for each four to five cups of juice, she said.

Failures Result

Miss Wyant also discourages doubling recipes because many jelly failures result from making large batches at a time.

In the first place, she notes, it is almost impossible to find a kettle large enough to accommodate double recipes to insure sufficient room for boiling without necessitating turning down the heat.

In using a thermometer to test doneness in jellies, one should remember that the jelling point is eight degrees above the boiling point of water.

According to Miss Wyant, the thermometer can be tested to determine where it registers boiling by putting three to four inches of water in a saucepan, bringing the water to boil and boiling five minutes before taking a reading on the thermometer.

For example, if the thermometer registers boiling at 210 degrees, then it should reach the jelling point at 218 degrees.

Fork Test

If a thermometer isn't available, one can use the fork test for doneness — when jelly hangs between the tongs of fork and doesn't just drip off, it is done.

To cut down on the amount of foam which forms when the jelly boils and to eliminate boil-overs, it is suggested that a small amount of butter or margarine (1/2 to 1 teaspoon) be added to jelly or jam prior to final minute of boiling.

Containers that can be sealed air-tight are needed for jams, preserves and marmalades. Glasses with lids may be used for jelly. Paraffin is necessary to cover jelly in glasses.

The extension office warns of dangers in melting paraffin for sealing jellies.

Since paraffin flames easily, it should be melted in a double boiler over hot water.

A thin layer of hot paraffin should be put on the hot jelly with a tablespoon. Miss Wyant suggests the tablespoon because that is about the right amount for covering the top of jelly. "One-eighth of an inch of paraffin is adequate," she said, noting that a single, thin layer gives a better seal than one thick layer.

Break Bubbles

Care should also be taken to break the bubbles in hot paraffin. If they are allowed to exist, they eventually will break and allow air into the jelly and increase the chances of mold forming.

When sealing containers with flats and rings, immediately after putting the lid on, the jar should be turned upside down for about five minutes to allow the hot jelly substance to sterilize the under side of the lid. This should eliminate any type of mold from ever forming.

According to Miss Wyant, jars to be sealed with lids should be filled to within one-fourth to one-eighth of an inch from the top of jar — the smaller the space at the top the better the jam or jelly will keep.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture also recommends for jams and preserves that a short process period of approximately five minutes be allowed for jars after they are filled.

For jellies, paraffin works well for sealing, but jams and preserves keep better with sealer lids.

Jelly loses its flavor in storage so it is best to make only the amount that can be used within a few months. Jams, jellies and preserves should be stored in a cool, dark, dry storage place.

A FRESH TREAT... homemade jams and jellies extend fruit season.

Pectin Varieties Determine Recipe

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

Pectin — whether natural or commercial — makes the jelling difference!

Before determining the kind of pectin you are going to use, check the order in which the recipe ingredients are combined.

Because of the difference between powdered and liquid pectins, each should be used only in recipes worked out for that form.

Powdered pectin is mixed with the unheated fruit juice and brought to a boil before the sugar is added.

Liquid pectin is added to the boiling juice and sugar mixture.

A one-minute boiling time is used with either form of pectin and time should be counted when the mixture reaches a full rolling boil, which cannot be stirred down.

Jellies made without added pectin require less sugar per cup of fruit juice but require longer boiling time to bring the mixture to the proper sugar concentration. Thus the yield of jelly per cup of juice is less without pectin.

It is usually best to have part of the fruit underripe when no pectin is added, because underripe fruit has a higher pectin content than fully ripe fruit. Use of one-fourth underripe and three-fourths fully ripe fruit is recommended to assure sufficient pectin for making jelly.

It is important to have proper amounts of fruit, pectin, acid and sugar to make a good jellied product.

Pectin, a carbohydrate, is usually found just under the skin of the fruit. Some kinds of fruit have enough natural pectin to make jelly while others require added pectin to make jellies which hold their shape.

To extract the pectin, it is necessary to heat the fruit.

Made From Apples

Commercial fruit pectins are made from apples or citrus fruits. Pectins should be stored in a cool, dry place and should not be held over from one year to the next.

Acid in the jellied product is necessary for flavor and for gel formation. The acid content varies in different fruits and is higher in underripe than in fully ripe fruits. Lemon juice may be added to fruits low in acid.

Sugar helps in the gel formation and serves as a preserving agent and improves the flavor. It also has a firming effect on fruit preserves. Either beet or cane sugar can be used with equal success.

Fresh Fruit Jams, Jellies Require Different Pectins

Strawberry Jelly

Given below is a step-by-step method for making strawberry jelly with liquid pectin:

1. Select fully ripe strawberries. About three quart boxes are needed for each batch of jelly. Sort the berries. Wash about one quart at a time by placing berries in a wire basket and moving the basket up and down several times in cold water. Drain the berries.

2. Remove caps and crush the berries. Place crushed berries, a small amount at a time, in a damp jelly bag or double thickness of cheesecloth held in a colander over a bowl.

3. Bring the edges of the cloth together and twist tightly. Press or squeeze to extract the juice. Strain the juice again through two thicknesses of damp cheesecloth without squeezing.

4. Measure 4 cups of juice into a large kettle. Add 7 1/2 cups of sugar to the juice; stir to dissolve the sugar. Place the kettle over high heat and, stirring constantly, bring the mixture quickly to a full rolling boil that cannot be stirred down.

5. Add 1 bottle of liquid pectin. Again, bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard for one minute. Remove from heat and skim off foam quickly. If allowed to stand, the jelly may start to "set" in the kettle.

6. Pour jelly immediately into hot glasses to 1/2 inch of the top. Cover each glass with a 1/8 inch layer of paraffin. Cool glasses on a metal rack or folded cloth, then cover with metal or paper lids, label and store in a cool, dry place.

Apple Jelly

The process for making apple jelly without added pectin is as follows:

1. Use tart, firm apples. It takes about three pounds for a batch of jelly; about one-fourth of them should be underripe. Sort and wash the apples. Remove stems and blossom ends and cut apples into small pieces. Do not pare or core.

2. Put apples into kettle. Add 1 cup water per pound of apples. Cover, bring to boil on high heat. Reduce heat and simmer until apples are tender, about 20 to 25 minutes, depending on the firmness or ripeness of the fruit.

3. Put cooked apples into a jelly bag and allow to drip, or press to remove juice. Strain pressed juice through two thicknesses of damp cheesecloth without squeezing.

4. Measure 4 cups of the apple juice into a large kettle. Add 3 cups of sugar and 2 tablespoons of lemon juice, if desired. Stir to dissolve the sugar.

5. Place on high heat and boil rapidly to 8 degrees F. above the boiling point of water, or until jelly mixture sheets from a spoon. Remove from heat. Skim off foam.

6. Pour jelly immediately into hot containers. Fill glasses to within 1/2 inch of top and cover with 1/8 inch layer of paraffin. Or fill canning jars to 1/2 inch of top; wipe rims of jars. Place clean, hot metal lid on, with sealing compound next to glass. Screw metal band down tight. Cool jars on a metal rack or folded cloth. Then label and store in a cool, dry place.

Peach Jam

The process for making peach jam with powdered pectin is given below:

1. Sort and wash fully-ripe peaches. Remove stems, skins and pits.

2. Crush or chop the peaches. A stainless steel potato masher is useful for this purpose.

3. Measure 3 3/4 cups of crushed

peaches into a large kettle.

4. Add one package of powdered pectin and 1/4 cup of lemon juice. Stir well to dissolve the pectin. Place on high heat and, stirring constantly, bring quickly to a full boil with bubbles over the entire surface.

5. Stir in 5 cups of sugar, continue stirring, and heat again to a full bubbling boil. Boil hard for one minute, stirring constantly to prevent sticking. Remove jam from heat and skim and stir alternately for five minutes to help prevent fruit from floating.

6. Pour the jam into hot glasses to 1/2 inch of top. Process 5 minutes in boiling water bath. Cool glasses on a metal rack or folded cloth, then cover them with metal or paper lids. After cooling, label and store in a cool, dry place.

Hyperactive Study Shows Continuity

(c) Chicago Daily News
Chicago — Hyperactive children frequently carry over symptoms of their restlessness and impulsiveness into adulthood, a followup study showed recently.

Behavior scientists studied 20 men who were hyperactive as children 20 to 25 years ago and found half continued to show overactivity and psychiatric problems.

They worked more hours a week, changed jobs more often and even took extra weekend jobs. While enjoying the income, they also regarded work as a means of avoiding feelings of nervousness and restlessness in periods of inactivity.

The study was carried out by Drs. Barry L. Borland and Harold K. Heckman.

Pate Roughly Open Hero

DULUTH, Ga. (AP) — Jerry Pate broke into a smile when he recalled a five-iron shot from the rough on the 18th hole.

"It was my chance to be a hero," he said, then reconsidered. "Well, not a hero."

"But I wanted to win the Open."

"I knew I could get it over the water."

"I didn't want to lay up and make five and go into a playoff with Tom Weiskopf and Al Geiberger. They're such great players."

"When that shot started coming down, when I knew it was on the green, it was the greatest feeling in the world."

"I knew I had won the Open."

And he did. This slender, blond rookie pro won the United States Open Golf Championship Sunday with a final round 68, a gritty performance down the stretch and a magnificent shot from the rough, over water, to within two feet of the flag on the final hole.

It was the shot that killed the playoff hopes of Weiskopf and Geiberger and set up a clinching birdie he really didn't need. He had a one stroke lead over Weiskopf and Geiberger, who had finished, and needed only to make par on the last hole.

But he was in the rough and had 180 yards to the green, over water. He could lay up short, or try for it. He'd just watched John Mahaffey's bid come to a wet and watery grief. But he never hesitated.

"I knew I could make it. And if I could get it on the green, I knew I could two-putt."

He didn't have to. He dropped the short putt, completed his mastery of the damp and deadly, 7,015 yard Atlanta Athletic Club course and, in the tradition of Jack Nicklaus and Lee Trevino, scored his first professional triumph in the American national championship.

He won by two strokes with a 72 hole total of 277, three under par.

The deeply talented Weiskopf, who once reeled off a string of three consecutive birdies and appeared poised to add this national championship to the British Open title he won four years ago, and the veteran Geiberger finished in a tie for second at 279, one under. Weiskopf composed a 68 in the rain-delayed final round and Geiberger shot a 69.

Mahaffey, an embittered and all but destroyed playoff loser in this tournament a year ago, again had to content himself with thought of what might have been. He took a one stroke lead at the end of the second round. He once had a six-shot lead in the storm-delayed third round and finished that 18 holes in darkness with a two stroke advantage.

The baby-faced battler, perhaps the most intensely competitive man on the tour, led through this one until he bogeyed the 18th hole, dropping him into a share of the lead with Pate.

He turned his back to the national television cameras, his blond head down and his shoulders slumped.

He bogeyed the next one, three-putting, and had to make birdie on the final hole to have a chance at a tie.

The 28-year-old Mahaffey went for it all. He almost came off his feet on the drive off the tee on the 460-yard hole. He got it in the rough. And he went after the next one boldly, gambling it all, jerking a wood club from his bag.

The shot didn't clear the water. He had to one-putt for a bogey and finished with a 73 and a tie for fourth with veteran Butch Baird at 280, even par. Baird, wearing a broad-brimmed planter hat in the mild, overcast weather, had a 67.

Hubert Green, the season's leading money winner, closed with a 69 and was next at 282. British Open king Tom Watson had a round of 70 to finish at 284. Ben Crenshaw scrambled to a 73 and tied Lyn Lott, also with a 73, at 285.

Johnny Miller never got in the chase. He shot a 71 to finish with a 286. Masters champion Ray Floyd was 72-288, Gary Player 70-292, Hale Irwin 71-293, defending title-holder Lou Graham 73-294 and Arnold Palmer had a fourth consecutive 75 for 300.

"Kind of in a rut," mused Palmer.

Jack Nicklaus, the pre-tourney pick to make this his fourth American national championship, birdied three in a row on the back nine but couldn't keep it going. Nicklaus, who didn't make a birdie through the first 46 holes of this tournament, finished well back at 287.

"I always seem to play well when it doesn't mean anything," Nicklaus said.

"When you make three birdies in a row it gives you a lift. You then think if you can make five or six more something can happen. But I didn't—and it didn't."

Weiskopf had 11 consecutive pars until he reached the par five 12th in two and two-putted for a birdie. He holed one from 12-15 feet for birdie on the next one, and scored from about the same distance on the next, saluting the falling putt with a happy grin and a thrusting, clenched fist.

That put him two under and he seemed on the move.

But he bogeyed the next, missing the green and almost chipping into the water. He saved a scrambling par on the 15th.

Nastase Eyes Wimbledon Upset

WIMBLEDON (UPI) — Arthur Ashe will be the top seed and Jimmy Connors the book-makers' favorite, but when the Wimbledon Championships enter their 100th year Monday the Nastase will be the player both men could have to beat.

Ashe, the defending champion, will have the honor of serving the first ball of the $279,200 championships on the impeccably manicured grass of the All-England center court and should have few problems overcoming the opening round hurdle of Ferdi Taygan, the 57th-ranked U.S. player from Framingham, Mass.

Ashe has been seeded to meet Connors in a replay of last year's final in two week's time. Connors' first match against Italy's Antonio Zugarelli should not stretch him too far but after that the draw has not been kind to the left-hander from Belleville, Ill. He has probable matches with Stan Smith, the 1972 champion, fellow American Roscoe Tanner, who defeated him two weeks ago, and then Bjorn Borg, the No. 4 seed.

But while Ashe has a comparatively calm early passage, Nastase, the mercurial Romanian, will be lurking as a possible semifinal opponent.

Nastase, possibly the most talented all-around player in the world at the moment, has the skill to beat anybody, but more often than not ends up defeating himself with his wild on-court antics.

"If this is not my Wimbledon, I don't see another time for me," said Nastase, who will be 30 next month. "I was playing badly last year but now I am playing really well again and I want to win a big tournament. What is bigger than Wimbledon?"

Nastase and Connors met Saturday in the final of the John Player tournament in Nottingham, about 150 miles north of here. The result proved inconclusive because each won a set and were 1-1 in the third when rain stopped play and forced them to share the $28,300 prize money.

"Real pneumonia weather," commented Connors, and the officials of the All-England Club will be hoping Sunday's rain gives way to sunshine for the anticipated 340,000 patrons whom they hope will flock to this fashionable suburb in southwest London.

Nastase, the No. 3 seed, also will have a light first round task against Yugoslavia's Niki Spear, who has only beaten him once, four years ago.

The women as usual will not see action on the opening day and Chris Evert, the top seed and even money favorite, will welcome the day of rest after winning the women's Colgate tournament at Eastbourne Sunday.

WIMBLEDON (UPI) — The order of play Monday on Wimbledon's three premier courts. Play starts at 2 p.m. (9 a.m. EDT):

Center court: Arthur Ashe, U.S., vs Ferdi Taygan, U.S.; Tom Okker, Holland, vs Sandy Mayer, U.S.; Antonio Zugarelli, Italy, vs Jimmy Connors, U.S.; Dick Crealy, Australia, vs Bob Carmichael, Australia.

No. 1 court: Barry Phillips-Moore, Australia, vs Guillermo Vilas, Argentina; Syd Ball, Australia, vs Tony Roche, Australia; Frank McMillan, South Africa, vs Marty Riessen, U.S.; Phil Dent, Australia, vs John Lloyd, Britain.

No. 2 court: Sashi Menon, India, vs Roger Taylor, Britain; David Lloyd, Britain, vs Bjorn Borg, Sweden; Ray Moore, South Africa, vs Mark Edmondson, Australia.

Finley's Suit To Be Asking $10 Million

NEW YORK (AP) — The lawyer for Oakland A's owner Charles O. Finley said Sunday he was filing a lawsuit against baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn and his office, asking for damages in "the neighborhood of $10 million" and asking for a preliminary injunction.

Neil Papiano, speaking by telephone from Los Angeles, said the complaint would be filed "Monday but more likely on Tuesday." There would be several causes of action, Papiano said—"at least five."

Papiano said there would be four or five damage causes of action and a request for an injunction to halt Kuhn's cancellation of the sale of three of Finley's players for $3.5 million.

He said the computation of a damage figure "starts at $3.5 million and escalates from there." Where the suit will be filed hasn't been decided yet—either a state or federal court in California. "Whichever court we think will give us a quicker hearing," Papiano said.

The lawyer said there has been no change in Finley's order not to play the trio of players in limbo—Vida Blue, Rolie Fingers and Joe Rudi.

"This is not a vindictive move," Papiano said. "It's made from legal and practical considerations. These are somebody else's players. We can't play somebody else's property. What if they get hurt?"

By blocking the sale of three of Finley's top players, Kuhn has united his enemies, divided his supporters and steered baseball into, potentially, its worst legal mess of all time.

Kuhn, acting loudly and clearly in the top of the inning, canceled Finley's clearance sales of Vida Blue to the New York Yankees for $1.5 million, and Rolie Fingers and Joe Rudi to the Boston Red Sox for $1 million apiece.

But whether the commissioner acted legally will begin to unfold Monday, in the bottom of the inning, when Finley gets his turn to bat.

"It just goes to show you how far out Bowie Kuhn is," said Finley. "When both Marvin Miller and the owner of a ball club are thinking the same way, the other person has to be wrong."

"We, Finley and (Yankee owner George) Steinbrenner do make for strange bedfellows," Moss said. "But issues change and interests change."

Another Trip

Omaha — Ak-Sar-Ben placing judge Ray Beard was in Boston Sunday watching the Massachusetts Handicap at Suffolk Downs.

Beard, who is becoming a world-renowned traveler, was making his second eastern jaunt trying to lure some of the country's top older horses to Ak-Sar-Ben's $100,000-added Cornhusker Handicap on July 3.

Although the official list of nominees for Ak-Sar-Ben's featured attraction for older horses won't be released until early this week, it was understood that Dan Lasater's Royal Gint was a possible nominee.

But an unfortunate event occurred. According to The Associated Press, Royal Gint collapsed while challenging for the lead of the Mass. Handicap at the five-eighths pole. The AP reported the horse dropped to the ground, but was revived by handlers and vets. He regained his feet and officials said the heat caused the collapse.

"He began to lose his action halfway down the backstretch," Royal Gint's rider Jorge Tejeria said. "When I saw him bleeding, I started to ease up. I'll be all right and I hope my horse is. He's a good one. He just bled and that's all there is to it."

Whether Royal Gint recovers or not in time for the Cornhusker or is even sent here is open to question. Nevertheless, Beard said seven of the entrants in the Suffolk Downs' race will probably be nominated for the Cornhusker.

On The Sly, fifth in the Kentucky Derby, is already at Ak-Sar-Ben and his presence in Saturday's $100,000-added Omaha Gold Cup Stakes for 3-year-olds certainly adds to the races prestige.

"It really helps when people who are familiar with the Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Belmont Stakes can come here and watch a horse they've been hearing and seeing on television," Beard said before leaving. "Last year, you saw the crowd (more than 30,000) who came here to watch Preakness winner Master Derby."

"Meeting the horsemen really helps us get some name horses for nominees. Then the thing is getting them here. If the transportation problems to Omaha were ever solved — watch out," he noted.

Other Notes

Life's Hope, one of the country's top 3-year-olds, has apparently decided to skip Saturday's Gold Cup and will try the $125,000-added Ohio Derby at Thistledown.

Omaha's daily mutual handle and attendance averages continue to show gains over last year's previous records.

The mutual handle average is $1,280,078, which is 13.01 per cent higher than last year's $1,132,622. The average crowd of 14,229 is 1.48 per cent better than last year's mark of 14,710.

Give an "A" to Missy, who assisted track announcer Bill Murphy, during Saturday's pre-race overweights show. Adorned in a fancy dress and cap made by Inez Chikcutt, wife of racing director Noel Chikcutt, the cute dog appeared on Murphy's daily television program. Inside sources say after a brief rest, Missy is scheduled for additional appearances.

Anderson, Van Berg To Be Enshrined

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Omaha — Irv Anderson has received many awards.

Honors for an outstanding jockey career, for a career as a horse racing official. He even is a member of the Lincoln Journal's Nebraska Sports Hall of Fame. But his upcoming induction into the Nebraska Racing Hall of Fame is probably the one he cherishes the most.

"I'm pretty happy to be in the Journal's Hall of Fame since there's some pretty big names in it. But since this is just for racing, I have to consider it the No. 1 award," he said.

Anderson, who lives in Hoskins, and outstanding trainer Jack Van Berg of Columbus will be inducted into the Nebraska Racing Hall of Fame in ceremonies at Ak-Sar-Ben on July 19.

Van Berg, one of the country's top

trainers, has been the nation's leading trainer in number of wins five times, including four of the last eight years. In 1974, he set a national record in wins — 329.

For 17 consecutive years, Van Berg has been Ak-Sar-Ben's top trainer. His father, the late Marion H. Van Berg, was the first Hall of Fame selection.

He also won national training titles in 1968 with 256 wins, in 1969 with 239, in 1970 with 282 and in 1972 with 286. His career totals through 1975 were 2,773 wins and purses totaling $11,104,925.

While Anderson knew he was a candidate for inclusion into the hall that was founded in 1966, he still was surprised.

"I knew I was being considered for several years, but, of course, there's a lot of names on the list. That makes it another honor to be chosen," Anderson said.

He began his career in 1935 as a jockey for the famed Calumet Farm. He worked for Calumet through October, 1940, under trainers Bert Williams, Frank Kearns and Ben Jones.

He was drafted into military service in the fall of 1941. After his discharge, he rode for about four months before weight finally cornered him.

Now Anderson serves as a steward at Fomer Park in Grand Island, the State Fairgrounds in Lincoln, Columbus and Atokad Park near South Sioux City. He is the paddock judge at Ak-Sar-Ben.

He termed Bull Lea the best horse he ever rode. Bull Lea was the 290-1 second favorite in the 1938 Kentucky Derby but finished eighth.

"We just ran him out of gas before the Derby," Anderson said. "If the Derby had been the day of the Blue Grass (about 10 days before at Kennelwood Race Track in nearby Lexington), he would have won. Of course, the favorite ran out too (Fighting Fox, the 7-5 choice was sixth).

"They still remember me at Calumet. I was back there a few years ago showing Harry Farnham (chairman of the Nebraska State Racing Commission) around and they said 'you don't have to sign in. You know where to go and how to get there.'"

Anderson's greatest moments in racing now revolve around helping young riders. His two "pupils" are Rob Williams and Ken Middagh.

Over the years, he's helped hundreds of riders learn the secrets that made him one of the sport's greats.

"I always take time out to help them. It really makes me feel good when they do well. It would for anybody. I've been doing that for a long time," he said.

The Racing Hall of Fame honors persons who have achieved racing fame for Nebraska. The permanent Hall of Fame is at Ak-Sar-Ben on public display.

Freezing Fruit Delays Summer Jam Making

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

If you don't want to heat up the kitchen with cooking jams and jellies when the fruits are ripe, freeze the fruits and make the jelly next winter.

This is the advice of Lancaster County Home Extension Agent Esther Wyant, who notes that energy can be conserved now and the aroma and warmth from cooking of jams and jellies is a "real treat" on a cold winter day.

Any fresh fruit may be canned or frozen as fruit or juice and used in a jellied product later.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture recommends that the fruit and juice be canned or frozen unsweetened. However, if sugar is added, that amount should be noted and subtracted from the amount called for in the jelly or jam recipe.

Fruit should be canned in its own juice or with only a small amount of water.

It is also recommended that at least part underripe fruit be used if the canned or frozen fruit is to be used without added pectin for making jelly.

Unsweetened commercially canned or frozen fruit or juice can also be used in jellied products but added pectin will be needed since such products are made from fully ripe fruit.

Below are recipes for jellies and jam made from frozen fruits or juices:

Grape Jelly from Frozen Concentrate

1 box powdered pectin
2 1/4 cups water
6-oz. can frozen grape concentrate
3/4 cups sugar
Combine pectin and water in large saucepan and bring to a full rolling boil. Boil hard for one minute, stirring constantly. Lower heat; add juice and sugar and stir until both are completely dissolved. Do not boil. Remove from heat and pour into hot sterilized jars and seal. Store in the refrigerator. Makes five half-pints.

Frozen Berry Jam
2 boxes (2 1/2 cups) crushed frozen strawberries or raspberries
1 T. lemon juice
2 1/2 cups sugar
1 package powdered pectin
1 cup water
Allow frozen berries to warm to room temperature. Mix in lemon juice and sugar and let stand for 20 minutes, stirring occasionally. Combine water and pectin in saucepan and bring to a rolling boil, stirring constantly. Boil for one minute. Add pectin solution to the berry and sugar mixture and stir for two minutes. Pour jam into jars, leaving 1/2 inch space at the top. Seal and allow to stand at room temperature until set. Store in the refrigerator. Makes five half-pints.

If jam is too firm, stir to soften. If it tends to separate, stir to blend. If it is too soft, bring it to a boil; it will thicken up on cooling.

Solutions Abound For Homemade Jelly Problems

Given below are USDA answers to questions commonly asked by homemakers who have had unsatisfactory results in making jellies and jams.

Q. What makes jelly cloudy?

A. One or more of the following may cause cloudy jelly:

1. Pouring jelly mixture into glasses too slowly.
2. Allowing jelly mixture to stand before it is poured.
3. Juice was not properly strained and so contained pulp.
4. Jelly set too fast — usually the result of using too-green fruit.

Q. Why do crystals form in jelly?

A. Crystals throughout the jelly may be caused by too much sugar in the jelly mixture, or cooking the mixture too little, too slowly, or too long. Crystals that form at the top of jelly that has been opened and allowed to stand are caused by evaporation of liquid. (Crystals in grape jelly may be tartrate crystals.)

Q. What causes jelly to be too soft?

A. One or more of the following may be the cause:

1. Too much juice in the mixture.
2. Too little sugar.
3. Mixture not acid enough.
4. Making too big a batch at one time.

Q. What can be done to make soft jellies firmer?

A. Soft jellies can sometimes be improved by recooking according to the directions given below. It is best to recook only 4 to 6 cups of jelly at one time.

To remake with powdered pectin.
Measure the jelly to be recooked. For each quart of jelly measure 1/4 cup sugar, 1/4 cup water, and 4 teaspoons powdered pectin. Mix the pectin and water and bring to boiling, stirring constantly to prevent scorching. Add the jelly and sugar. Stir thoroughly. Bring to a full rolling boil over high heat, stirring constantly. Boil mixture hard for 1/2 minute. Remove jelly from the heat, skim, pour into hot containers, and seal.

To remake with liquid pectin.
Measure the jelly to be recooked. For each quart of jelly measure 3/4 cup sugar, 2 Tbsp. lemon juice, and 2 Tbsp. liquid pectin. Bring jelly to boiling over high heat. Quickly add the sugar, lemon juice, and pectin and bring to a full rolling boil; stir constantly. Boil mixture hard for one minute. Remove jelly from the heat, skim, pour into hot containers, and seal.

To remake without added pectin.
Heat the jelly to boiling and boil for a few minutes. Test to determine how long to cook it. (Undercooked can sometimes be recooked but little can be done to improve an overcooked mixture. Signs of overcooking are a change in color of mixture and a taste or odor of caramelized sugar.) Remove jelly from the heat, skim, pour into hot containers, and seal.

Q. What makes jelly syrupy?

A. Too little pectin, acid or sugar. A great excess of sugar can also cause syrupy jelly.

Q. What causes weeping jelly?

A. Too much acid. Layer of paraffin too thick. Storage place was too warm or storage temperature fluctuated.

Q. What makes jelly too stiff?

A. Too much pectin (fruit was not ripe enough or too much added pectin was used.) Overcooking.

Q. What makes jelly tough?

A. Mixture had to be cooked too long to reach jellying stage, a result of too little sugar.

Q. What makes jelly gummy?

A. Overcooking.

Q. What causes fermentation of jelly?

A. Too little sugar, or improper sealing.

Q. Why does mold form on jelly or jam?

A. Because an imperfect seal has made it possible for mold and air to get into the container.

Q. What causes jelly or jam to darken at the top of the container?

A. Storage in too warm a place. Or a faulty seal that allows air to leak in.

Q. What causes fading?

A. Too warm a storage place or too long storage. Red fruits such as strawberries and raspberries are especially likely to fade.

Q. Why does fruit float in jam?

A. Fruit was not fully ripe, was not thoroughly crushed or ground, was not cooked long enough, or was not properly packed in glasses or jars. If glasses are used, stir jam before packing; if canning jars are used, shake jars gently after packing.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	2 ♥	3 ♦	Pass
4 ♥	Dble

Opening lead — six of diamonds.

If you don't believe in fairy tales, you won't believe this story, but I have it on good authority that this deal was played in the early days of contract bridge — more specifically, in 1927.

South bid one spade. Today we'd start with one club, but in those days the idea of bidding the suit under the singleton had not yet been developed.

West bid two hearts, a hair-raising venture by present standards, but people were more sporting in the 20's. North fearlessly joined the fray with three diamonds, but at least he had South's opening bid to lean on.

South was an imaginative player who realized he probably couldn't develop many diamond tricks in notrump, so he splashed right into four hearts — even though West had bid the suit. He thought he'd score enough high-card tricks in the side suits and enough low-card tricks in trumps to land ten of them.

West doubled — he couldn't accept this insult lying down — and led a diamond. South had no trouble making the contract; it was like taking candy from a baby. He cashed the A-K of diamonds, discarding a club, and led a club to the king, which lost to the ace.

Back came the ten of clubs. South took the queen, cashed the A-K of spades, ruffed a spade in dummy, then ruffed a diamond in his hand.

By this time South had won seven of the first eight tricks. He still had the A-Q-10 of hearts, a spade and a club. West had the K-J-9-8-5 of trumps, but they had gradually been losing their attraction.

Declarer now led a spade, forcing West to ruff and return a trump. South won with the ten and exited with a club. Again West ruffed and returned a trump, so South made four hearts doubled.

Them was the days!

Child Services Is Answer

DEAR ABBY: Please print this for that 14-year-old girl whose father molested her: I hope you will take Abby's advice and tell your mother. If not, call the police whose job it is to protect young people with problems like yours. Or, look for "Children's Services" in your telephone book. If you can't find it, dial "O" and ask your operator to help you. And if there is a hotline or a crisis center service in your area, call them.

When I was a newspaper reporter a few years ago, I interviewed the Children's Services people and found them to be some of the nicest people I had ever met. If you just can't tell your mother, ask the Children's Services people to tell her for you. Their job is to see that children are helped out of danger.

Your problem is more common than you realize. Don't worry about what the Children's Services people will think. They have heard it all before. Please don't keep this secret locked up inside you.

Abby cares. So do I.

A FRIEND
DEAR FRIEND: Please read

on for another helpful letter on the same subject.

DEAR ABBY: Ten lashes with a wet typewriter ribbon for advising that young girl who had been molested by her father to tell her mother. Not all mothers are sympathetic. Some are afraid of their husbands. Others don't want to rock the boat by facing reality. The girl may be better off bypassing her mother and going directly to an agency.

The Children's Protective Services are the people to call. Please let children know this.

PHYLLIS IN CONCORD, N.H.

DEAR PHYLLIS: You are right. About 10 years ago, a 16-year-old St. Paul girl who was in the same predicament wrote seeking my help. I checked out her story and learned it was true. I then enlisted the help of a State Supreme Court justice in an effort to rescue the girl and deal with her father appropriately.

Incredible as it may seem, the girl's mother refused to press charges against her husband, saying, "If he's put away, there goes the family's paycheck." The daughter also refused to testify against her father, so we were stymied.

Children who are sexually molested by an adult should call the Children's Protective Service, if the community has one. Otherwise, tell a trusted adult friend, teacher, relative or neighbor. Or call the police.

Reagan's New Twist Puts Emphasis On Help For Minorities

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ronald Reagan is still campaigning to cut the size and cost of the federal government, but with a new twist that emphasizes helping minorities, the poor, aged or welfare recipients.

Reagan says he is countering the "hard-nose" or "right-wing" image that his foes paint of him.

Reagan's basic message on the campaign platform hasn't changed much in recent months.

It is sprinkled with phrases such as "government does its best sometimes when government does nothing" and "I don't believe Washington is the problem."

But over the weekend in Iowa and Washington, where Reagan campaigned at state Republican conventions for presidential delegates, there was a new emphasis in the speeches.

It is on the record of Reagan's actions as governor of California to help low-income families, children, minorities, the aged, welfare recipients and the mentally ill, among others.

Aides insist there was nothing new in the speeches. And very little of it is new except the emphasis and the sometimes defensive introduction Reagan gives to this side of his record.

"There have been those who have tried in the image-making that goes on in politics to suggest his (Reagan's) only concern while in there in government was cutting and squeezing and trimming," he told a Spokane audience Saturday.

"They say he (Reagan) had no regard for the problems of human misery, no regard for humanity and other things that government is expected to do.

"The result has been a kind of hard-nosed image in which today there are those who ask the question, 'Isn't he perhaps so narrow in his ideological views that he would have difficulty getting elected in November,' " Reagan said.

"We can go down a number of things. For example, this so-called right-wing individual (Reagan) appointed more minority community members to executive and policy-making positions in state government than all the previous governors of California put together. And I introduced the family weekend visit to prisoners," he said in Iowa.

"We increased the supplemental support for the elderly, the blind and the disabled to the point that we're the highest in the nation in that kind of support," Reagan continued.

"We not only reformed welfare, but we increased the grants to the truly needy by 43 per cent."

Reagan also says his administration adopted new treatment methods for the mentally ill which, although increasing the cost per patient, "became a pattern for the whole world."

"We added 227 square miles to state park land," he continued.

"We increased, by more than double the rate of increases in enrollment, our support for the state universities. And for the schools at the local level, to take more burden off the property taxpayer, we increased the state aid for schools 24 times the increase in enrollment," he said.

Reagan also says that as governor, he increased state scholarships ninefold, extended Medicaid benefits to an extra 800,000 low income Californians, raised California from 11th to third in rehabilitation and job placements for the handicapped, and increased state support of treatment programs for alcoholism and drug abuse.

He also cites increased homeowner property tax exemptions, and an increase in the amount of family income excluded from state income taxes from the first $2,000 a year to $8,000.

Most of those claims are unchallenged, except that some of the increases in spending which he cites are not as dramatic as they sound when spread over eight years and compared to inflation rates.

And the mental health program, which converted many former state hospital patients in outpatients of local clinics, has its vocal critics as well as admirers.

This record also does not mention three major tax increases Reagan signed as governor, which helped in his eight years to double state revenues and spending, and provide the funds for the tax refunds.

The new emphasis in the Reagan record on California is another step in his attempt to counter the claim by President Ford's backers that Reagan is not as electable as Ford.

Reagan has been countering that by citing the Democrats and independents who voted for him in crossover states, and his election twice as governor of California, once by one million votes and once by over 500,000 in the face of a Democratic registration majority of two million voters.

Reagan: 'I'm Ready For Jimmy Carter'

By The Associated Press

Ronald Reagan, trailing President Ford by only 73 delegates, is predicting a first-ballot victory at the GOP national convention and says, "I'm prepared for Jimmy Carter."

Returning from a 30-hour campaign tour of Iowa and Washington State, the former California governor told reporters he is on target for collecting the 1,130 national delegate votes needed to defeat President Ford for the Republican presidential nomination.

The Associated Press tally showed Ford had 1,005 delegates pledged to him at the end of selections in Iowa, Delaware, Texas, Colorado and Washington State during the weekend. Reagan ended up with 932. Only 157 delegates remain to be chosen, and there are 164 in the uncommitted category.

On the Democratic side, Carter, a former Georgia governor, has been virtually assured of the Democratic nomination. He now has 1,423 votes pledged to him out of the 1,506 required for nomination.

There were no delegate selections by the Democrats on Saturday and Sunday, but Carter gained six more votes in switches from other candidates or the uncommitted ranks, making him only 82 short of the nomination.

Demos 'Harmonious' On Blacks Formula

WASHINGTON (AP) — With Jimmy Carter's forces in clear command, the Democratic Party's Rules Committee voted harmoniously Sunday on a formula designed to reverse a decline in the participation of blacks and other minorities in choosing the party's presidential nominee.

But Carter representatives defeated proposals for equal numbers of men and women delegates to Democratic national conventions and for drastic changes in the way the party chooses its vice presidential candidates.

Some party officials had expected Rules Committee issues to provide the only lively debate at the national convention and as the panel ended its session Sunday, losers on a number of issues were preparing minority reports for use in a likely floor fight at the convention in New York City.

The proposal from the Democratic Women's Caucus which stirred the most heated debate of the 53-member Rules

Committee's meetings would have required that beginning with the 1980 national convention each state's convention delegates be divided equally between men and women.

Michigan Delegate George R. Atkins, noting women make up 51.7 per cent of the population, urged approval. "We either accept women to walk beside us or we leave them in the kitchen," he said.

Among those supporting the 50-50 quota for men and women was Jean Westwood of Utah, a former Democratic National Committee chairwoman.

Former New York Gov. Averill Harriman, a prominent party figure for decades, offered an amendment on behalf of the Carter forces requiring only that future party leaders "promote" equal representation between the sexes beginning with the 1980 nominating convention.

The Harriman proposal passed 66 1/4 to 46 1/4. Some delegates had less than a full vote.

Pate Roughly Open Hero

DULUTH, Ga. (AP) — Jerry Pate broke into a smile when he recalled a five-iron shot from the rough on the 18th hole.

"It was my chance to be a hero," he said, then reconsidered. "Well, not a hero."

"But I wanted to win the Open."

"I knew I could get it over the water."

"I didn't want to lay up and make five and go into a playoff with Tom Weiskopf and Al Geiberger. They're such great players."

"When that shot started coming down, when I knew it was on the green, it was the greatest feeling in the world."

"I knew I had won the Open."

And he did. This slender, blond rookie pro won the United States Open Golf Championship Sunday with a final round 68, a gritty performance down the stretch and a magnificent shot from the rough, over water, to within two feet of the flag on the final hole.

It was the shot that killed the playoff hopes of Weiskopf and Geiberger and set up a clinching birdie he really didn't need. He had a one stroke lead over Weiskopf and Geiberger, who had finished, and needed only to make par on the last hole.

But he was in the rough and had 190 yards to the green, over water. He could lay up short, or try for it. He'd just watched John Mahaffey's bid come to a wet and watery grief. But he never hesitated.

"I knew I could make it. And if I could get it on the green, I knew I could two-putt."

He didn't have to. He dropped the short putt, completed his mastery of the damp and deadly, 7,015 yard Atlanta Athletic Club course and, in the tradition of Jack Nicklaus and Lee Trevino, scored his first professional triumph in the American national championship.

He won by two strokes with a 72 hole total of 277, three under par.

The deeply talented Weiskopf, who once reeled off a string of three consecutive birdies and appeared poised to add this national championship to the British Open title he won four years ago, and the veteran Geiberger finished in a tie for second at 279, one under. Weiskopf composed a 68 in the rain-delayed final round and Geiberger shot a 69.

Mahaffey, an embittered and all but destroyed playoff loser in this tournament a year ago, again had to content himself with thought of what might have been. He took a one stroke lead at the end of the second round. He once had a six-shot lead in the storm-delayed third round and finished that 18 holes in darkness with a two stroke advantage.

The baby-faced battler, perhaps the most intensely competitive man on the tour, led through this one until he bogeyed the 16th hole, dropping him into a share of the lead with Pate.

He turned his back to the national television cameras, his blond head down and his shoulders slumped.

He bogeyed the next one, three-putting, and had to make birdie on the final hole to have a chance at a tie.

The 28-year-old Mahaffey went for it all. He almost came off his feet on the drive off the tee on the 460-yard hole. He got it in the rough. And he went after the next one boldly, gambling it all, jerking a wood club from his bag.

The shot didn't clear the water. He had to one-putt for a bogey and finished with a 73 and a tie for fourth with veteran Butch Baird at 280, even par. Baird, wearing a broad-brimmed planter hat in the mild, overcast weather, had a 67.

Hubert Green, the season's leading money winner, closed with a 69 and was next at 282. British Open king Tom Watson had a round of 70 to finish at 284. Ben Crenshaw scrambled to a 73 and tied Lyn Lott, also with a 73, at 285.

Johnny Miller never got in the chase. He shot a 71 to finish with a 286. Masters champion Ray Floyd was 72-288. Gary Player 70-292, Hale Irwin 71-293, defending title-holder Lou Graham 73-294 and Arnold Palmer had a fourth consecutive 75 for 300.

"Kind of in a rut," mused Palmer.

Jack Nicklaus, the pre-tourney pick to make this his fourth American national championship, birdied three in a row on the back nine but couldn't keep it going. Nicklaus, who didn't make a birdie through the first 46 holes of this tournament, finished well back at 287.

"I always seem to play well when it doesn't mean anything," Nicklaus said.

"When you make three birdies in a row it gives you a lift. You then think if you can make five or six more something can happen. But I didn't—and it didn't."

Weiskopf had 11 consecutive pars until he reached the par five 12th in two and two-putted for a birdie. He holed one from 12-15 feet for birdie on the next one, and scored from about the same distance on the next, saluting the falling putt with a happy grin and a thrusting, clenched fist.

That put him two under and he seemed on the move.

But he bogeyed the next, missing the green and almost chipping into the water. He saved a scrambling par on the 15th.

Jerry Pate holds his U.S. Open trophy after the tournament Sunday in Duluth, Ga. He stopped a charge by Al Geiberger and Tom Weiskopf to win.

Nastase Eyes Wimbledon Upset

WIMBLEDON (UPI) — Arthur Ashe will be the top seed and Jimmy Connors the book-makers' favorite, but when the Wimbledon Championships enter their 100th year Monday Ilie Nastase will be the player both men could have to beat.

Ashe, the defending champion, will have the honor of serving the first ball of the $279,200 championships on the impeccably manicured grass of the All-England center court and should have few problems overcoming the opening round hurdle of Ferdi Taygan, the 57th-ranked U.S. player from Framingham, Mass.

Ashe has been seeded to meet Connors in a replay of last year's final in two week's time. Connors' first match against Italy's Antonio Zugarelli should not stretch him too far but after that the draw has not been kind to the left-hander from Belleville, Ill. He has probable matches with Stan Smith, the 1972 champion, fellow American Roscoe Tanner, who defeated him two weeks ago, and then Bjorn Borg, the No. 4 seed.

But while Ashe has a comparatively calm early passage, Nastase, the mercurial Romanian, will be lurking as a possible semifinal opponent.

Nastase, possibly the most talented all-around player in the world at the moment, has the skill to beat anybody, but more often than not ends up defeating himself with his wild on-court antics.

"If this is not my Wimbledon, I don't see another time for me," said Nastase, who will be 30 next month. "I was playing badly last year but now I am playing really well again and I want to win a big tournament. What is bigger than Wimbledon?"

Nastase and Connors met Saturday in the final of the John Player tournament in Nottingham, about 150 miles north of here. The result proved inconclusive because each won a set and were 1-1 in the third when rain stopped play and forced them to share the $28,300 prize money.

"Real pneumonia weather," commented Connors, and the officials of the All-England Club will be hoping Sunday's rain gives way to sunshine for the anticipated 340,000 patrons whom they hope will flock to this fashionable suburb in southwest London.

Nastase, the No. 3 seed, also will have a light first round task against Yugoslavia's Niki Spear, who has only beaten him once, four years ago.

The women as usual will not see action on the opening day and Chris Evert, the top seed and even money favorite, will welcome the day of rest after winning the women's Colgate tournament at Eastbourne Sunday.

WIMBLEDON (UPI) — The order of play Monday on Wimbledon's three premier courts. Play starts at 2 p.m. (9 a.m. EDT).

Center court: Arthur Ashe, U.S., vs Ferdi Taygan, U.S.; Tom Okker, Holland, vs Sandy Mayer, U.S.; Antonio Zugarelli, Italy, vs Jimmy Connors, U.S.; Dick Crealy, Australia, vs Bob Carmichael, Australia.

No. 1 court: Barry Phillips-Moore, Australia, vs Guillermo Vilas, Argentina; Syd Ball, Australia, vs Tony Roche, Australia; Frew McMillan, South Africa, vs Marty Riessen, U.S.; Phil Dent, Australia, vs John Lloyd, Britain.

No. 2 court: Sashi Menon, India vs Roger Taylor, Britain; David Lloyd, Britain, vs Bjorn Borg, Sweden; Ray Moore, South Africa, vs Mark Edmondson, Australia.

Finley's Suit To Be Asking $10 Million

NEW YORK (AP) — The lawyer for Oakland A's owner Charles O. Finley said Sunday he was filing a lawsuit against baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn and his office, asking for damages in "the neighborhood of $10 million" and asking for a preliminary injunction.

Neil Papiano, speaking by telephone from Los Angeles, said the complaint would be filed "Monday but more likely on Tuesday." There would be several causes of action, Papiano said—"at least five."

Papiano said there would be four or five damage causes of action and a request for an injunction to halt Kuhn's cancellation of the sale of three of Finley's players for $3.5 million.

He said the computation of a damage figure "starts at $3.5 million and escalates from there." Where the suit will be filed hasn't been decided yet—either a state or federal court in California. "Whichever court we think will give us a quicker hearing," Papiano said.

The lawyer said there has been no change in Finley's order not to play the trio of players in limbo—Vida Blue, Rolie Fingers and Joe Rudi.

"This is not a vindictive move," Papiano said. "It's made from legal and practical considerations. These are somebody else's players. We can't play somebody else's property. What if they get hurt?"

By blocking the sale of three of Finley's top players, Kuhn has united his enemies, divided his supporters and steered baseball into, potentially, its worst legal mess of all time.

Kuhn, acting loudly and clearly in the top of the inning, canceled Finley's clearance sales of Vida Blue to the New York Yankees for $1.5 million, and Rolie Fingers and Joe Rudi to the Boston Red Sox for $1 million apiece.

But whether the commissioner acted legally will begin to unfold Monday, in the bottom of the inning, when Finley gets his turn to bat.

There is some disagreement whether Blue signed a contract before his sale. But if he is unsigned—like Rudi and Fingers—and all three remain unsigned through the rest of the season and then, as free agents, join other clubs next season, Finley would receive no compensation for them. He would be out $3.5 million.

In addition, Papiano will seek a restraining order to block Kuhn's action and permit the sales. Kuhn had ordered Blue, Fingers and Rudi back on the Oakland roster, but Finley has refused to let them play.

This is where the Players Association enters the game.

Dick Moss, counsel for the players union, said Sunday his organization is "waiting to see what the others are going to do" before it decides on legal action. "We have had a little conversation with the Yankees and with Finley's lawyer," Moss said.

He said he wasn't certain whether the appropriate course would be to join a prior action or file an independent action.

"In any case," he said, "we'll do whatever we need to protect the interests of the players."

Marvin Miller, executive director of the union, said Kuhn "single-handedly plunged baseball into the biggest mess it has ever seen. I think the potential in terms of damage ... is tremendous."

Miller, who has called Kuhn a pawn of the owners, and Finley, who termed the lawyer-turned Commissioner "the village idiot" are on the same team, certainly an unusual circumstance.

Another Trip

Omaha — Ak-Sar-Ben placing judge Ray Beard was in Boston Sunday watching the Massachusetts Handicap at Suffolk Downs.

Beard, who is becoming a world-renowned traveler, was making his second eastern jaunt trying to lure some of the country's top older horses to Ak-Sar-Ben's $100,000-added Cornhusker Handicap on July 3.

Although the official list of nominees for Ak-Sar-Ben's featured attraction for older horses won't be released until early this week, it was understood that Dan Lasater's Royal Gint was a possible nominee.

But an unfortunate event occurred. According to The Associated Press, Royal Gint collapsed while challenging for the lead of the Mass. Handicap at the five-eighths pole. The AP reported the horse dropped to the ground, but was revived by handlers and vets. He regained his feet and officials said the heat caused the collapse.

"He began to lose his action halfway down the backstretch," Royal Gint's rider Jorge Tejeria said. "When I saw him bleeding, I started to ease up. I'll be all right and I hope my horse is. He's a good one. He just bled and that's all there is to it."

Whether Royal Gint recovers or not in time for the Cornhusker or is even sent here is open to question. Nevertheless, Beard said seven of the entrants in the Suffolk Downs' race will probably be nominated for the Cornhusker.

On The Sly, fifth in the Kentucky Derby, is already at Ak-Sar-Ben and his presence in Saturday's $100,000-added Omaha Gold Cup Stakes for 3-year-olds certainly adds to the races prestige.

"It really helps when people who are familiar with the Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Belmont Stakes can come here and watch a horse they've been hearing and seeing on television," Beard said before leaving. "Last year, you saw the crowd (more than 30,000) who came here to watch Preakness winner Master Derby."

"Meeting the horsemen really helps us get some name horses for nominees. Then the thing is getting them here. If the transportation problems to Omaha were ever solved — watch out," he noted.

Other Notes

Life's Hope, one of the country's top 3-year-olds, has apparently decided to skip Saturday's Gold Cup and will try the $125,000-added Ohio Derby at Thistledown.

Omaha's daily mutuel handle and attendance averages continue to show gains over last year's previous records.

The mutuel handle average is $1,280,078, which is 13.01 per cent higher than last year's $1,132,622. The average crowd of 14,929 is 1.48 per cent better than last year's mark of 14,710.

Babashoff Sets 4 Marks

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Shirley Babashoff shattered her fourth American record and qualified for a fifth spot on the United States Olympic swimming team with a victory in the 100-meter freestyle at the Olympic Trials Sunday night.

Her time of 56.96 seconds bettered her American mark of 57.48. In the morning qualifying heats, she swam 57.25.

Earlier, the 19-year-old from Fountain Valley, Calif., set American records in the 200-, 400- and 800-meter freestyle events and also qualified for the team with a victory in the 400-meter individual medley.

Jill Sterkel, a 15-year-old from El Monte, Calif., finished second in the 100 and matched Babashoff's morning time of 57.25. Also qualifying for the team and the U.S. 400-meter relay team were Kim Peyton of Portland, Ore., in 57.75, and Wendy Boglioli of Milltown, N. J., in 57.80.

World record-holder Jim Montgomery of Bloomington, Ind., won the men's 100 in 50.95 and another Babashoff, this time 20-year-old Jack, made the team with a third-place finish in the event in 51.44. Joe Bottom of Santa Clara, Calif., finished second in 51.13.

The 100-meter breaststroke crown went to the same two who won the 200-meter events—Lauri Siering of Modesto, Calif., in 1:14.46 and John Hencken, world record-holder from Santa Clara, who swam 1:04.20 this time.

Miss Babashoff declared herself "satisfied with what I did. My goal was to break 57.00, and I just did it. I want to go faster in the Olympics in Montreal," where she'll face the world record-holder, Kornelia Ender of the powerful East German team.

Despite her rigorous schedule during the first five days of these six-session trials, Miss Babashoff said she was not particularly tired.

Looking at the three other girls who will be on the sprint relay team with her, Miss Babashoff said, "I am really excited about that event."

The California girl is a repeater on the Olympic team, having made it first as a 15-year-old.

Miss Siering, from Modesto, was timed in 1:14.46, followed by Marcia Morey of Mission Viejo, Calif., in 1:14.85.

Earlier, during qualifying, Paul

Hartloff of Santa Barbara, Calif., a recent 18-year-old high school graduate, swam an American record 15:17.2 in the 1,500 meters. Favored Bobby Hackett of New Rochelle, N.Y., posted the second best time, 15:18.31, for the metric mile.

Hartloff, who was 30 seconds under his best previous time, bettered the American record of Tim Shaw of 15:20.91. Until Australia's Steve Holland swam 15:10.89 last February, Shaw's mark had been the world record.

Shaw qualified for Monday's finals in the 1,500, placing fifth in the qualifying heat. Both Shaw and Hackett were faster than Brian Goodell of Mission Viejo, who won the final heat in 15:27.36 and beat Shaw in that heat.

The two American records Sunday boosted to 12 the total by the young swimmers aiming for the Olympics at Montreal. These Olympic trials wind up Monday after six days and evenings of competition in the Belmont Plaza Pool.

Miss Siering's second triumph opened up an additional spot on the team, which went to Jennifer Hooker of Louisville, Ky., who placed third in the women's 200-meter freestyle on Wednesday at 2:03.58.

Kaat Stops Cincinnati, 6-1

By The Associated Press

Pitcher Jim Kaat singled during a three-run second inning Sunday as the Philadelphia Phillies posted a 6-1 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

Kaat, 7-2 with a five-game winning streak, needed relief help from Ron Reed, who came on in the sixth inning after the Reds had loaded the bases with none out and struck out Tony Perez and Johnny Bench and got pinch-hitter Ken Griffey to fly out.

The Phillies used singles by Dave Cash, Mike Schmidt and Greg Luzinski to take a 1-4 lead off Don Gullett in the first inning, then wrapped it up with three more in the second.

Garry Maddox doubled down the third base line and scored on Bob Boone's single to center. Kaat bounced a single past third baseman Pete Rose and both runners advanced as Rose threw wildly on the play. Cash walked to load the bases and Larry Bowa singled to score Boone. Kaat scored as Schmidt grounded into a double play.

In the day's other National League games, the San Diego Padres nipped the St. Louis Cardinals 5-4; the Montreal Expos turned back the Los Angeles Dodgers 5-4; the San Francisco Giants walloped the New York Mets 9-2 and the Houston Astros beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 9-5 in the first game of a doubleheader before the second game was rained out.

In afternoon American League action, the New York Yankees whipped the Chicago White Sox 6-3; the Cleveland Indians outscored the Kansas City Royals 11-8; the Detroit Tigers stopped the Minnesota Twins 7-3; the Boston Red Sox beat the California Angels 4-3 in 11 innings and the Oakland A's whipped the Milwaukee Brewers 7-5.

Johnny Grubb's run-scoring double snapped a tie in the ninth inning and led San Diego over St. Louis. Pete Mackanin's three-run homer capped a five-run rally in the sixth inning, leading Montreal over Los Angeles.

Ed Halicki knocked in three runs with two singles and, aided by late relief help from Randy Moffitt, pitched San Francisco over New York.

Houston broke a tie with five runs in the eighth inning off relief pitcher Bob Moose and defeated Pittsburgh in the rain-drenched opener of their doubleheader.

Thurman Munson's two-run single featured a five-run uprising in the third inning which sent New York past Chicago. Jim Bibby and two other Cleveland hurlers combined for six innings of shutout relief and Ray Fosse drove in four runs to lead Cleveland over Kansas City. Jason Thompson drove in four runs with a homer and a single to spark Detroit past Minnesota.

Rick Burleson's two-out single in the 11th inning knocked in the winning run for Boston. Don Baylor hit his ninth home run of the season in the fifth inning to break a 4-4 tie and send Oakland over Milwaukee.

In National League action, Chicago visited Atlanta. In the American League, it was Baltimore at Texas.

Anderson, Van Berg To Be Enshrined

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Omaha — Irv Anderson has received many awards.

Honors for an outstanding jockey career, for a career as a horse racing official. He even is a member of the Lincoln Journal's Nebraska Sports Hall of Fame. But his upcoming induction into the Nebraska Racing Hall of Fame is probably the one he cherishes the most.

"I'm pretty happy to be in the Journal's Hall of Fame since there's some pretty big names in it. But since this is just for racing, I have to consider it the No. 1 award," he said.

Anderson, who lives in Hoskins, and outstanding trainer Jack Van Berg of Columbus will be inducted into the Nebraska Racing Hall of Fame in ceremonies at Ak-Sar-Ben on July 19.

Van Berg, one of the country's top

trainers, has been the nation's leading trainer in number of wins five times, including four of the last eight years. In 1974, he set a national record in wins — 329.

For 17 consecutive years, Van Berg has been Ak-Sar-Ben's top trainer. His father, the late Marion H. Van Berg, was the first Hall of Fame selection.

He also won national training titles in 1968 with 256 wins, in 1969 with 239, in 1970 with 282 and in 1972 with 286. His career totals through 1975 were 2,773 wins and purses totaling $11,104,925.

While Anderson knew he was a candidate for inclusion into the hall that was founded in 1966, he still was surprised.

"I knew I was being considered for several years, but, of course, there's a lot of names on the list. That makes it another honor to be chosen," Anderson said.

He began his career in 1935 as a jockey for the famed Calumet Farm. He worked for Calumet through October, 1940, under trainers Bert Williams, Frank Kearns and Ben Jones.

He was drafted into military service in the fall of 1941. After his discharge, he rode for about four months before weight finally cornered him.

Now Anderson serves as a steward at Fonner Park in Grand Island, the State Fairgrounds in Lincoln, Columbus and Atokad Park near South Sioux City. He is the paddock judge at Ak-Sar-Ben.

He termed Bull Lea the best horse he ever rode. Bull Lea was the 2-90-1 second favorite in the 1938 Kentucky Derby but finished eighth.

"We just ran him out of gas before the Derby," Anderson said. "If the Derby had been the day of the Blue Grass (about 10 days before at Kenneland Race Track in nearby Lexington), he would have won. Of course, the favorite ran out too (Fighting Fox, the 7-5 choice was sixth).

"They still remember me at Calumet. I was back there a few years ago showing Harry Farnham (chairman of the Nebraska State Racing Commission) around and they said 'you don't have to sign in. You know where to go and how to get there.'"

Anderson's greatest moments in racing now revolve around helping young riders learn the secrets that made him one of the sport's greats.

"I always take time out to help them. It really makes me feel good when they do well. It would for anybody. I've been doing that for a long time," he said.

The Racing Hall of Fame honors persons who have achieved racing fame for Nebraska. The permanent Hall of Fame is at Ak-Sar-Ben on public display.

Kissinger Cites Challenge At European Tour Outset

PARIS (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger began a week-long trip to Europe Sunday night, seeking a common approach among the Western industrialized nations for trading with the Soviet Bloc.

A key part of his visit will be a midweek journey to Germany for critical talks with South African Prime Minister John Vorster on the future of Rhodesia.

In a speech he has prepared for the 24-nation Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD), Kissinger will stress the need for unity in approaching Third World countries and the Soviet Union and its allies. He will speak Monday.

On arrival at Orly airport, Kissinger said, "the industrial democracies which comprise the OECD are in the middle of an industrial recovery . . . the challenge they now face is how to cooperate for further progress."

A united approach would have the effect of giving Washington a more dominant role. The European Common Market and Japan hold some $11 billion in Soviet credits while America alone holds only about $400 million.

Opportunity Provided

Kissinger said that a meeting Monday with French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing would provide an opportunity to exchange ideas on the forthcoming economic summit meeting in Puerto Rico.

The two also are expected to discuss the civil war in Lebanon. France has offered to help arrange a "round table" meeting to work toward a political settlement between the warring Lebanese Moslems and Christians.

Syrian President Hafez Assad subscribed to the proposal after a 48-hour visit here, but he would exclude the Palestinians who are allies of the Moslem leftists.

Syria has sent thousands of troops into Lebanon to try and end the fighting but Kissinger and other U.S. officials evidently are uncertain about Assad's ultimate objectives.

Kissinger spoke about his scheduled meeting with Vorster as he left Washington. He said he intended "to see what can be done to avoid conflict in southern Africa and to move matters there toward a solution that respects the dignity of all the peoples and that is achieved by negotiation and not by conflict."

Wants Help

Kissinger hopes to enlist Vorster's help in steering the white-minority government in Rhodesia into negotiations to transfer control to the country's

6 million blacks within no more than two years.

Beyond that, Kissinger and Vorster will discuss Namibia, the predominantly black territory controlled by South Africa, as well as the Vorster government's policy of racial segregation. Racial riots last week around Johannesburg, South Africa, left more than 100 dead, millions of dollars in damages and evidence of a growing militancy among blacks against control of their affairs by the white minority government.

Kissinger told the House International Relations Committee of Thursday that he is meeting with Vorster "in order to see whether South Africa would be willing to contribute to a moderate and peaceful evolution of events in southern Africa."

Kissinger added: "It is not a cooperation for which we will pay in terms of our principles." The sessions will take place Wednesday and Thursday in the West German Bavarian villages of Grafenau and Bodenmais, near the border with Czechoslovakia. Plans to meet in Hamburg were scrapped for "security reasons," according to U.S. officials.

Other sources indicated the Germans were uncomfortable hosting a South African leader in view of his apartheid policy and wanted a less conspicuous site.

Omaha Man's Appearance Set For Burglary

Omaha (AP) — Michael J. Casey, 32, of Omaha, former director of special projects at Boys Town, was arrested Saturday on suspicion of burglary.

Police said Casey was arrested in connection with a $1,000 burglary last Monday at the home of a former girl friend, Karen S. Baird, 27, of Omaha. Casey said his arrest was due to a misunderstanding. A Tuesday court appearance was set.

Los Angeles Times officials accused Casey last year of saying he worked for Time Magazine and leading them on a futile $15,000 trip to Hong Kong and Thailand in search of Patricia Hearst.

Casey was fired as special projects director for Boys Town in 1974.

Kissinger Cites Challenge At European Tour Outset

PARIS (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger began a week-long trip to Europe Sunday night, seeking a common approach among the Western industrialized nations for trading with the Soviet Bloc.

A key part of his visit will be a midweek journey to Germany for critical talks with South African Prime Minister John Vorster on the future of Rhodesia.

In a speech he has prepared for the 24-nation Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD), Kissinger will stress the need for unity in approaching Third World countries and the Soviet Union and its allies. He will speak Monday. On arrival at Orly airport, Kissinger said, "the industrial democracies which comprise the OECD are in the middle of an industrial recovery... the challenge they now face is how to cooperate for further progress."

A united approach would have the effect of giving Washington a more dominant role. The European Common Market and Japan hold some $11 billion in Soviet credits while America alone holds only about $400 million.

Opportunity Provided

Kissinger said that a meeting Monday with French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing would provide an opportunity to exchange ideas on the forthcoming economic summit meeting in Puerto Rico.

The two also are expected to discuss the civil war in Lebanon. France has offered to help arrange a "round table" meeting to work toward a political settlement between the warring Lebanese Moslems and Christians.

Syrian President Hafez Assad subscribed to the proposal after a 48-hour visit here, but he would exclude the Palestinians who are allies of the Moslem leftists.

Syria has sent thousands of troops into Lebanon to try and end the fighting but Kissinger and other U.S. officials evidently are uncertain about Assad's ultimate objectives.

Kissinger spoke about his scheduled meeting with Vorster as he left Washington. He said he intended "to see what can be done to avoid conflict in southern Africa and to move matters there toward a solution that respects the dignity of all the peoples and that is achieved by negotiation and not by conflict."

Wants Help

Kissinger hopes to enlist Vorster's help in steering the white-minority government in Rhodesia into negotiations to transfer control to the country's

6 million blacks within no more than two years.

Beyond that, Kissinger and Vorster will discuss Namibia, the predominantly black territory controlled by South Africa, as well as the Vorster government's policy of racial segregation. Racial riots last week around Johannesburg, South Africa, left more than 100 dead, millions of dollars in damages and evidence of a growing militancy among blacks against control of their affairs by the white minority government.

Kissinger told the House International Relations Committee of Thursday that he is meeting with Vorster "in order to see whether South Africa would be willing to contribute to a moderate and peaceful evolution of events in southern Africa."

Kissinger added: "It is not a cooperation for which we will pay in terms of our principles."

The sessions will take place Wednesday and Thursday in the West German Bavarian villages of Grafenau and Bodenmais, near the border with Czechoslovakia. Plans to meet in Hamburg were scrapped for "security reasons," according to U.S. officials.

Other sources indicated the Germans were uncomfortable hosting a South African leader in view of his apartheid policy and wanted a less conspicuous site.

Omaha Man's Appearance Set For Burglary

Omaha (AP) — Michael J. Casey, 32, of Omaha, former director of special projects at Boys Town, was arrested Saturday on suspicion of burglary. Police said Casey was arrested in connection with a $1,000 burglary last Monday at the home of a former girl friend, Karen S. Baird, 27, of Omaha. Casey said his arrest was due to a misunderstanding. A Tuesday court appearance was set.

Los Angeles Times officials accused Casey last year of saying he worked for Time Magazine and leading them on a futile $15,000 trip to Hong Kong and Thailand in search of Patricia Hearst.

Casey was fired as special projects director for Boys Town in 1974.

Kelly, Knievel Star

Hollywood (UPI) — Gene Kelly will costar with Evel Knievel in "Viva Knievel."

Molester Faces 16 New Counts

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — A convicted child molester who was free on bond pending an appeal has been charged with molesting four more juveniles since his conviction.

Robert C. Bisping, 60, of Norfolk, was held in jail Sunday in lieu of $1 million bond after police charged him with 16 new counts of child molesting.

"And we anticipate placing numerous more charges," said Norfolk Police Cpl. W.W. Fuller.

Bisping was arrested Friday and charged with four counts of molesting an 8-year-old boy. The 12 other charges involved the boy and three girls, aged 10, 11 and 17, police said.

A detective said the new charges all involved offenses committed between June 1975, when Bisping was released on bond, and last week.

Bisping had been sentenced by a Norfolk judge on June 24, 1975, to 20 years in prison after being convicted of 13 charges of molesting four girls and a boy.

He was released on $50,000 bond while he appealed the convictions to a state appeals court and later to the U.S. Supreme Court.

The state court rejected his appeal earlier this year, and the U.S. Supreme Court turned it down earlier this month.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE - Here's how to work it: AXYDLBAAXR is LONGFELLOW

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's. X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

THE RYATTS by Jack Elrod

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

Monday, June 21, 1976

SCORPIO persons are natural detectives. Each of the zodiacal signs has a trademark. Aries the plowman, Taurus the determined stand, Gemini the versatile, Cancer the gourmet, Leo the showman, Virgo the perceptor, Libra the lawyer, Sagittarius the traveler, Capricorn the timekeeper, Aquarius the unorthodox. Many of us refuse to be trademarked. Do you reflect the trademark of your zodiacal sign?

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Home adjustment, beautifying of surroundings, reconciliation with family member. You can get what you want - know it and act accordingly. Make personal appearances.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Discretion as key, maintain air of mystery. To tell all would be an error. You've been trusted with "inside information." Keep confidences. You may be visiting hospital, club, institution. Pisces, Virgo figure in picture.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Accent on friends, desires, professional advancement. Popularity increases. You're able now to assume more responsibility. On personal level, you communicate - a relationship intensifies. If you're playing games with emotions - think twice!

CANCER (June 21-July 20): Emphasis on goal, dealing with parent or authority figure. You complete cycle; task is finished and a relationship may also be wearing thin. Instead of brooding, look to future. It is brighter than you may think!

LEO (July 21-Aug 20): Good Moon aspect highlights journey, education, breaking new ground, communication and publishing. Submit for mat. manuscript. Make fresh start. Open heart to "new love." Vitality makes comeback. A bright, optimistic member of opposite sex could be very much in picture.

VIRGO (Aug 23-Sept 22): What was a roadblock to progress is being removed. Be aware of it and be confident. Money, as it affects career, date, is featured. Dig deep, reject superficial explanations. You're entitled to legitimate tax writeoff.

LIBRA (Sept 23-Oct 22): Stress ability to move here, there, everywhere.

MEANS put off any direct confrontation on legal papers, commitment, marriage. Take time to play waiting game. Cycle is low - judgment may not be as sharp as usual.

SCORPIO (Oct 23-Nov 21): Highlight work, health, ability to get together with those who share mutual interests. Individual who has date, files you can use is willing to share. Toss aside false pride. Much that you worked for is now available. Make reasonable inquiries.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec 21): Lunar aspect indicates creativity, significant reappraisal of life style. You're able to imprint individuality, personal magnetism sparks. Members of opposite sex comment on your "charisma." Gemini is in picture - and so is another Sagittarius.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan 19): Build on solid foundation. Improve property. Strive for greater understanding within family circle. Get value for value. Be realistic about what you're doing. Striving for - Taurus, Libra figure prominently.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb 18): Some ideas need "development time." Check various sources. Give full play to intellectual curiosity. Ask questions - answers are available. Get value for value. Be realistic about what you're doing. Striving for - Taurus, Libra figure prominently.

PISCES (Feb 19-March 20): Financial status improves. You're able to locate lost article. Capricorn, Cancer could be in picture. Get prices. Know values. Take cash and let credit go. Spotlight on paymenly collection. Relative who appears confident could be putting on a show. Know it and depend upon your own resources.

IF JUNE 21st IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are optimistic, expansive, eat too much "junk food." Weight can be a problem. December will be an outstanding month. The year is vital, changes in life style occur. If single, you could marry. Gemini, Sagittarius persons play important roles in your life. You are popular and your laughter is infectious.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 5, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE - Here's how to work it:
A X Y D L B A A X R
is LONG FELLOW

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

Monday, June 21, 1976
By SIDNEY OMARR

Scorpio persons are natural detectives. Pisces individuals are natural psychics. Each of the zodiacal signs has a trademark. Aries the pioneer, Taurus the determined stand, Gemini the versatile, Cancer the gourmet, Leo the showman, Virgo the perceptor, Libra the lawyer, Sagittarius the traveler, Capricorn the timekeeper, Aquarius the unorthodox. Many of us refuse to be trademarked. Do you reflect the trademark of your zodiacal sign?

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Home adjustment, beautifying of surroundings, reconciliation with family member - these are spotlighted. Cycle is at peak. You can get what you want - know it and act accordingly. Make personal appearances.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Discretion now is key, maintain air of mystery. To tell all would be an error. You've been trusted with "inside information." Keep confidences. You may be visiting hospital, club, institution. Pisces, Virgo figure in picture.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Accent on friends, desires, professional advancement. Popularity increases. You're able now to assume more responsibility. On personal level, you communicate - a relationship intensifies. If you're playing games with emotions - think twice!

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Emphasis on goal, dealing with parent or authority figure. You complete cycle. Task is finished and a relationship may also be wearing thin. Instead of brooding, look to future. It is brighter than you may think!

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Good Moon aspect highlights journey, education, breaking new ground, communication and publishing. Submit formal manuscript. Make fresh start. Open heart to "new love." Vitality makes comeback. A bright, optimistic member of opposite sex could be very much in picture.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): What was a roadblock to progress is being removed. Be aware of it and be confident. Money, as it affects partner, money, is featured. Dig deep, reject superficial explanations. You're entitled to legitimate tax writeoff.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Stress ability to move here, there, everywhere.

This is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to split open your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
